

XII. DECEMBER hath XXXI Days. 1795.

And western skies with rich reflection glow, While on the cheerful hearths the bright fires blaze.	Can joys to me, compar'd with Winter's bring : For Winter's joys domestic most I love ;
No, not the verdure of returning Spring,	Her shorten'd days, when in the social ring
Nor all the music of the vocal grove,	Souls mix with souls, and minds their powers improve.
