A PEEP AT THE NEST.

FREDERICTON, AUGUST 1, 1891.

Just at this time when the spirit of penvoked by the conservative party and press, it will not be without interest to examine the credentials of those from whom such reform is to proceed. Let us take a cursory glance at the men by whom the era of righteousness and purity is to

At the head of the cabinet stands the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott. Mr. Abbott is the man who helped to engineer the famous C. P. R. raids upon the treasury. He is also the man who handled the Allen bribery fund of $360,000 in 1872.

Next in order comes Sir Hector Langevin, minister of public works and leader of the commons. Mr. Langevin received $32,000 of the Allen moneys and used it. to bribe the electors of his native province. Mr. Langevin has now in the bank a sum of about $25,000 including interest, awarded to him as a testimonial, mainly from contractors who had dealings with his department, and who conceived this to be a suitable form in which to express their gratitude. It is also in evidence that Sir Hector received the snug sum of $10,000 from the contracting firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., in addition to which his promising son obtained $5,000, his chief engineer about $4,000, and other officials of his department various sums

Next on the list is the finance minister, Hon. George E Foster. Mr. Foster is a man who has admitted himself to be addicted to "moments of weakness," during one of which he was so rash as to speak in parliament in favor of prohibition, of which he had been, for many years, at $10 a night, a strenuous advocate on the lecture platform. He is also the gentlesentative rendered him so obnoxious to the people of Kings county, the strongest to participate in many festive occasions from which Mrs. Foster is debarred
