CHARLOTTETOWN PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1918

VOL. XLVII, No. 36

Synopsis of Canadian North-West Land Regulations

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, who was at the commencement of the present war, and who has since continued to be a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years. In certain districts a homesteaded may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homesteaded patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homesteaded patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homesteaded patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homesteaded in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00. Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions. When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

Your Soldier Boy Wants HICKEY'S TWIST

No matter where he is, or what other tobacco he can get, the Island soldier who chews tobacco is never satisfied with anything but HICKEY'S TWIST.

In hundreds of letters from the boys in Flanders, France, England and the training camps, they ask for HICKEY'S TWIST—and the 10th took along 20,000 figs with them.

Send your soldier boy a pound of HICKEY'S with the next parcel.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD

The Home

A happy home is a little Heaven upon earth; an unhappy home is Hell upon earth. There is no song more universally popular than "Home Sweet Home." Every honest, human heart at once responds to the sentiment: "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

Yet how sad is the reflection that there are so many unhappy homes in the world. The old adage, "There is a skeleton in every closet," is a graphic statement of a fact too common to be denied. In view of this really melancholy fact the question, "How to make home happy," is invested with a degree of importance only second to that which attaches to winning the happy life hereafter.

To make a happy home the first and principal requisite is to have a realizing sense of what home is for. Nothing is more lamentable than to witness the ignorance, the carelessness and frivolity with which young persons too often enter upon the holy state of matrimony. They seem to have no thought of its sacredness—that it is a Sacrament instituted by God for high and holy purposes. They have no conception that the family and, therefore, the home, are divine institutions. They are the farthest possible from appreciating the dignity, the sacredness and the really sublime honor and privilege of parenthood, and from recognizing that the object of the family is to train the children for Heaven. What wonder, then, if they fail to realize the awful responsibility as well as the high privilege of having young immortal souls committed to their care, to be trained to a virtuous life here as a preparation for a life of eternal blessedness in the world to come.

Alas! What are the silly, thoughtlessness, sometimes giddy young people thinking of when they are contemplating marriage? They are thinking of love—of "love in a cottage," perhaps, and indulging in vague dreams of happiness without any definite purpose or plan or any serious understanding of the duties and responsibilities of married life.

Of course, they are doomed to disappointment. It could not be otherwise. When the honeymoon is passed, they begin to discover that married life is a very serious thing and that to be truly happy requires something more than billing and cooing and "love in a cottage." The unreal dreams of courtship vanish and then come the real test and trial of married life.

Ten chances to one, disappointment ends in strife and mutual recrimination. There are a thousand things that require mutual concession and mutual forbearance in order to make the domestic machinery run smoothly, and to avoid friction, misunderstanding and hard feeling.

The husband, perhaps, is disappointed in finding that his wife, whom he thought perfection, is not a skilled housekeeper, and he becomes exacting and faultfinding. The wife is disappointed in finding that the husband, whom she had imagined clothed with all noble and praiseworthy qualities, is so testy, so disagreeable and faultfinding. She resents his unkind criticisms, and the dove of domestic peace and happiness takes its flight, and that home which, at a distance, seemed to promise so much real pleasure and happiness becomes a scene of domestic broils, which too often end in all the untold evils of separation. The man takes to drink, neglects his work, loses his position and becomes a vagabond; while the wife and children are left to struggle with poverty and too often become charges upon the town.

This is no fancy picture. Would to God there were not so many melancholy instances of its reality!

Need we discuss the remedy? The end itself is the best suggestion of the appropriate and only efficient remedy. In the first place, our young people must be instructed and made to realize more than they do the serious and sacred nature of marriage. They must be made to understand that it is not mere "love in a cottage," and all that—the realization of pleasant dreams of the imagination—but the fulfilling of a great, divine purpose, the accomplishment of which is necessarily attended with more or less trial and trouble, involving the necessity of frequent self-sacrifice and self-denial. Mutual giving way and mutual forbearance—there is the whole secret of domestic happiness—such delightful self-consciousness. They were not aware of themselves at all. They were a beautiful mixture of shrewdness and unworidiness, very full of common sense and quiet serviceableness; and they were patting about the ancient convent, with this tribe of little children, just losing themselves in the race of them, and looking after them in just that common sense, hearty, affectionate way that little children need.

The Girl Who Lives Alone.

The girl alone has, perhaps, a harder road to travel than any other member of society; and if she must depend upon her own efforts for a livelihood, the world often seems a dreary and wearisome place.

However, the really practical young woman will accept the inevitable with a good grace, resolve to get ahead in whatever line of work she finds herself, and not be overfret in making friendships.

It must, indeed, be delightfully satisfying to have one's wants anticipated and provided for, and to enjoy the right kind of home life in one's own home; but all girls are not so fortunate. Young women who are should be deeply grateful for those blessings, and at the same time feel a bit of sympathy for the girl who must fight her way onward, and alone.

Very often young women who are dependent upon their own efforts for a living, make a far better showing than the girl who was spared from anything that savors of work or sacrifice. Indeed, the vast majority of women and girls who today are holding worth-while positions can thank themselves, or rather hard work, grit and perseverance for the good things that have come their way. True, influence often proves the golden key that opens the door to a high salaried situation, but as very few of us can single out even one influential friend among our acquaintances, it would seem that the best thing we can do (assuming we must rely solely upon our own endeavors for a living) is to put our very best efforts into whatever business line we follow. Yet we must not stop here. We should be constantly on the alert for a better position, and it will assuredly come to us if we gradually fit ourselves for it; but all the influences in the world will not help us one iota, or keep us retained in any situation if we are not qualified to properly perform the work that has been assigned to us.

The girl whose parents are not living, and whose home is a boarding house, should wisely pass by many dress fads of the hour. Common sense tells us that the silk stockings and silk lingerie are out of the reach of a young woman whose weekly salary is ten or twelve dollars. Hence, any girl alone, whose position is a modestly paying one, should not try to copy the style of the young woman to whom money is no object. True, one's appearance is an asset in this kind of business life of today, yet the average girl can keep neatly attired and well groomed without throwing her slender wages away on useless furberlows, that after being worn a few times become back numbers.

Young women depending solely upon themselves should make it a point to deposit a certain portion of their salary weekly, no matter how small. This they can do if they wisely resolve to attend the theatre less, or give up something that they can very well get along without. When one is commanding a good salary, wearing smart frocks and enjoying countless friendships, life is a truly delightful affair; but with the coming of reverses how quickly one's world changes. At such a time the smart acquaintances of a girl's triumphant hours will vanish as dew, before the morning sun; and it is then that truth will come home to her. She will realize (for the first time in her life, perhaps) that a little bank account is the best friend she could possibly have.—The Echo.

Death Had No Terrors For Black Agnes

In our little orphanage at Dou-dah death has claimed several victims of late. I was almost afraid lest discouragement might take possession of the poor orphans when they saw their companions taken away so quickly one after the other. But this fortunately has not happened. Agnes, the last one whom God called to Himself, died the death of a veritable child of grace. She had always been an exemplary girl, and she saw death approach without any fear. "You are not sad, are you?" asked the superior. "What should make me sad," was her answer. "Ours suffers so much on earth and heaven is so beautiful." The day before her death she requested a favor to be carried to the chapel, there to receive the sacrament of Extreme Unction. After receiving the sacrament she was perfectly happy, and she exhorted her companions earnestly to persevere in the practice of the Christian life. She died most tranquilly murmuring prayer after the very last.

It is in witnessing these pious deaths that we poor missionaries of the "Somali Desert" renew our courage. Oh, these wretched but dear Somalis! Like the other natives they have their faults, that crucify the missionary and aggravate him at certain times. Still they have not, like so many of the pretentious civilized peoples, a spirit corrupted by pride. God is merciful to them, and even when their life has been more or less like that of the Prodigal, in their last moments, they are full of confidence in God who calls them.

—Echo from Africa.

Cardinal Mercier

Unshaken Soul

Ida M. Tarbell in the Red Cross Magazine for June, tells the inspiring story of Cardinal Mercier, one heroic man who stood out above the terrible flood—when the Germans swept over Belgium—unswerving, brave and serene. She says: "The more the world knows of Cardinal Mercier, the higher it places him among the very superior men that have been developed in this world war. His passionate sympathy, his complete courage, his adroit and unanswerable arguments in the cases where he has clashed with the occupying power, all put him high among men, not only of this day, but of any day. An extraordinary and complete confidence in the justice of God in all of his misery pervades everything that he writes and says like some celestial light. The man may cry out in agony, but he does not doubt. Some of his expressions of faith with which he comforts his people, and we must believe sustains his own soul, are among the finest to be found in this kind of writing. I am told by those that worked with the Cardinal in Belgium that the finest impression he makes is one of extraordinary spirituality. A member of the Belgian commission told me that the first time he went into his presence his instinctive comment was, 'Here is a saint; but when he grasped his hand and looked into his eyes, he said, 'Here is a man.'"

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DANDRUFF

"Did you try that simple plan of counting sheep for your insomnia?"

"Yes, doctor, but I made a mess of it. I counted 10,000 sheep, put them on the cars and shipped them to market. And when I'd got through counting the wad of money I got for them at present prices it was time to get up."

If you want a comfort in the house, get one of those instantaneous heaters. It keeps the whole family in hot water all the time.

Don't need it. My wife attends to that."

When I sing the tears come into my eyes. What can I do for this?

HAD SEVERE PAINS IN SIDES AND BACK. HAD TO GO TO BED.

Women are the greatest sufferers from weak, lame and aching backs owing to the continual stooping, bending and lifting so necessary to perform their household duties.

Women should not despair even if they are troubled with severe pains in the side or back, and not able to attend to their duties, as all they need to do to make the kidneys well again is to stimulate the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. John Simmons, Coleman, P. E. I., writes: "I feel it my duty to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to any one having weak kidneys, as they have been of great help to me."

Some time ago my kidneys were so bad I had severe pains in my sides and back, and it was impossible for me to stand straight. I then got so bad I had to go to bed, and was that way for a week. I sent for some Doan's Kidney Pills, and I took just about one box, and was able to get up and do my own work."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

See that our trade mark "Maple Leaf" appears on the wrapper.

Suffered Great Agony. Pains in the Stomach For Over Three Years.

Miss Dorothy Clark, Kouchibouguac, N. B., writes: "For over three years I suffered great agony from pains in the stomach. I tried several remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I started with two vials, and before I had one quite used I found much relief. I continued until I used four vials, and they have completely cured me. That was eighteen months ago, and I have not had the slightest return since. The best praise I can give them is not enough."

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arise from troubles in the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are feeling out of spirits, have indigestion, especially after eating, bilious spells, headaches, your stomach coated tongue, water-brash, etc., you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. You will be surprised how quickly they will fix you up.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PRAYER

Prayer will in time make the human countenance its own divinest altar; years upon years of true thoughts, like ceaseless music shut up within, will vibrate along the nerves of expression until the lines of the living instrument are drawn into correspondence and the harmony of visible form matches the unheard harmonies of the mind.—James Lane Allen.

Mary Ovington, Jasper Ont writes:—"My mother had a badly pruned arm. Nothing we used did her any good. Then father got Hagyard's Yellow Oil and it cured mother's arm in a few days Price 25 cents."

A history exam in a public school contains this delightful information: "Patrick Henry said, 'I rejoice that I have but one country to live for.'"
