Exploring for Edible Fishes

We are familiar enough in Newfoundland with international disputes about fisheries, but so far we have heard little and benefited less by international co-operation to make the best of the resources of the sea. Yet there is an international society at work for this very purpose. It is known as the Permanent International Council for the Exploration of the Sea. Ten countries are represented in the council by official delegates with full powers: Great Britain, Germany, Russia, the Netherlands, France, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland. The objects of the society are:

"To acquire a thorough knowledge of the commercial fishes of the Atlantic Ocean, to apply that knowledge in the interest of fishing and fishermen, and to advise the co-operating Governments in all matters pertaining to the preservation of the fish supply, the development of the fisheries, and fishery legislation."

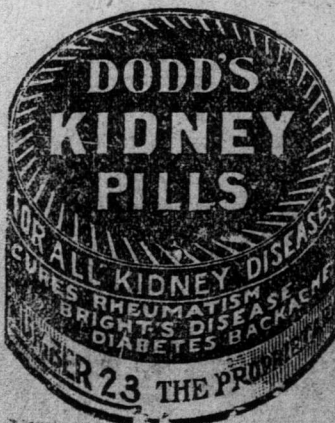

The Shipping Gazette of New York says:—"Congress is asked at the present session to make an appropriation to help carry on the work of the International Council, and one of the very first moves will be to investigate the disappearance of the great school of mackerel from the east coast of the United States."

The mackerel was one of the great staple fish foods of the country as far back as Colonial days, and the fishery was very actively prosecuted in New England and in the Middle Atlantic States. In 1886, after several years of unprecedented abundance, the mackerel dropped off suddenly and has never resumed its former plenteousness. The fishery of 1910 was the poorest in the history of the country. As against a catch of about 500,000 barrels of salted fish in 1885, the catch of 1910 was only 2,700 barrels.

There are to-day invested in the mackerel fishery nearly $2,000,000, but the fishery is being prosecuted more in the way of a lottery than anything else. Notwithstanding the long-continued disappearance of the mackerel, vessels are fitted out every spring in the expectation that the missing fish will come back in as great numbers as in 1885. Sixteen hundred men have been year after year holding on to this fishery with the hope that something will turn up. If the mackerel were to come back their vessels would make tremendous profits. Salted mackerel have sold as high as $40 a barrel, whereas in 1890 they sold for $4 and $5 a barrel.

On Even Keel.

The Kannehwa which had such a big list on arrival, is to-day on an even keel. The water has been pretty nearly all pumped out of the holds and the cargo which was taken out is being put on board again and trimmed properly. The ship has been surveyed and some necessary repairs will be effected. The ship will resume her voyage to Halifax during the latter part of the week.

N. B. S. Annual.

The annual meeting of the N.B.S. Society was held last night. The reports of the various departments connected with the Society were of a most interesting character, several hundred dollars having been added to the beneficiary department during the year. In addition to this, $400 has been handed over to the Building Committee as a result of the efforts of the year. The meeting was most enthusiastic, and the officers having vacated their seats, Messrs. A. H. Maunders, H. Hammond and S. Bursell were appointed to conduct the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Mr. W. H. Goodland, re-elected; Vice-Pres., Mr. J. M. Lawrence, re-elected; Treas., Mr. G. H. Cook, re-elected; Sec., Mr. F. Samuelson, elected. The following Committee were also elected: W. T. Jenny, Harry Cowan, W. J. Bugden, M. Downton, J. Auchinleck, T. Volsey, M. Marshall, J. M. Carbery and Leonard James. After the election a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the officers who conducted the election. The usual annual benefit vote was passed and it was decided to hold the annual soiree, which has always been such an enjoyable event. A special meeting of the Society will be held on Monday night.

Sentenced to Death.

Rev. C. V. Richeson to be Electrocuted May 19.

Boston, Jan. 9.—With the appearance of a man who has abandoned all hope of life, Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson stood at the bar of justice, declared his guilt of the premeditated murder of his former sweetheart, Avis Linnell, and heard without a tremor the words of Judge Sanderson that condemned him to death in the electric chair on the week beginning May 19. To the half dozen questions which Judge Sanderson put to Richeson, as to whether he realized the full nature and effect of his acknowledgment of guilt, whether his confession was voluntary and made after consultation with his counsel, whether the sentence of death should be pronounced with no word from him against it, the tall figure answered without the slightest emotion, always in the affirmative.

Richeson's counsel declared after the proceedings that an appeal for executive clemency would follow soon, and that every effort would be made to obtain life imprisonment instead of death as the punishment.

Some well-known attorneys remarked to-night that Judge Sanderson's action in accepting the plea and ordering it spread upon the records of the court, might have an echo in the Supreme Court, on the ground that a jury alone would accept such a plea.

Two Men and Three Women Drowned.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 12.—Dashing through the darkness in zero weather, two men and three women were drowned early to-day, when the automobile in which they were riding ran on the ice, covering an artificial stream of water used by a power plant outside of the city. The men were Donald Leed, son of a former Supreme Court Justice, Alfred Leed and Chester A. Vanclean, an automobile salesman.

One of them was Margaret Lindall, and the other's name is Mulroy or Mulvey. The third is believed to have been Anna Hassel, her body not having been recovered. Frederick M. Foster, the third man in the party, who was running the automobile, escaped drowning, but is suffering from exposure.

Foster managed to escape from the machine after it had broken through the ice and ran nearly a mile to secure help.

Dover, Del., Jan. 8.—After clinging for nearly 50 hours to the rigging of the sinking oyster dredge James Thomas, six miles from shore in Delaware Bay, Capt. Thomas Morris and crew of three were brought here to-day almost dead from hunger, cold and exposure.

The men say that several times steamers and oyster boats passed near enough for them to recognize both the boats and the men, but that no attention was paid to their calls for help until a volunteer crew from Mahon's light went to their rescue to-day.
