The Tories Are Cut to the Quick.

The editor of the Chronicle is solicitous of our welfare and is ever anxious to do something for us. We thank him for his courtesy and solicitude and regret we are unable to relieve his anxiety. One day he suggests we should be locked up in the Penitentiary until we repent of our waywardness and wilfulness in criticizing the policy of Sir Edward Morris, and another day his humanity suggests our commitment to the Lunatic Asylum until we can see eye to eye with him on public matters. We respect the honorable gentleman's suggestion as to the value of medical examination. No editor in the community and few laymen have his experience and can offer such strong personal testimony. The facts are against him and his vision is oblique. The Premier's petulant threat of the Penitentiary in the House of Assembly and his vicious attack on us at Bonne Bay prove that he is cut to the quick. Our exposures of the picknicking propensities of the Tory party, their grabbing, and the Morrison exposure in connection with the Anglo-American land grants, the Orange Bay letter, and the whitewashing of Morrison have shaken the Government to its very foundations. Similarly the facts are against him as to his statement that Sir Robert Bond had come in to help us in criticizing the Morris Agricultural Policy. Mr. McGrath is notorious for palming off facts as facts, and so it is in this instance. Sir Robert Bond was not in the Telegram Office on Tuesday, nor did we see him on Tuesday until hours after we had gone to press, nor have we had any communication or talk directly or indirectly with Sir Robert Bond on the question under reference for months past. On Tuesday last we showed that Sir Edward Morris approved of the policy of a

Scientific Farm in the Spring of 1908, and almost before the echoes of his voice had died away, for the sake of political expediency his party papers and pamphlets were denouncing the policy. When he was returned to power he wrecked the farm and dismissed the expert, and utilized the money to find a means of livelihood for three members of his party and to satisfy his greed for power. The policy has become the scotch of the people. Its failure is notorious. The four barrels of gold that Morris promised in 1908 he had lived 20 years longer and potatoes are not in greater abundance than before. There is no excess of hay being converted into meats by stock raisers. The potato canker is alarming agricultural societies. People are crying out for foreign hay. The Government has had to take off the duty and facilitate the sending away of gold that Morris promised should be kept at home. Farmers are asking for a Scientific Farm and an Experimental Farm, a policy which the Tory Government has condemned. What matters it what Sir Robert Bond condemned in 1887? In 1908 he had lived 20 years longer and learned much from his own experience in farming, and his visits to experimental stations and schools measured his opinion. Since then the policy has proved itself. The veritable miracles worked in Denmark, Ireland and Canada by scientific farming, expert advice and co-operative effort have demonstrated the soundness of the policy. Moreover, Sir Robert Bond's opposition as set forth in the amendments quoted by the Chronicle was purely provisional and temporary. Its very terms expressed the opinion that AT PRESENT, i.e., in 1887, the creation of a Board of Agriculture was inadvisable. No reference is made condemnatory of Model Farms, Experimental Stations, or Agricultural Schools in the motion quoted by the Chronicle as made by Sir Robert Bond. There is nothing in this which in any way condemns the principle of the establishment of these institutions. Now what did Morris do, after twenty years maturing of the opinions expressed in 1887? In the Spring of 1908 he approved of the principle of establishing Model Farms, Experimental Stations and the enacting of scientific farming experts. Immediately after he instituted a campaign against his convictions for partisan advantages. After the came in power in 1909 he dismissed the scientific farming expert and has engaged no other expert in his place. Now the farmers are clamouring for such an expert. What greater condemnation of the Morris policy could be exhibited. He uprooted the Experimental Station and sold it, and has provided no station in its place. The farmers are clamouring for one. What greater condemnation could be given to the Morris policy? In reference to this Mr. McGrath suggests the calling in of a lunacy expert. He's not far out. The only difference is as to the persons who should be the subjects of his examination. Most persons would say the persons responsible for the Agricultural Policy of the last three years, and particularly those responsible for the destruction of the policy instituted by Sir Robert Bond and for the spending of $6,000 a year to provide a livelihood to support three Tory members of the House of Assembly to vote for the master workman who provided this masterpiece of agricultural policy. Whether Dr. Tait will take on the job or not we do not know. But what we do know is that the people will take the case in their own hands next year and prevent the picnic irresponsibilities and the courteous editor of the Chronicle from doing further harm to the legions of the King.

Found Dead in Fishing Boat.

People who arrived by craft yesterday evening from that section say that a man named Thos. Reddy of S. E. Bight, Placentia Bay, a small place in Paradise Sound, was found dead in his boat a couple of days ago. The man who was over 60 years old went out alone on the fishing ground and while there a gale from S.W. by S. sprang up and a heavy sea ran. For two days there was no tidings of him until the boat was found stranded at Merasheen. The body lay in the ballast locker and the dead man had grasped the throat so firmly that it took some time to release his hands from it. The weather was terribly cold while he was away and it is thought he died of exposure and hardship. The boat when found was filled with water.

Marine Notes.

The Euphrates arrived here this afternoon and takes a full load of freight for Conception Bay ports tomorrow. The Schr. Rosa May arrived here yesterday from Western Bay with fish and also brought along another shipment of partridge berries.

The schr. Rudolph C. Capt. Parsons, arrived to Bishop & Sons today with 2,000 qts. of fish from St. John's. She reports fish plentiful along the French Shore but no bait.

The Fogota left Horwood at 7.30 a. m. today.

Completely Vindicated.

This morning the charge against Mrs. Collishaw of ill-treating a dog was tried by Judge Conroy. Mr. Dunfield conducted the case. After the complainant's case was complete, the judge said there was no case, and did not call on Mrs. Collishaw for her defence. He said the case should never have been brought before the court as the charge was unfounded. Last night we are told, the S. P. C. A. wished to abandon the case on the ground that there was no case to take before the court. Mr. Dunfield advised to the contrary and the result was the charge was dismissed without the accused being called upon for her defence.

Dogs Kill Cattle.

Tuesday night a pack of dogs from Petty Hr. raided sections of Kilbride killed poultry in some places and tore to pieces two fine young heifers owned by Mr. Nicholas Aylward. C. Stanley and J. Muggidge who were out late heard the brutes wrangling over the carcasses and shot three of them. This morning several of the people armed themselves and went through the woods shooting these ferocious brutes. The heifers killed were valued at $80.

Fatal Fun With Shocks.

One Boy Dead and Another Seriously Injured as Result of Play With Power Wires.

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 7.—Walter Krolitzki, aged ten years, son of Joseph Krolitzki, met with a horrible death and Leo Kujanik, aged nine years, had a miraculous escape from a similar fate on Saturday afternoon by an attempt of the lads to get a "shock" from the overhead Hydro Electric transmission wire between Berlin and Waterloo, with a voltage of 13,500.

A group of seven lads residing on Strange street were playing in the vicinity of the new rubber tire industry. Securing long pieces of telephone wire, they made a hook on the end, and Krolitzki and Kujanik first volunteered to take a shock. The former was the first to climb a maple tree close to the transmission line, and al-
