Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Morris' article, "West End Voter," after a week's delay is out again in yesterday's Herald intermingling the usual dose of abuse with fulsome flattery of the Premier. He opens his diatribe by the assertion that I was out with a letter in last evening's Telegram, the 26th, Monday. Why it is nearly a week since I replied to him and only yesterday he summoned enough courage to meet me. There is a facetious old Irish saying that "Every crow thinks its own bird the whitest" and evidently "West End Voter" believes that his "Picnic Premier" is the most immaculate specimen of the genus. At one time many in the West End were similarly obsessed but not so to-day. Their numbers are a negligible quantity and this W. E. V. as well as his master will find out before November next.

Mr. Editor I have so well gauged W. E. V. and have, without egotism, so clearly indicated him that the boot pinches hard. Again, I say that he is receiving nice pickings from the Government, and again, I challenge him to deny the same under his own signature. Who is the "coward" now, Mr. W. E. V.? The "liar" is well indicated. No friend, W. E. V., I do not associate with desperadoes or gunmen nor am I afraid of literary desperadoes of whom you are a type. Possibly when the next campaign is on you will find congenial employment with such in attempting as was done last contest to break up political meetings of Liberals and down free speech. Try it on this time and you will get a Roland for your Oliver. You compare Morris with Bond. Your comparison is odious. Bond is honourable. Morris is not. Bond made Morris, yet Morris the ingrate bid his time to knife him, and for years before he seceded from his leader he was disloyal to him and could scarce hide his aversion. By the way, has only Edward over candidly explained to the people why he quit the Liberal for the Tory Party. When he said it was because of a refusal to raise the wages of laborers he was only again as always "coddling." Coddling and bluff has carried him through thus far and has incidentally added $7,000,000 to the burdens of our unfortunate taxpayers and if he is given another lease of power will add $7,000,000 more. I reiterate that Morris is a coddler and that epitome of his political creed is to be found in his strict observance of the "Eleventh commandment" to the detriment, as I said before, of the old time Decalogue.

As regards coddling permit me to remind you that you are an apt pupil of a proficient master. You also are a "cod" a term which seemingly has lost any vulgarity it possessed owing to frequent use and the obviousness of its meaning. Morris is coddling the country brazenly and openly now at this writing by pretending that you, W. E. V., and the like of you are writing and upholding him from disinterested motives. You write your letters at so much per. You are coddling the people when you lend colour to this by writing what in your secret heart you know to be false and receiving for your falsification the patronage which is all and all to the avaricious and small minded. As to the issue of the future we Liberals are not at all fearful.

Morris is to-day looking for the legion of friends he had in the West End four years ago but he finds them not. Be sure your sins will find you out. It is as true to-day as when uttered. Bluff, coddling and false promises have had their day. Morris has been weighed in the balance by St. John's West and has been found wanting. When the Liberals and the Liberal sentiment now prevailing in the West End are done with him in November it will be easy to talk to him. It will take more than those of the HK of the vitriolic W. E. V. to save him. Both he and his corrupt Government of squanders will get their right position, the quiet repose of private life when their fangs will be drawn and they will do no more harm. Au revoir, Mr. W. E. V. With thanks, Mr. Editor. I am, yours truly,
WEST END LIBERAL.

Penny Platform Tickets

Following the example of the London and South Western Railway Co., of charging a penny for admission to station platforms, which, as stated in the Daily Graphic, was inaugurated at Waterloo, the Railway Companies Association recommends the general adoption of the practice.

A similar system is already in vogue on the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway at their Manchester station, and at a number of other stations owned by various companies. It is estimated that the L. and S.W. and L. and Y. companies will derive £1,500 a year each from the partial adoption of the scheme. If applied to all the more important stations on the systems, the big English and Scottish lines would total £886,000 a year. Taking the fifty principal railway companies in the United Kingdom it is estimated that their receipts would be increased by at least £2,000,000 if they adopt the principle of platform tickets generally.

Monuments of 100 Years' Peace.

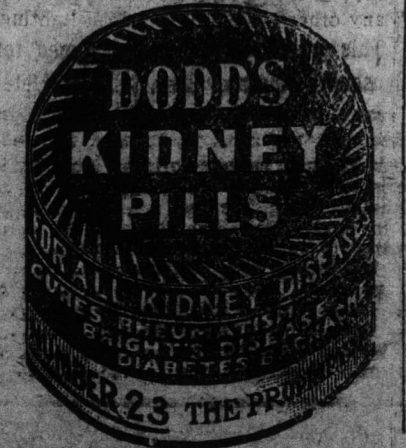

The British delegates to the International Conference which is to arrange the celebration of the centenary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent last evening considered a proposal for the erection of peace monuments by Great Britain and the United States through popular or private subscriptions.

The schemes provides for the corner-stones of the monuments to be laid on the same day by King George and President Wilson, while simultaneously work in both countries and the colonies would cease for five minutes, the school children taking a prominent part in the celebration.

Literary Taste Of the Chinese.

At the annual meeting of the Christian Literature Society of China at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, recently, the Rev. James Johnson said several books had been translated into Chinese during the year, including "The Life of Abraham Lincoln" and Carlyle's "Heroes and Hero-worship." It was necessary to give a correct literary finish to these translations, as the Chinese are a very particular people.

At the Finish.

Oh say, what is this thing called Fame, and is it worth our while? We seek it till we're old and lame, for weary mile on mile; we seek a gem among the hay, for wheat among the chaff; and in the end some heartless jay will write our epitaph. The naked facts it will relate, and little else beside: "This man was born on such a date, on such a date he died." The gravestones in the boneyard tell all we shall ever know of men who struggled passing well for glory, long ago; they had their iridescent schemes and lived to see them fall; they had their dreams, as you have dreams, and all of no avail. The gravestones calmly tell their fate, the upshot of their pride: "This man was born on such a date, on such a date he died." The great men of your father's time, with laurel on each brow, the theme of every poet's rhyme—where are those giants now? Their names are written in the books which no one ever reads; and on the school where no one looks—the record of their deeds. The idler by the churchyard gate this legend hath espied: "This man was born on such a date, on such a date he died."

Racing Act at Rossley's.

One of the finest comedies seen will be given to-night by the Lorraine Buchanan Co. It is a case of mistaken identity and an awful mix-up. The funny situations will be a scream. It is different from anything ever presented at Rossley's, a horse racing sketch. Billy Devan will sing again and Miss Deal is to give some more dainty impersonations of children, and will show some fine dancing. Harry Ingram has a splendid song. There are new pictures and latest selections by the Star orchestra. There was great crowds last night, and every one declares it the very finest company ever at Rossley's theatre.
