Herculean spirit, however: out compromise that one can remember, and we can not all be Satans. Our good humor betrays us, or our comchocolate and coffee-beans to take out to the Germans in whose house he is billeted in Cologne. Most of us are like that. We put pleasure before duty, and we abandon the loftiest purpose in order to perform some childish act of kindness. If our Cabinet Ministers were not made of sterner stuff, we should probably by this time be allowing German women and children to be fed. The thought of a child holding out its thin arms and wailing in its hunger, so far from causing us pleasure, almost causes us a stab at the heart. What recreants If you are contemplating Plumbing or Heating your home, see me. Can we are-flabby recreants! We are no good at hating.

'None the less, duty must be done even if it is at the cost of our fine feelings. It must be done, even if it is at the cost of our pockets. And we can not expect to go on hating the Germans without our pockets suffer ing. Obviously, we can not trade with people we deeply loathe, and so we are bound to lose one of the great markets of the world to those less loss will, fortunately, be France's and America's gain. We have no wish to criticize friendly nations, but we are afraid it must be admitted that in every country except our own the passion of self-interest is stronger than the passion of hate. What other nation besides our own will willingly impoverish itself for the sake of an abstract people?"

Papers like the Brooklyn Eagle and the Springfield Republican bid us lay aside our wrath. The British editor loes so on the score of politeness, and The Eagle insists "we can allow no feet of every hard corn, soft corn one to exceed us in politeness." The publican finds it time to begin cul-

Mr. Gregoire is well known in and around Halifax, and for the last thirty-eight years has been employed by the Dominion government as expert marine diver.
In speaking further about his experience with Tanlac, he said: "For the past three or four years I have suffered something awful with stomach trouble and indigestion.
