Seven Men Killed and Twenty More or Less Scalded.

A Scene of Horror-Names of the Dead and Injured Men.

COMBER, Ont., Sept. 17 .- A boiler in Messrs. Force & Dickinson's stave mill at Staples, a small village on the Leamington Staples, a smail vindey, four miles from here, exploded this morning, by which seven men were killed outright, one fatally injured and about twenty more or less scaided.

About 6:30 a.m. the night watchman gave way to the regular day engineer. At that time there were 25 pounds of steam in the boiler that exploded. The fire was increased, and it is supposed that there were fully 80 pounds' pressure on the boiler at the time of the accident. Fortunately there were a great number of the hands absent, owing to the early hour, or likely the fatality would have been greater. The scene is horrible in the extreme. Arms and limbs are literally torn from their bodies, while the skulis of the victims were crushed and the brains minus. Drs. Abbott and Anderson, of Comber, were summoned and did all in their power to relieve the wounded.

Those dead are: John Ewing, Michael Dupuis, Jos. Papineau, Isaiah Chauvin, Jerome Chauvin (two brothers). Peter Daust and Maiz Ouelette.

J. Boane is fatally scalded, and there are between fifteen and twenty slightly scalded.

The air is full of rumors regarding the condition of the boiler. Some contend it was old and unfit for use, while an employe of the mill asserts that the boilers were in good running condition, but that he believe scales had formed on the plate and interrupted some of the valves.

The boiler was carried fully 200 feet, passing in its flight between two residences. Bricks and other debris were carried in all directions, but the houses in the neighborhood escaped with a few broken windows.

The two Chauvins and Daust were single men; the others were all married, with families depending on them for support.

Coroner Abbott has empaneled a jury, and an inquest will be held to-morrow at 10 a.m. About 6:30 a.m. the night watchman gav

The grounds to-day present an appearonee most enlivening, and one had but to look at them to realize that the Fair has really begun. From early morn the rising generation poured through the turnsiles until the spacious lawn of the park thronged with juveniles. The refreshment stands, the fakirs, the illusions and the musical cats started business in earnest, while the fat woman and the wild man from Borneo under canvass held the fort until the ring attractions commenced. The prattling children surged through the main building admiring the rich and elaborate dieplays, asking questions innumerable and pocketing business eards by the hundred. Their mouths watered at the sight of the luscious fruit, and they gazed with delight at the floral display in the horticultural hall. The big pumpkins and prize roots, the buzz of machinery, the live stock, the flaring pictures on the show tents, and the thousand and one met things in the panorama of the Fair were all innocent sources of wonder and delight. The attendance was not confined to the little ones. Hundreds of adults were on the grounds, and the recipts cannot fail to show a gratifying increase over the corresponding day last

Why the Negro Withstands Miasme. [Louisville Courier-Journal.]

The negro man by nature requires at least twice if not three times the carbon his blood that the white man will bear, and if you work him out in the hills in an atmosphere but slightly impregnated with carbonic acid gas he will wrap his head up in his blanket and breath under it all night in order to supply his system with the requisite amount of carbon. This peculiarity of his nature qualifies him to labour without detriment to health in the miasmatic and carbonized atmosphere of our swamps and the most fertile lands of southern countries where the white man's health and perhaps his life is jeoparded the day he sets his foot there as a laborer in the hot southern Sun.
