

LITTLE VIXEN

"Lordy, honey, you look just like you did that day when you was de May Queen! I recollect it jest as well as if it was yesterday," exclaimed old Phebe. "But, dear Miss Dawn, when is you gwine to claim yer rights and dribe dat snake in de grass away?"

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

"I shall tell her all today; but mind, Aunt Phebe, and don't betray me before I speak. Now, give me my sun hat and parasol. I am going to slip away to the graveyard, to poor Joseph's grave."

Like a flash the dim light that had been breaking in on Lettie's mind flashed up clearly. The haunting likeness of Dawn to Vixen resolved itself into identity. She clutched her rival's arm in a fierce, steady grasp.

"My God, you are little Vixen!" she hissed, sharply.

"Yes, Dawn answered, with a little note of triumph in her voice. She looked in her rival's face with clear blue eyes and saw that Lettie had grown ashen pale, and that her eyes were almost starting from her head in terror.

"Do not look so frightened, Lettie. I am little Vixen, indeed; but I am not going to eat you," she said, laughing.

CHAPTER XXII.

Lettie caught her breath with a sharp gasp of rage at Dawn's soft little laugh. With returning courage she said softly, so as not to be overheard by anyone near:

"I—I always thought you looked like Vixen Jarvis. But I can't understand what it all means—your name—your position—your—"

Dawn interrupted, calmly:

"It means that I have been masquerading like yourself, Lettie."

Her beautiful face flushed from her with paling cheeks, muttering agitatedly:

"Masquerading?"

"That was what I said," Dawn answered, coolly. "Really, Lettie, I have been amused at your hardness in usurping my name, my place, my rights!"

"It is false!" the impostor muttered, fiercely; but a mortal shudder thrilled her as she felt her chateau en Espagne falling into ruins.

At that moment Miss De Navarre and the other young lady visitors came rustling out on the porch toward them.

Lettie looked ready to faint. Was Vixen going to expose her before them all, hold her up to their ridicule and scorn—the ambitious daughter of the honest old gardener, the impostor who had passed before them all in stolen trappings of grandeur?

But her foe was more merciful than she deemed. She drew Lettie's arm through her own with a playful gesture.

"Pardon us, young ladies, we are talking secrets," she said, laughing, and led Lettie down the road.

It was a long time before Lettie could get her thoughts together. Then she said: "Your wicked game is played to the end. My father—my own father, and Mrs. Douglas's husband—will be here tomorrow, and he has vowed to keep silence no longer. He will expose you to the people you have deceived, and to the world."

[To be Continued.]

THE EMERGENCY RATIONS

Mr. Monk Wanted the Minister of Militia Condemned First and Tried Afterwards.

Wind Taken Out of the Opposition's Sails by the Prompt Step of the Government to Investigate the Charges—A Forecast of the Year's Business.

[From our Ottawa correspondent.]

Ottawa, June 25.—The course followed by the opposition in connection with the emergency rations is one scarcely likely to commend itself even to their own supporters who are inclined to be fair and reasonable. It will be remembered that Mr. Monk, the member for Jacques Cartier, who first brought the matter to the attention of the House, read a formal statement containing nineteen paragraphs, the first eighteen of which set forth in detail the facts that are alleged to have occurred in connection with the purchasing of a quantity of concentrated food or emergency rations for the boys in South Africa. Upon those facts as thus set forth, Mr. Monk charged in the nineteenth paragraph, that the Minister of Militia "was guilty of gross and culpable negligence," and wound up his statement by a resolution calling for a committee of investigation.

HANG HIM FIRST AND THEN TRY HIM.

The government had promised the committee in advance, even before the indictment was formulated, for up-on the first intimation from Mr. Monk that he would bring charges against the government, the premier had instantly replied, "Submit your charges and you shall have your committee."

But Sir Wilfrid very properly took exception to that nineteenth paragraph, which declared that the Minister of Militia was guilty of grave dereliction of duty before hearing a word of evidence, and he required that that clause should be struck out of the statement before it could be submitted to the committee, saying that the committee should investigate the allegations contained in the rest of the statement and report thereon to the House, and it would then be within the province of the House to pass judgment, after the evidence had been produced and both sides heard. It would have seemed impossible that any objection be taken to a proposal so manifestly in accord with all the recognized and accepted principles of British judicial procedure.

BRITISH JUDICIAL PROCEDURE, but the opposition evidently thought it would be safer to condemn the Minister first and try him afterwards; such a contention, however, does not impress one with the idea that they have very much faith in the strength of their charges against the government.

The division upon the amendment to strike out the nineteenth paragraph gave the government a majority of 16 only, and the opposition appeared to derive immense satisfaction from it being so small, but of course the reason was simply that, being Friday night, at least 30 of the Quebec members had gone home for Sunday; the absentees were not paired because there were no pairs for them. The opposition and the country knows perfectly well that there is no significance whatever in the small majority, and that the ranks of the government's supporters remain unbroken.

A FORECAST OF THE YEAR'S TRADE.

The fiscal year is rapidly drawing to a close, and in a few weeks the country will be in possession of the trade figures for the completed twelve months. On the basis of the imports entered for consumption and the total exports, the trade for the eleven months ending May 31 was $323,596,476.

Taking the same basis the year under Conservative regime was 1898 when the total trade amounted to $240,269,382, showing a balance in favor of the present government amounting to no less than $83,327,094 for a period of only eleven months, as compared with a full year. With respect to exports the favorable showing on the Liberal side is almost equally as great. The exports in the last eleven months under Liberal rule exceeded those in the best year under Conservative administration by $40,210,928. A great advance is also apparent in the exports of Canadian produce only, for as compared with the whole of 1898 the difference of $31,547,355 in favor of the last eleven months. On the basis of imports for consumption and exports, the total trade for the eleven months as already stated was $323,596,476, while for the whole of last year this trade totalled $312,000,000 or a balance in favor of the eleven months of the present year of $11,596,000 with yet another month of the fiscal year to run.

On the same basis for the whole of the present year it is estimated that the trade will amount to $350,000,000, which would give a still better showing. The aggregate total imports and exports for the twelve months ending June 30, may safely be placed at $390,000,000, as compared with $321,000,000, or a balance in favor of the present year of nearly $40,000,000. The best showing that the late government could make in the aggregate imports and exports was $247,000,000, but the end of the present fiscal year will see these figures outdistanced by $115,000,000.

Taking the figures for the month of May the total imports show an increase over May of last year of $2,171,129. For the eleven months of the present year the imports have increased to the amount of $26,532,380, and the exports $1,256,812. The exports of Canadian produce for the month of May shows an increase of over $1,200,000 as compared with May 1899, notwithstanding that the supply of vessels at Montreal this spring did not begin to meet the demands of shippers owing to the war in South Africa. The exports of the eleven months of the present year show an increase of $19,777,000 over those of last year, the total imports and exports for the past month amounted to $25,963,651, an increase over those of May, 1899, of $13,433,000, or more than 100 per cent.

CANADA'S PULP TRADE.

A correspondent of the Paper Mill, a prominent journal, makes the following estimate of Canada's foreign trade in pulp-wood, pulp and paper: "The value of the exports of pulp was $1,275,000, against $740,000 in the fiscal year 1897-98; that is, an increase of $535,000. Nearly the whole of this import gain is to be credited to the British market. Last year Britain's imports of pulp from Canada amounted to $670,000 as against only $165,000 the year before, bounding up $505,000 in the single twelve months. To put the case otherwise, Britain's imports of Canadian pulp were last year more than four times as great as they were the year before." Much of this improved condition of the pulp trade is due to the far-sighted policy of both the Federal and the Ontario local governments in offering substantial inducements to British capital to develop the industry in the Dominion. But so far from offering any encouragement or assistance to the administration in this wise and businesslike policy, the Opposition in both parliaments have done all in their power to hinder the work of bringing in British capital to develop our national resources, which, but for this assistance would remain unexploited for many a long year. In making this statement it is not suggested that this was the deliberate intention of the Opposition, but that it would have been the actual outcome, had their policy been successful, must be admitted by all who have made themselves acquainted with the facts of the case.

On the same basis for the whole of the present year it is estimated that the trade will amount to $350,000,000, which would give a still better showing. The aggregate total imports and exports for the twelve months ending June 30, may safely be placed at $390,000,000, as compared with $321,000,000, or a balance in favor of the present year of nearly $40,000,000. The best showing that the late government could make in the aggregate imports and exports was $247,000,000, but the end of the present fiscal year will see these figures outdistanced by $115,000,000.

Taking the figures for the month of May the total imports show an increase over May of last year of $2,171,129. For the eleven months of the present year the imports have increased to the amount of $26,532,380, and the exports $1,256,812. The exports of Canadian produce for the month of May shows an increase of over $1,200,000 as compared with May 1899, notwithstanding that the supply of vessels at Montreal this spring did not begin to meet the demands of shippers owing to the war in South Africa. The exports of the eleven months of the present year show an increase of $19,777,000 over those of last year, the total imports and exports for the past month amounted to $25,963,651, an increase over those of May, 1899, of $13,433,000, or more than 100 per cent.

CANADA'S PULP TRADE.

A correspondent of the Paper Mill, a prominent journal, makes the following estimate of Canada's foreign trade in pulp-wood, pulp and paper: "The value of the exports of pulp was $1,275,000, against $740,000 in the fiscal year 1897-98; that is, an increase of $535,000. Nearly the whole of this import gain is to be credited to the British market. Last year Britain's imports of pulp from Canada amounted to $670,000 as against only $165,000 the year before, bounding up $505,000 in the single twelve months. To put the case otherwise, Britain's imports of Canadian pulp were last year more than four times as great as they were the year before." Much of this improved condition of the pulp trade is due to the far-sighted policy of both the Federal and the Ontario local governments in offering substantial inducements to British capital to develop the industry in the Dominion. But so far from offering any encouragement or assistance to the administration in this wise and businesslike policy, the Opposition in both parliaments have done all in their power to hinder the work of bringing in British capital to develop our national resources, which, but for this assistance would remain unexploited for many a long year. In making this statement it is not suggested that this was the deliberate intention of the Opposition, but that it would have been the actual outcome, had their policy been successful, must be admitted by all who have made themselves acquainted with the facts of the case.

On the same basis for the whole of the present year it is estimated that the trade will amount to $350,000,000, which would give a still better showing. The aggregate total imports and exports for the twelve months ending June 30, may safely be placed at $390,000,000, as compared with $321,000,000, or a balance in favor of the present year of nearly $40,000,000. The best showing that the late government could make in the aggregate imports and exports was $247,000,000, but the end of the present fiscal year will see these figures outdistanced by $115,000,000.

Taking the figures for the month of May the total imports show an increase over May of last year of $2,171,129. For the eleven months of the present year the imports have increased to the amount of $26,532,380, and the exports $1,256,812. The exports of Canadian produce for the month of May shows an increase of over $1,200,000 as compared with May 1899, notwithstanding that the supply of vessels at Montreal this spring did not begin to meet the demands of shippers owing to the war in South Africa. The exports of the eleven months of the present year show an increase of $19,777,000 over those of last year, the total imports and exports for the past month amounted to $25,963,651, an increase over those of May, 1899, of $13,433,000, or more than 100 per cent.

CANADA'S PULP TRADE.

A correspondent of the Paper Mill, a prominent journal, makes the following estimate of Canada's foreign trade in pulp-wood, pulp and paper: "The value of the exports of pulp was $1,275,000, against $740,000 in the fiscal year 1897-98; that is, an increase of $535,000. Nearly the whole of this import gain is to be credited to the British market. Last year Britain's imports of pulp from Canada amounted to $670,000 as against only $165,000 the year before, bounding up $505,000 in the single twelve months. To put the case otherwise, Britain's imports of Canadian pulp were last year more than four times as great as they were the year before." Much of this improved condition of the pulp trade is due to the far-sighted policy of both the Federal and the Ontario local governments in offering substantial inducements to British capital to develop the industry in the Dominion. But so far from offering any encouragement or assistance to the administration in this wise and businesslike policy, the Opposition in both parliaments have done all in their power to hinder the work of bringing in British capital to develop our national resources, which, but for this assistance would remain unexploited for many a long year. In making this statement it is not suggested that this was the deliberate intention of the Opposition, but that it would have been the actual outcome, had their policy been successful, must be admitted by all who have made themselves acquainted with the facts of the case.

On the same basis for the whole of the present year it is estimated that the trade will amount to $350,000,000, which would give a still better showing. The aggregate total imports and exports for the twelve months ending June 30, may safely be placed at $390,000,000, as compared with $321,000,000, or a balance in favor of the present year of nearly $40,000,000. The best showing that the late government could make in the aggregate imports and exports was $247,000,000, but the end of the present fiscal year will see these figures outdistanced by $115,000,000.

Taking the figures for the month of May the total imports show an increase over May of last year of $2,171,129. For the eleven months of the present year the imports have increased to the amount of $26,532,380, and the exports $1,256,812. The exports of Canadian produce for the month of May shows an increase of over $1,200,000 as compared with May 1899, notwithstanding that the supply of vessels at Montreal this spring did not begin to meet the demands of shippers owing to the war in South Africa. The exports of the eleven months of the present year show an increase of $19,777,000 over those of last year, the total imports and exports for the past month amounted to $25,963,651, an increase over those of May, 1899, of $13,433,000, or more than 100 per cent.

CANADA'S PULP TRADE.

A correspondent of the Paper Mill, a prominent journal, makes the following estimate of Canada's foreign trade in pulp-wood, pulp and paper: "The value of the exports of pulp was $1,275,000, against $740,000 in the fiscal year 1897-98; that is, an increase of $535,000. Nearly the whole of this import gain is to be credited to the British market. Last year Britain's imports of pulp from Canada amounted to $670,000 as against only $165,000 the year before, bounding up $505,000 in the single twelve months. To put the case otherwise, Britain's imports of Canadian pulp were last year more than four times as great as they were the year before." Much of this improved condition of the pulp trade is due to the far-sighted policy of both the Federal and the Ontario local governments in offering substantial inducements to British capital to develop the industry in the Dominion. But so far from offering any encouragement or assistance to the administration in this wise and businesslike policy, the Opposition in both parliaments have done all in their power to hinder the work of bringing in British capital to develop our national resources, which, but for this assistance would remain unexploited for many a long year. In making this statement it is not suggested that this was the deliberate intention of the Opposition, but that it would have been the actual outcome, had their policy been successful, must be admitted by all who have made themselves acquainted with the facts of the case.

On the same basis for the whole of the present year it is estimated that the trade will amount to $350,000,000, which would give a still better showing. The aggregate total imports and exports for the twelve months ending June 30, may safely be placed at $390,000,000, as compared with $321,000,000, or a balance in favor of the present year of nearly $40,000,000. The best showing that the late government could make in the aggregate imports and exports was $247,000,000, but the end of the present fiscal year will see these figures outdistanced by $115,000,000.

Taking the figures for the month of May the total imports show an increase over May of last year of $2,171,129. For the eleven months of the present year the imports have increased to the amount of $26,532,380, and the exports $1,256,812. The exports of Canadian produce for the month of May shows an increase of over $1,200,000 as compared with May 1899, notwithstanding that the supply of vessels at Montreal this spring did not begin to meet the demands of shippers owing to the war in South Africa. The exports of the eleven months of the present year show an increase of $19,777,000 over those of last year, the total imports and exports for the past month amounted to $25,963,651, an increase over those of May, 1899, of $13,433,000, or more than 100 per cent.

CANADA'S PULP TRADE.

A correspondent of the Paper Mill, a prominent journal, makes the following estimate of Canada's foreign trade in pulp-wood, pulp and paper: "The value of the exports of pulp was $1,275,000, against $740,000 in the fiscal year 1897-98; that is, an increase of $535,000. Nearly the whole of this import gain is to be credited to the British market. Last year Britain's imports of pulp from Canada amounted to $670,000 as against only $165,000 the year before, bounding up $505,000 in the single twelve months. To put the case otherwise, Britain's imports of Canadian pulp were last year more than four times as great as they were the year before." Much of this improved condition of the pulp trade is due to the far-sighted policy of both the Federal and the Ontario local governments in offering substantial inducements to British capital to develop the industry in the Dominion. But so far from offering any encouragement or assistance to the administration in this wise and businesslike policy, the Opposition in both parliaments have done all in their power to hinder the work of bringing in British capital to develop our national resources, which, but for this assistance would remain unexploited for many a long year. In making this statement it is not suggested that this was the deliberate intention of the Opposition, but that it would have been the actual outcome, had their policy been successful, must be admitted by all who have made themselves acquainted with the facts of the case.

On the same basis for the whole of the present year it is estimated that the trade will amount to $350,000,000, which would give a still better showing. The aggregate total imports and exports for the twelve months ending June 30, may safely be placed at $390,000,000, as compared with $321,000,000, or a balance in favor of the present year of nearly $40,000,000. The best showing that the late government could make in the aggregate imports and exports was $247,000,000, but the end of the present fiscal year will see these figures outdistanced by $115,000,000.

Taking the figures for the month of May the total imports show an increase over May of last year of $2,171,129. For the eleven months of the present year the imports have increased to the amount of $26,532,380, and the exports $1,256,812. The exports of Canadian produce for the month of May shows an increase of over $1,200,000 as compared with May 1899, notwithstanding that the supply of vessels at Montreal this spring did not begin to meet the demands of shippers owing to the war in South Africa. The exports of the eleven months of the present year show an increase of $19,777,000 over those of last year, the total imports and exports for the past month amounted to $25,963,651, an increase over those of May, 1899, of $13,433,000, or more than 100 per cent.

CANADA'S PULP TRADE.

A correspondent of the Paper Mill, a prominent journal, makes the following estimate of Canada's foreign trade in pulp-wood, pulp and paper: "The value of the exports of pulp was $1,275,000, against $740,000 in the fiscal year 1897-98; that is, an increase of $535,000. Nearly the whole of this import gain is to be credited to the British market. Last year Britain's imports of pulp from Canada amounted to $670,000 as against only $165,000 the year before, bounding up $505,000 in the single twelve months. To put the case otherwise, Britain's imports of Canadian pulp were last year more than four times as great as they were the year before." Much of this improved condition of the pulp trade is due to the far-sighted policy of both the Federal and the Ontario local governments in offering substantial inducements to British capital to develop the industry in the Dominion. But so far from offering any encouragement or assistance to the administration in this wise and businesslike policy, the Opposition in both parliaments have done all in their power to hinder the work of bringing in British capital to develop our national resources, which, but for this assistance would remain unexploited for many a long year. In making this statement it is not suggested that this was the deliberate intention of the Opposition, but that it would have been the actual outcome, had their policy been successful, must be admitted by all who have made themselves acquainted with the facts of the case.

Granitewear

Pie Plates 5c
White Granite Pudding Dishes 5c
White Granite Skimmers 5c
Deep and Oblong Pudding Dishes, regular 4c, sale price 15c
Granite Mugs 5c
White Granite Round Pudding Dishes, reduced to 25c
Wash Basins 25c
Granite Jugs 15c
Fly Traps 15c
Tea and Coffee Pots, prices from 30c to 40c, your choice 25c

China

10c Bread and Butter Plates 5c
15c Bread and Butter Plates 10c
Decorated Cups and Saucers, in gray, blue, brown and green, only 7c
Tea and Dinner Plates to match, special 7c
Big reduction in our glass department for Saturday, Berry Sets, Water Sets, Napkins, Large Berry Dishes, Tumblers, Water Glasses, Jelly Glasses, Fruit Jars, etc.

Tinware

Watering Cans, painted 20c to 50c
Watering Cans, plain 15c to 40c
Large Meat Covers 20c
Fly Traps 15c
Window screens, adjustable to any size 20c to 50c
Coal Oil Stoves, all sizes.
Copper Kettles, Nickel-plated, only a few of No. 9 left; these kettles away with $1.25, our special Saturday sale only 85c
Funnels 5c
Funnel, with strainer 15c
Fruit Fillers 5c
Sand Pails 5c
Sand Shovels 5c
Clothes Wringing Cans 10c and 15c
Toy Dust Pans 5c
Toy Brooms 10c
Toy Bath Tubs 5c
Brooms, all prices.
Whisks, all new corn 7c to 35c
Whiskers, fine points, per pkg 5c
Salt Boxes 20c
Knife Boxes 15c
Rolling Pins 10c
Pastry Boards, best white wood 10c
Tubs, from 35c to 45c
Wash Boards, from 10c to 25c
Clothes Lines 5c to 25c
Japanese Fans, special for Saturday, 3 for 5c

Refrigerators

Only a few left, and these must be closed out to make room for other goods. Every Refrigerator marked away down actual value. Do not miss this grand chance, if you have any need of a Refrigerator.

BARGAINS FOR SATURDAY

Special Reductions in Dress Skirts for the Holiday.

Music

Full line of all the new Music, Two-Steps, Waltzes, Songs, etc., 10c, or 3 for 25c
Also another line, including almost all priced music, which we will close out at 5c
We keep the newest Patriotic Music: Another Little Patch of Red, Sons of the Empire.
Her Majesty,
Johnny Cannuck's the Lad, Young Canada Was There, Land of the Maple, Soldiers of the Queen, Blue and the Gray, Soldiers of Canada, Write a Few Lines to Mother, When Johnny Cannuck Comes Home, Bunch of Blackberries, Popular Two-Step and Cakewalk.

Stationery

Khaki Note Paper and Envelopes to match.
Flag Note Paper, fine quality note paper, with Union Jack in corner.
French Origami Note, the Newest and Most Dainty of Note Paper, in cream and tints.
Khaki Booklet, with patriotic poem and natural flowers pressed; a most handsome patriotic souvenir; only a few left.
CHILDREN'S NEW BOOKS.

Wood's Natural History, Anderson's Fairy Tales, Through the Looking-Glass, The Little Lane Prince, Grimm's Fairy Tales, Story of the Bible; all beautiful Gifts for Young People, handsomely illustrated, good paper and large clear type.

LATEST LITERATURE—London to Ladyship (Winston Spencer Churchill); The Legionaries (Henry Clark); The Voice of the People (Ellen Glasgow); The Alabaster Box (Walter Besant); Ordered South (Mrs. Williamson); No. 5 John Street (Richard Whiting); A Kent Squire (Lytton); The Transvaal from Within (Fitzpatrick); Strong Arm (Barr); Shakespeare's Works, illustrated, unabridged, with memoir, good binding, Saturday price $1.00

PAPER BOUND BOOKS—Special for Saturday—Southworth's Books, complete, special,