London, Monday, May 23.-The Times correspondent on the dispatch boat Haimun, in a wireless message sent by way of Wei Hai Wei, says he is still not allowed to enter the real theater of war, but he claims to make a more accurate estimate of the conditions where he is than he has hitherto done. According to his information Gen. Kuroki found it necessary to halt at Feng Wang Cheng to pull his force together for an advance over the heavy country lying between him and Liao Yang, and to await the landing of the third army, which will advance north towards the same objective until able to co-operate with him. Apparently Gen. Kuroki has suffered annovance by Cossacks menacing his communications. Accordingly the troops guarding the communications have been reinforced by reserve battalions from Japan. The Russians on Gen. Kuroki's front maintain observation groups, which are in constant touch with the Japanese outposts.

The fortunes of Gen. Oku's army show some success, but he is meeting with stubborn resistance. The division that landed in Kin Chau Bay, isolating Port Arthur, will have the duty of reducing the fortress. The untoward events of the past week will stimulate the Japanese to reduce the fortress by a coup de main. There is every indication that the Russians are making strenuous efforts to prevent its too rapid fall. The guns rom their disabled ships have been placed in recently constructed shore batteries, a succession of which cover he northeastern approaches of Kin Chau, and also cover the approaches to Dalny, which up to Sunday, May 2, the Japanese had not occupied. Although the ultimate case of Port Arthur is hopeless, if the Russians maintain the attitude their field works indicate, it will not fall without Considerable supplies of food still reach Pigeon Bay by junks from China.
