ELDERLY TRAVELLER DIES VERY SUDDENLY IN HOTEL

E. C. Bell, representative of a St Louis firm, dealing in phosphates and sodas, died very suddenly in the lobby of the Tecumseh House last evening shortly before 7 o'clock. He came in on the local train from Toronto and registered at the hotel at about 61 o'clock. He crossed from the desk to a chair and sat there quietly, and a little later Guy M. Ferguson, the manager of the hotel, noticed that he was stiffening in his seat and was apparently ill. Mr. Ferguson went to his assistance, and had a telephone call sent in to Dr. Wm. MORE LIQUOR HERE, BUT FEWER DRUNKS REACH POLICE COURT

Perhaps Because Quality Better Than Bootleggers' Stuff.

Although liquor has been flowing into London for the past two weeks at a good regular swish, police court officlais declare that there has been no extra drunkenness in the city as a result, in fact the drunks picked up by the police have been fewer in number Whether this is due to the superiority of "regular" stuff over the bootlegging variety is not known, although it is suspected that it is. The fact remains that there is a lot of pain-killer arriving every, day and the consignees are either hoarding up the liquid joy for future celebrations or dispensing it out with cars behind closed doors.

More booze—less drunkenness. License Inspector J. E. Keenleyside admitted "maybe it is the good quality of the stuff that is coming in," he said. "I don't think that it is as poisonous as some that I have seen."

When asked as to the quantity of liquor that was being brought into London, he stated that there were very few large orders. There were many citizens, however, who were getting in a case or two.

"Who are these pepole?" he was asked.

"Wall you would be surprised if I of "regular" stuff over the bootlegging "Well you would be surprised if told you," he said.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY CONCERT WAS MOST SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Everyone Present, Including the Entertainers, Thoroughly Enjoyed It.

The skirl of the bagpipes and the ramp of the small feet of Sammy Munroe opened the great Burns' Anniversary concert held in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium last night, and at the same time opened the heart of every Same time opened the heart of every Scotchman present. It was more than a concert, It was a truly Scottish social gathering, and every man, woman and child there, and every singer and entertainer thoroughly enjoyed it from beginning to end, and the concert stretched itself out so that the encores had to be chopped off to permit of the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" before all the babies had gone to sleep for the night.

the babies had gone to sleep for the night.

Jean Anderson Thirde, a true Scottish soprano from Toronto, delighted the audience with her numbers. Among them were such songs as "Comin' Through the Rye," "The Standard on the Braes o' Mar," and "The Dear Auld Hame," sung with an enthusiasm and dramatic feeling which is seidom heard. Her numbers with A. G. McCulloch, baritone, "The Crooked Bawbee" and "When Ye Gang Awa', Jamie," were among the most delightful of the evening. Both singers were able to enter into the songs in such a dramatic way that they took the house by storm. A. G. McCulloch's solo numbers were also excellent, and Miss Ruth Robinson, contraito, who took the place of Miss S. McDonald Fraser of Toronto on short notice, added several attractive numbers to the program.

The comic hit of the evening was made by J. B. Ballantyne, a Scotchman with an appreciation for a Scottish sense of humor. His "readings," which in his own words "were particularly fine, because I made them myself," called down the house. And yet they were no finer than his ticularly fine, because I made them myself," called down the house. And yet they were no finer than his Scotch comic songs and the "stride" to which he did them. His mimicry of the bagpipes on the violin could not have been outdone.

And then the prettiest numbers of al. were then put on by Sammy and Dorothy Munroe, which were a mingling of delightful comic songs, pretty costumes and graceful dance steps. "Ye Olde Tyme Minuet" was preety beyond words, and "I love to Be a Sailor" was full of humor of the genuing Harry Lauder type.
