Shanghai, Sept. 10.—To one, bluejacketed cruiser in this port, a battle with Japanese officers and men, broke up the fight by revolvers, firing repeated shots. Many Japanese wounded but were not companions.

The fight started at a Japanese officer's atrocious assault upon a European woman, with the English "jackie" A well organized, and with the Japanese letter from the Japanese to the municipality was of a highly recalcitrant character, a ruffianism of his own failure of his court ruling order.

The feeling between the Japanese is intense, and the Japanese are feared.
