Dry Goods at Toronto.

The present weather has had the expected effect upon business, in the country places preventing the farmers from reaching the market with their produce, thus effectively putting a stop to sales. As the season has now considerably advanced, fall stocks of goods are not much broken into, and the prospects are that large stocks will be held over by both wholesalers and retailers. This, of course, will necessitate the carrying of a large amount of overdue paper by wholesale merchants, and a very considerable demand for increased discounts at the banks.

The bright side, if it may so be called, is that prices of all kinds of manufactured dry goods are advancing both here and in England and the United States, as well as on the continent of Europe, thereby making all goods on hand better value than if purchased now or for future delivery.

The last wool sales reported from London noticed prices up 10 per cent. In many lines new lists of prices have been made out, with the prospect of further advances along this line; while, indeed, prices on raw and manufactured materials have advanced, wholesalers are decidedly adverse to putting figures up more than
