copied into the Braille type for the use of the blind.

On the present discussion of the hymn question in Scotland, The Interior has the following:-There is a hymn-book war in Scotland also. Dr. Eadie took up their new hymnal, critically, in Glasgow Presbytery, and made tatters of it. "Let high-born seraphs tune the lyre," says one hymn, and Dr. Eadie declares there is no such creature as a "high-born seraph"—seraphs are not born. "There is a gate that stands sjar," says a hymn. The Doctor insists that the gate stands wide open. He even tampers most cruelly with the poetic beauty of Heber's lovely hymn, "By cool Siloam's shady rill, how sweet the lily grows," by saying there is neither thady rill nor growing lily by Siloam. The new hymnal was turned over to a committee for revision. Dr. Eadie really ought to leave us some of our illusions.

Twenty and thirty years ago few copies of Mr. Ruskin's books on economics were sold; now the sale is very large, and is constantly increasing.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

INVESTOR, Hull, Que. Never at any time less than six per cent.

R. D., Port Stanley.-The reason that direct trade is not prosecuted between the Great Lakes of America and European ports must be that it is found not to pay. It is at least thirty or forty years since experiment was first made of sending schooner loads of wheat from Chicago, or of timber from Canadian Lake Erie ports, to Liverpool. And if it was not found to answer well in those days it is less likely to be satisfactory now when the size and draught of water carriers has increased faster than the deepening of the water-
