

- collaborates with institutions at all levels and fosters international cooperation through networking;
- focuses on those technical and substantive aspects of programmes where Unesco can make the most effective contribution to development;
- seeks to contribute to development by encouraging greater communication between specialists in the field, policy makers and the general public.