TETRAZZINI THE FAMED
ARRIVES IN TORONTO

Singer in Splendid Voice For Tomorrow Night's Engagement at Massey Hall.

Madame Louise Tetrazzini, the world-famed Italian soprano, arrived in Toronto at 8.15 last night, and took a suite of rooms in the King Edward Hotel. She was accompanied by her husband, Signor Bassoli, who is eminent in the engineering world. Manuger Leahy and Mrs. Leahy of San Francisco, Fred Hastings, Andrew Sanol and Walter Oakeschick, flutist, pianist and violinist of Madame Tet-razzini's company.

The party will remain in Toronto until Saturday.
Madame Tetrazzini was rather too fatigued with travel to be interviewed last night, but very amiably announced that she was feeling well, and her voice promised to be its best to-morrow night. The climate had had no adverse effects.

She was agreeably impressed with Toronto, as far as she could judge from first appearances, and was delighted with the treatment and hospitality accorded her. She anticipated a most enjoyable visit.

The magnificent gold plate which was presented to her by the citizens of San Francisco, in appreciation of her having rendered, gratuitously, a concert to the poor, will be on exhibition at Heintzman's, 125 Yonge-street, this morning at 10 o'clock.

The madame and her party will occupy box seats at the Royal Alexandra Theatre to-night, where she will meet her old friend, Chevalier, whom she knew when she was singing at Covent Garden, London, three seasons ago.

SYDNEY STATION BURNED

Loss Will Reach $60,000—Dominion Steel Must Shift Office Again.

SYDNEY, N. S., March 1.—Sydney was visited by another disastrous fire this afternoon, when the new Intercolonial Railway Station building was seriously damaged, and it is estimated that the loss will reach $60,000. The Dominion Steel Co., who suffered the loss of their general offices by fire on Jan. 25 last, and had occupied temporary offices in the station, were again heavy losers in to-day's fire.

The theory rumored around the scene today was that the fire caught from a lighted cigar or cigarette left in one of the offices. Most likely there will be an investigation.

The Steel Co. is arranging for temporary office in the Cape Breton Electric Co.'s general offices building.

proposals, but may step down his opposition by proposing an amendment in committee. The immediate event, therefore, the declaration of Messrs.
German and Lloyd Harris.

But, of course, no one can say what the next big move will be until it is known whether the senate at Washington will pass the treaty this week or not. If the treaty is not passed in the senate, a very pronounced demand will be made here, largely by the opposition, and perhaps by Conservatives thruout the country, that the proposals be dropped in the house of commons until such time as it is ascertained what President Taft will do in regard to a special session, and what that special session may do when it does sit, if it is ever called. Should, however, the senate pass the proposals this week, Sir Wilfrid Laurier will certainly press for their passage at Ottawa. In fact, in any event, he will probably be desirous of carrying them through, no matter what is done at Washington.

But at this writing no one can see further than 24 hours ahead, and the things immediately ahead are the speeches of Liberal members in the house on Thursday afternoon.

A careful canvass of the Conservative members shows that they will be solid to a man against the agreement.
There will not be a single "bolton."

One Hundred Members to Speak.

The party whips have been notified by 100 members that they desire to speak.
This means a long session, if these men are to be allowed to vent their views in the house, and there is no doubt that the Liberal members will noon.

Edward Howard Griggs
on Goethe

It was a brilliant survey of the life of Goethe to which the big audience in Association Hall was treated on Tuesday night by Edward Howard Griggs. As a speaker, as picturesque, as abundant in detail and broad in effect as an exhaustive in essence and as fluent and fertile in phrase as Mr. Griggs knows how to be, the lecture promised to be a treat of rare quality in the eyes of those who were to hear it.

Inspector J. L. Hughes, in introducing Mr. Griggs, said they were eager to return to their lessons, for such he regarded them, rather than lectures. Some had feared to take up the study of Goethe, but Mr. Griggs studied, but found they did not need it.
Mr. Griggs was so good a teacher.

The speaker ranked Goethe with Aeschylus, Dante and Shakespeare. This group might be added to, but it could not be taken away from.

More facts had been accumulated in the last century than in the previous periods of human history, and we had not yet been able to interpret the epoch adequately in the fields of art, philosophy, and in art and Germany gave it, and both found their greatest expression in Goethe.

Goethe, the distinguished metaphysicist, and he did not belong to the great circle of metaphysical thinkers, but in concrete thought he was supreme. All his art and philosophy were manifest in "Faust," and the great elements of modern spirit; all that Goethe meant to say about the great common riddles of human life as he gazed into his own breast, and the expression of his own life and development. And this was peculiarly representative of the age in which he lived.

For an hour and a half Mr. Griggs followed the career of the poet, marked as it was by the fault and failure of his nature, and yet his triumph over the moral frontier. Goethe's aim in life was wholly unselfish. He worked while others slept, toiling towards the polar star of his own ideal, the man God meant him to be.

The great hunger of modern times is for more practical self-realization. Goethe was one of the great men of the world, and his life of modern life and in achievement and range of activity the greatest man that ever lived. Leonardo da Vinci was a man of his time, but Goethe was a man of all times.

The Greeks never rose or fell to the conception of him," said Mr. Griggs.
Dante had the moral idea, taking ideas with good and keeping up the struggle until his life was ended. Goethe viewed the problem of sin from the intellectual point of view. He felt that man could accept all the struggle and yet be free of it, and he was the growth of the spirit going thru it.

Goethe's loves and amours gave Mr.
Griggs an opportunity to trace the development of his character; his devotion to Lessing, "Laocoon," his studies in alchemy, astrology and magic black and white; his absorption in art and architecture; his encounters with Herder, and other Mephistophelian influences; his storm and stress period and the "Sorrows of Werther." Great breath, strength and sanity marked his thought rather than spiritual hunger.

Then came the years at Weimar, and at 27 his tour in Italy, where the classical and the pagan excluded for him all else. His marriage with Christiane Vulpus seemed strange after Lotte and Frederika, but she made for him a domestic centre and Schiller provided him with a heart centre. At 35 his death he observed in bitter grief:
"Destiny is implacable and man nothing."

Mr. Griggs thought it regrettable that had not been assumed by the responsibilities of life. Freedom might easily be a barrier to growth. All Goethe's works were part of a confession, but "Faust," which he completed 50 years later, a few months before his death, was the greatest part.

Land Surveyors Dined.

The Association of Ontario Land Surveyors banqueted at McConkey's last night. Over 75 were present, and J. F. Winkler, president of the association, occupied the chair. Speeches were delivered by Dr. Ellis Elhu Stewart, Dr. Galbraith, G. B. Kirkpatrick and others.

Italians to Disarm.

BRANTFORD, March 1.—A petition is being circulated among the Italian lans by one of their number in an effort to effect a general disarming of all Italians in this city. They are pleading themselves to turn over all weapons to the police. The action is at the suggestion of Judge Hardy.

THE "EVERITT"

We would like you to see the Unlike most cars, the "Everitt" was designed from the experiences of thousands of all kinds of owners of cars, and incorporates owners' ideas.

The high road-clearance, simple motor, low-hung body, large wheels, aluminum clutch, wide seats, nickel-steel sliding gear safety transmission, automatic oilings, big brakes, accessible oil cups are owners' practical ideas.
