Boston, May 26.—The dream of happiness of Sabina Lucas, a pretty 16-year-old American girl whose home is in Dartmouth, N.S., and John Balfie, ten years her senior, was rudely interrupted on the arrival of the plant liner Halifax at Commercial wharf yesterday from Halifax. The police authorities had sent instructions from the Nova Scotia city to hold the pair. The girl was given over into the hands of the State Board of Charity and Balfie was later in the day taken to Long wharf, where he will be held pending the sailing of the Halifax again today when he will be deported, simply on the ground of his being an "undesirable alien."

Red, White and Blue

The red rose of valor that flushed the brave cheek;
The white rose of sacrifice, holy and meek;
The blue ranks that heard the death messenger speak.
The red blood of carnage that vert the wet sod;
The white form of death where the great armies trod;
The blue of dim eyes as the soul sped to God.

The red of the sunset that ended the day,
The white clouds, like angels, that stooped o'er the fray;
The blue of soft skies where the dead soldier lay.

The red rose of love on the warrior's still breast;
The white rose of peace, North and South, East and West;
Forget-me-nots, blue, where the brave takes his rest.
