

GOOD MACHINERY IS SECURED BY PATENTS,

and no one firm who manufacture machinery can combine in their production all the many valuable improvements—to evade which many unprincipled manufacturers alter, change, and, in all ways, try to get around the original production, and in many cases copy so correctly that they and their customers are constantly annoyed with patent FEES and LITIGATION, all the result of a want of knowledge.

IT IS A FACT, THAT YOU SHOULD SECURE

talent to aid you in purchasing Machinery, to avoid the mongrel infringing machines, and secure the best of its kind at a reasonable price; for while one Machine contains an important improvement for some specialty, another is devoid of it, or only has a false attempt at an equivalent. Again we say, money can be saved by employing

The services of those who make it their study to thoroughly understand the merits of all Wood and Iron Working Machinery, Steam Engines, Boilers, Belting, and all General Supplies.

We shall endeavor to give every patron a fair equivalent for every dollar's worth of Machinery he may purchase of us, and WARRANT EVERY MACHINE TO BE JUST AS RECOMMENDED BY US. Prices and Freights will be as cheap as though purchased of manufacturers.

We respectfully solicit your orders, and shall be pleased to have you call on or correspond with us, whether you purchase or not. Your Ob't Servants, MESSES A. S. & J. GEAR & Co., 56 Sudbury Street, Boston, Mass.

GENTLEMEN,—You are justly entitled to the credit of furnishing the New York & New Haven R. R. Co. with a combination of Iron and Wood Working Machinery which is seldom collected together in one shop, and which, I am pleased to say, gives us entire satisfaction.

I have long been of the opinion that no one manufacturer could produce all the best and latest improved machinery, good machines being secured by patents, and no one person or company controlling the whole. I cordially recommend your services and manner of furnishing “the best of machinery produced regardless of its maker,” as valuable, and every way worthy the consideration of all purchasers.
