BILLARDS.

New York, Oct. 14.—Two of Europe's leading players have sent in their entries for the billiard tournament to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Nov. 13 to 21, inclusive, to decide the championship of the world. The nominations of Edouard Horemans, the Belgian champion of Europe, and Roger Conti, the young champion of France, were forwarded to The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., donor of the diamond medal, emblematic of the championship, with the required forfeit of $250 each. Thus three of the world's leading billiardists are now entered—Willie Hoppe, Horemans and Conti. Jake Schaefer, holder of the title, who recently arrived in this city from his home in California, has announced that he will enter in his entry before the end of the week.

Erich Hagelacher, the champion of Germany, who is now engaged in a series of exhibitions as part of his practice for the tourney, has also notified the promoters that he will enter before Sunday.

Word has been received from Walter Cochran, another of the country's famous players, that he has mailed his entry.

RING.

Accepts Challenge.

"Kid" Paris of this city, accepts the challenge issued by Al Scott of Hillsboro, welterweight, and will meet him at any time of place to be mutually agreed upon. He desires all communications addressed to John Gay, 316 Duke street.

Ski-Carpenter Finances.

Paris, Oct. 14.—The French boxing commission took up the question of the purse in the Ski-Carpenter bout last night. It had been announced that the winner would receive 200,000 francs and the loser 100,000. Manager Heller, who has charge of Ski's interest, was asked how much Ski had received and he replied 75,000 francs. The investigation was then postponed to determine the exact division of the gate.

BASKETBALL.

St. David's Team Wins.

The St. David's Taxis Boys defeated the Y. M. C. I. basketball team on the latter's floor yesterday afternoon by the score of 17 to 6, after a fast contest. The stellar work of Connell at defence for the winners, and the shooting of Smith were features of the game. J. Chandler played well for the Y. M. C. I. The line-up was as follows:

Y. M. C. I.	Forwards	Archibald
J. Chandler	Burns	Centre
Britt	Defence	Smith
E. Chandler	Connell	Fraser
Murray	Referee, Bruce Brown.

TURE.

John R. Braden Wins.

GIBBONS LOSES

BY FOUL IN THE TENTH ROUND

New York, Oct. 13.—Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul, lost on a foul to Billy Mike, his fellow townsman in the tenth round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout tonight. Gibbons had been leading until the fight was stopped, when Mike contended he had been struck low and could not continue.

The crowd gathered around the ring and some of the spectators shouted to Mike to continue. Gibbons walked to Mike's corner but the winner appeared too weak to acknowledge him.

When the judge's decision was announced the crowd roared its disapproval and derided Mike as he left the ring. Gibbons turned backward to watch the crowd and he was struck by Mike's dressing room, there was a round of applause.

Gibbons was far in the lead on points and had Mike appearing amateurish when the fourth occurred. As the tenth round started both men advanced to the center of the ring and fell into a close exchange, both playing for a stomach.

Gibbons turned backward to get greater leverage with his right and as he brought it down Mike stepped forward and the blow struck Billy in the groin. He dropped helpless to the floor and Gibbons stepped away.

For a few seconds both the audience and referee, Kid McPharland, seemed amazed. Mike sat in the floor, his face writhing in evident agony, but it was some time before McPharland stepped over and grabbing Mike by his shoulders lifted him to his corner.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN GETS INJUNCTION

Seeks to Restrain Film Actor from Wearing a Similar Costume.

Los Angeles, Oct. 14.—A temporary injunction restraining the western Productions Co., a motion picture concern, from exhibiting a film which starred Charles Amador under the name of Charlie Chaplin, has been granted by the superior court here.

In the film Amador or Alpin wore a costume much the same as that commonly associated with Chaplin's motion pictures and it was because of this that the latter asked the court for the permanent restraining order. He declared it was the utmost importance to him that he have the exclusive right to the costume.

The court saw the film and then issued the temporary restraining order pending trial of the suit on its merits.

U. S. CROP PROSPECTS

September Forecasts Shows Loss, But Better Harvests Than Last Year.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Crops generally suffered loss in prospective production on during September, but the harvest will be larger than they were last year, except in the case of corn, buckwheat, sugar beet and peanuts.

Preliminary estimates and forecasts of production, as compared with a month ago, 25,000,000 bushels of oats; 21,000,000 bushels of corn; 8,000,000 bushels of spring wheat; 16,000,000 bushels of peanuts; 5,000,000 bushels of white potatoes; 2,800,000 bushels of sweet potatoes, and 2,900,000 bushels of apples.

There were increases, however, in the forecasts of tobacco, barley, buckwheat, rice and beans.

BOY, 16, DIES BY OWN HAND

Shoots Himself After Leaving Note Assigning Six Reasons for His Intention.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 14.—With a white carnation in one hand and his father's .33 calibre revolver in the other, Raymond Bradley, 16, a high school sophomore, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Bradley of 888 Seaview Ave., walked out the back door of his home while his parents were asleep and committed suicide by shooting himself through the right temple.

The flower was one of a bouquet which he had ordered sent to his mother. The medical examiner found that the suicide was deliberate and undoubtedly brought on by overstudy and perhaps a boyhood love affair, one sentence in a letter he left saying:

"I loved my love exceedingly, but she did not love me."

In an upstairs room before he took his life young Bradley had laid out his burial wardrobe carefully on the bed and left notes containing directions for his funeral. He wrote:

"I want a simple funeral, with lots of flowers, a plain casket and a casket bird hung in the room where I am laid out."

A note written on loose leaf note book paper and found in the pocket of the boy's bathrobe, over which he wore a chemist's apron when he died, gave six reasons for his act. The note bore a caption which said: "What made my life miserable in the last two weeks, and also what caused my dependency?" and continued:

"1.—The reading of 'Les Miserables'."

"2.—The thought that the world would

"3.—I have a cold now and have that feeling of not living, anyhow."

"4.—I've had a feeling I don't care, for the last two weeks."

"5.—The thought of thinking of far-reaching, reaching questions, as 'Who made the world?'"

"6.—Is there any God? The theory of Darwin concerning the struggle for existence of the survival of the fittest. Has a man a right to take the life of any other living thing because all things are created equal? The reading of the handbook of all, 'Undeipherable,' has affected me terribly, as I do not know whether there is a God or not."

"7.—Your bouquet cost $3; paid."

"I love my love exceedingly, but she don't love me."

The boy's uncle, A. U. Bradley, lying next door, found the body. The uncle was emphatic in denying that the boy had a love affair and could advance no sure motive for the suicide other than that his mind had become overbalanced.

HERE'S THE STORY:

Youth in the olden days was much the same as now. Just as the up-state country boy, armed with his father's advice and letters of introduction to prominent Wall Street brokers, sets out nowadays to conquer New York, so did D'Artagnan, the hero of Dumas' immortal tale, "The Three Musketeers," fare forth in the year 1625 to make his way to Paris. The advice of the elder D'Artagnan was simple. His son was to bear in mind "loyalty to the King, reverence for the Cardinal and devotion to the Queen." To this was added a corollary which reflected the spirit of the times: "Fight! the old Frenchman had said, 'fight the more that dueling is forbidden, for by so doing you doubly prove your courage.' And having placed in his son's hands a letter to M. de Treville, Captain of the King's Musketeers, he gave him a sword and a venetian horse—much as the modern father bestows a safety razor and a Ford—and sent his boy forth into the world.

As a matter of fact, the young D'Artagnan had little need of encouragement to fight. Your true Gascon is ever ready with his blade and our hero was a Gascon plus. He not only fought, but to such good purpose that within a week he had become the talk of Paris and in a month the talk of France.

At this time Cardinal Richelieu, the powerful minister of France, was seeking to widen the breach already existing between the King, Louis XIII., and his wife, the lovely Anne of Austria. The Cardinal held absolute sway over the mind of his royal master and the only influence which threatened his supremacy was that of the Queen. Could he but permanently estrange the royal pair his power would be undisputed. Anne had an admirer in the person of the English Duke of Buckingham and while she had steadfastly rejected his advances, Richelieu sought to make her appear guilty in the eyes of the King.

The King had given Anne a diamond buckle upon her birthday and this she had given to Buckingham at a time when the latter, forcing himself into her presence, had demanded that she at least give him a token of remembrance since she would not permit him to see her. Richelieu through his spies learned of this gift and prompted the King to command Anne to appear at a state ball wearing the diamond buckle, knowing full well that Buckingham had returned to England and that Anne would not be able to obtain the return of the jewel in time to prevent her disgrace.

How D'Artagnan, brought to the Queen's notice by Constance, the little seamstress with whom he was in love, was able to accomplish the apparently impossible; how he rode through a way beset by spies and guards of the Cardinal
