An interesting feature of the first session was the disclosure that Eamonn De Valera had submitted to last week's private meeting of the Dail an alternative proposal to the agreement signed in London...

One of the most persistent rumors is that an agreement for disposal of the treaty had been reached between the contending factions and that the public debate on the motion for ratification...

Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, protested against a course which they declared would result in the signing of the Irish people what such an alternative proposal meant.

After some heated discussion the speaker said he could not allow debate on this point and Mr. Griffith then moved the ratification of the treaty.

Mr. Griffith then dilated on the advantages the treaty would bring to Ireland. He read a letter which had been received from Premier Lloyd George...

President De Valera then rose to move the rejection of the treaty. "I am against the treaty because it would not end the conflict between Great Britain and Ireland," he declared.
