Several times a year one or or of the firm takes a trip to the ath for the purpose of personal inspec-m and the verification of the reports of on and the verification of the reports of gents. The section within which the Myrtle Navy leaf is grown is comparatively a limited one, but even within that region careful selection has to be made. Next to the quality of the raw leaf the matter of the first importance is the method of its treatment after it comes to meturity. The habits of every planer in this respect within the section already mentioned are carefully noted, and only those who adopt the best methods are dealt with by the firm. Many people suppose that the manufacture of tobacco consists in stripping the stem from the leaf and crushing the re-mainder into pings. The fact is that it is
