

POETRY.

THE WIFE TO HER SLEEPING HUSBAND.
"O! the bliss that links the happy may be dear, but that which links the unfortunate is tenderest and more dear."

Four lustres have, have passed away, Since at the altar's side Thy nuptial promise was made mine ear.

For thou art now, in fortune's strife,
A king for sorrow's sake;
Thy peaceful mind and noble heart,

And every dream of promise'd bliss
A cause of grief was found.
The cheerless looks its little mounds,

Where long have dwelt benevolence
And kindness in their former bloom;
And friends who loved a good and stern

And at it were, how long to gloom, Where thou didst turn for light.
Not all, my hopes I turn,

For I am still, my hopes I turn, Affection's rays shines thy couch,
And bids thy Mary weep;

Still my joyous days I turn, Whose strength was never tried—
By grief in all affliction proved,

By grief in all affliction proved,
The husband's cheer, nor know
The watch that love was keeping,

But hope, with radiant promise seem'd
To mingle in its morning.
For, and the wondrous dream that mark'd

His soul's ungodly rest,
A smile now darts from the dreamer's brow,
And bids that he be lost.

Love of Teresa's name—A well-known gentle and at Winchester, in this state (Virginia) related an amusing anecdote to me on his subject.

Manufacturing Human Beings—The Caldwell state in the New York Journal of Medicine, that nearly forty years ago, a distinguished and well known professor of chemistry, declared, in his presence, and in his lecture, that a certain man he could make a human being. About the same time,

Improved ROOFING FELT.
IS peculiarly applicable as a substitute for Slate, in its economy, lightness, and durability.
The disadvantages attending other materials used in roofing, preventing in Agricultural Districts many useful houses and sheds being erected, or rendered water proof, it is estimated that the Improved Roofing Felt will, in a great measure, and in some instances altogether obviate them, and prove most serviceable from its lightness, durability, and invari-ability to water and damp, in roofing Houses, Cattle sheds, Park structures, and for the roofs of well-to-do, of light structures, for Planks, located in the economy in repair, the timber where it is used may be so light as to save its whole expense; it requires no other coping and may be applied by any person of common intelligence, being flexible and Portable, and it is free from leakage, and the expense of carriage is inconsiderable, in comparison with other materials, &c. &c. it is not liable to construction to Zinc.

Sold in sheets 32 inches by 20 at 1/4 each (being less than 15s per square of 100 feet with protection for applying them)—In cases where
