Each sent lefts to the head at close quarters with little effect, and McCoy's foot work puzzled Tom, who could not land until McCoy stopped after getting a left on the breast. Tom then sent his left to the neck and McCoy jabbed a hard left on the nose. This seemed to annow Tom, who was unused to such annoy Tom, who was unused to such quick footwork, and McCoy hit his oppo-

McCoy was very wary, using his feet to advantage. Tom caught him side-stepping, landing a left hook low on the body and another on the ribs close to the heart. McCoy jabbed left to the face and body, but falled to dodge a left hook from Tom which caught him on the neck under the ear. Tom kept on the aggressive and caught McCoy on the ropes without gaining. The boxes and seats in the vicinity of the ring were filled up by 8 o'clock, and to look at the gathering of sports one would think that all who are interested in winter racing in New Orleans had been shipped suddenly to New York.

Bookmakers headed by Joe Vendig, made the arena ring with their shcuts of "171 bet a thousand to nine hundred on McCoy"; "Come on with your money; the Kid must win."

In the first of the two preliminary contests Isadore Straus, of Philadelphia, met Kid Carter, of Brooklyn. They were scheduled to fight ten rounds at catchweights. In the sixth round Carter tried to wring his opponent's neck. Referee Charley White stopped the bout and awarded the fight to Straus on a foul.

When John Wanamaker was postmaster general of the United States he, with the co-operation of Mrs. Wanamaker, extended a social reception to all the men and women employed in the post office department in the city of Washington. Nobody was overlooked in sending out the invitations. Every member of the post office department received an invitation from the chief clark down to the lowest scrib woman. clerk down to the lowest scrub woman. When it became known that the Wanamakers had invited the scrub-women of the department along with the rest, considerable dissatisfaction was shown. Some of the handsome young men and Some of the handsome young men and certain of the beautiful young women employed in the post office department complained and said they would not attend a social reception where a scrubwoman had been invited and were expected to attend. By and by it came to the ears of the postmaster general himself and Wanamaker, with characteristic decision, put down his foot and affirmed that he cared not who objected or who complained, the reception was a reception to the whole department and to every member of the department, and that the "scrub"-women were as welcome as any other class, and that no other class was more welcome than the class on the continent of North America is in some sense a walking monument to the magnificent will power of William Lloyd Garrisen. These were great men and they achieved great things in the world. But the greatest thing in this world is the salvation of a human soul, and the greatest thing for you is the salvation of your own soul. God has done his part. You must do your part. Rise and in spite of every obstacle stand for God, speak for God, and live for God.

The various committees, consisting of the executive committee and committees on usbering and finances had a meet.

the executive committee and committees on ushering and finances had a meeting at the close of the service and perfected the necessary arrangements for atternoon services, which will begin Wednesday in the Free Baptist church at 3 o'clock. On these committees are the leading business men of Carleton.

While the meetings have only started yet last evening there were tokens that the glorious work of saving souls had althe glorious work of saving souls had already begun, and that the Spirit was strongly manifest. The pastors feel greatly encouraged, and there is in consequence a united prayer from all that there will be a glorious outpouring.

the Lord's side if you are trusting Christ alone for salvation.

When the jailor asked Paul the question "What must I do to be saved?" note carefully, please, the wording of Paul's answer. He did not say do your best and Christ will help you, or study the character of Christ and follow his beautiful example, or engage in some philanthropic or religious work, nor did he tell him than an intellectual belief in the historical Christ could save him.

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." This really meant a renunciation of himself and a reliance upon the mercy of Jesus and an appropriation of Christ to the needs of his soul.

Have you this trust in Christ so that good intentions in New Year resolutions and still keep on doing the same wrong things. Still, another may go so far as to actually give up some sins and yet there may be no genuine repentence. Repentance means infinitely more than sorrow for sin—good intentions—or even lopping off a few bad habits. Scriptural repentance is, to use the army phrase, "Right-about face;" turn round and go the other way. This means the giving up of all known sin.

Paul expressed it when he says: "Ye turn to God from idels to serve the living and true God."

One who really repents then, is one who has turned Godward and whose back is toward the old life of sin.

II. I remark again that you are on the Lord's side if you are trusting Christ alone for salvation.
