Recently a peculiar story was told in the local press of a Canadian bank note which fell into the hands of H. H. Harvey, this city. It bore the endorsement of the Bank of Montreal, and was a five-pound note, and also that of a German bank. It was assumed at the time that the Canadian was a prisoner in Germany. This note has now been traced to the hands of the soldier in a prisoner camp, along with his two brothers. The three of them were taken at Ypres. The clerkman is endeavoring to secure the bank-note as a souvenir for the father of the three heroes.

Mosquito-eating Bats. An army of mosquito-eating bats, several thousand strong, will be turned loose in San Antonio next month. If, as has been predicted for it, the army succeeds in crippling seriously the activities of the germ-laden mosquito population, many other cities may follow San Antonio's example and establish their "municipal bat roosts."

Dr. C. A. R. Campbell, who has made a special study of bats, is responsible for San Antonio's bat roost. He says that one bat in the course of a single day will eat a thousand mosquitos. He expects hordes of mosquitos to perish daily, and that by the end of the summer the pestiferous insects will be almost, if not entirely, missing from that locality.—Scottish-American.

Hon. Mr. Clarke Suffering from a Third Attack of Acute Indigestion.

Fredericton, Feb. 11—The opening of the session of the legislature, which has been announced for Feb. 24, may have to be postponed because of the serious illness of Premier Clarke. He was suddenly seized with a severe attack of acute nervous indigestion, from which he has been suffering for the past several years. The doctor's house last evening. Bourgois, of the Royal Bank staff, has received notice of his transfer to Woodstock, and will leave on Thursday. His many friends will congratulate him upon his promotion, greatly regretting his departure. On Monday evening, his many friends met at the Victoria hotel, and were delightedly entertained by Mrs. Bourgois and her daughters. A luncheon was served to the guests during the evening. After doing justice to the good things provided, the guests retired to the hotel parlor where Mrs. Bourgois was presented with a travelling bag. J. E. Michaud, in a few words, thanked Mrs. Bourgois and her daughters and expressed to Mr. Bourgois the regret caused by his many friends by his departure. A special musical programme appropriate to the occasion was presented by Dr. Emile Simard, Mr. Larrie, Frank Lynch and Will Landry.

Stories illustrating the impudence of some people were being told in the train. One passenger told how, getting in the train at Manchester, he made for a vacant corner seat and was warned off by the man opposite, who said he belonged to a friend of his. After having been told to get up, he went to the next compartment and inquired, "Where is that friend of yours?" "Oh, he's getting on at Cresco," was the reply.

A man who had been carefully filling his pipe with a very dark-looking mixture, which afterwards proved to have a very disagreeable odor, said he guessed he could cap that story with a little experience of his own at Stratford-on-Avon. "In an historic garden there," he said, "I saw down for a quiet smoke. So a serious-looking individual came along and stood in front of me. Almost tearfully, he blurted out, 'I wish you wouldn't smoke your pipe here. It seems a desecration from my point of view.' 'Why?' I asked. 'You don't really think Shakespeare would mind, do you?' 'I don't know about Shakespeare,' he replied, 'but I mind very much.' It was on that that I had the honor of proposing to the lady who is now my wife."—Manchester Guardian.

The Intoxication of Crews. (Christian Science Monitor). The press of the United States, where not decidedly partisan, is taking President Wilson's St. Louis utterance, calling for the largest navy in the world, as a description from my point of view of those sayings produced by the exhilaration of extemporaneous speech to a cheering crowd, and not as an opinion which he really holds, or which he would have uttered in other circumstances. It is just this sort of excessive speech that the responsible administrator tries to guard against when seated at his desk. Allowance, therefore, has to be made for him when on the hustings. Afterward comes the regret, which doubtless he feels quite as keenly as do his admirers.

Breweries as Munitions Factories. London, Feb. 14—The government will immediately take over all the large whiskey distilleries and use them as munitions factories, says the Daily Chronicle.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Loses Valuable Papers. Ottawa, Feb. 10—Among the important losses in the parliament buildings was the correspondence and private and public documents of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. His office in the west wing was fire-swept and scarcely any of his papers, accumulated during the past four years, escaped. The intimate documentary history of Liberalism and of parliamentary proceedings, as contained in the files of his office, has been lost.

Apart from the inconvenience to the Liberal leader himself of the loss of many of his papers of reference and his correspondence, there is undoubtedly a loss to the future historian of Canada, to whom such of Sir Wilfrid's papers as have been of inestimable value. Sir Wilfrid is now installed in a new office in the present quarters of parliament. It has been appropriately fixed up for him with remarkable despatch, by the public works department. New furniture, new rugs, and nicely tinted walls, done overnight, give him one of the best of the "mushroom" offices of the new house of parliament. An oil painting of Alexander MacKenzie, his predecessor as Liberal premier of Canada, salvaged from the fire, appropriately hangs above his desk.

Kaiser and Son (From Malice in Kulturland). "You are old, Father William," the young man said, "And the end of your life is in sight; Yet you're frequently patting your God at Cresco." "Do you think at your age, is it right?" "In my youth," said his sire, "I established my career as a being apart and divine; And I think if I try to keep God in his place, He ought to support me in mine."

"You are old," said the youth, "as I mentioned before, And fight is exceedingly tiring; And yet you attempt, like an eagle, to soar." "What made you so very aspiring?" "From my youth," said the sage, "I was never the thing; My conduct was always absurd; And now I feel certain, unless I take That Europe will 'give me the bird'."

"You are old," said the youth, "and a poet he was indeed, And your head is too large for your hat; Yet you try to remodel the world to your taste; Pray what is the meaning of that?" "In my youth," said the sire, "from the Such merit through culture I got, That its blessings I'd force on the whole blooming earth. If it meant killing off all the lot!"

"You are old," said the youth, "as I think you're aware; For it's certainly time that you knew Yet I see you throw bricks, and not huns to the bear— Do you think it is tactful to do it?" "I have answered three questions, and that is enough. Said his father, and now I have done; Do you think I can listen all day to such stuff?" "Trot along, and steal pictures, my son!" —Ottawa Journal.

MAJOR GREENELL, ONCE INTERESTED IN CANADA, WOUNDED AT FRONT. London, Feb. 14—Major Arthur Greenell has been wounded in France. Major Greenell was a director of the Canadian Agency, Limited, and Chaplain, Milne, Grenfell & Company, which failed in June, 1914. Major Greenell suffered severe losses in the failures, necessitating the sale of his valuable paintings and other property. Some time later he joined the Royal Bucks Hussars, being attached to the Ninth Lancers.

DR. PUGSLEY'S LETTERS BURNED. The Telegraph is desired by Hon. William Pugsley to call attention to the fact that by the fire which recently occurred in the Parliament buildings at Ottawa, the contents of the room occupied by him in the house of commons were destroyed. These included many letters which had been received shortly before the fire and had not been answered. He desires that any of his correspondents who have not received replies to their letters will again communicate with him.

The attorneys for the prosecution and defense had been allowed 15 minutes each to argue the case. The attorney for the defense had begun his arguments with an allusion to the old swimming hole of his boyhood days. He told in flowery words of the balmy air, the singing of birds, the joy of youth, the delights of the cool water—

"And in the midst of it he was interrupted by the drawing voice of the judge: "Come out, Chanucey," he said, "and put on your 'old clothes. Your fifteen minutes are up."
