

Not included in collection.

- CCXXV. A Plea for the More Careful Study of the Symptoms of Perforation in Typhoid Fever with a View to Early Operation.
The Lancet, February 9th, 1901.
- CCXXVI. The Medical Aspects of Carcinoma of the Breast.
American Medicine, April, 1901.
- CCXXVII. On the Advantages of a Trace of Albumin and a Few Tube Casts in the Urine of Certain Men above Fifty Years of Age.
New York Medical Journal, November 23rd, 1901.
- CCXXVIII. Congenital Absence of the Abdominal Muscles, with Distended and Hypertrophied Urinary Bladder.
Johns Hopkins Hospital Bulletin, November, 1901.
- CCXXIX. On a Family Form of Recurring Epistaxis, Associated with Multiple Telangiectases of the Skin and Mucous Membranes.
Johns Hopkins Hospital Bulletin, November, 1901.
-