the facts and circumstances in connection with the parish of St. John the Baptist will not be amiss. The first evidence we have of a priest being here is away back in 1828, when Father lamothe came from Quebec to minister to the spiritual wants of those of his faith who were smatered throughout the country. He did not remain here, but came more in the nature of a missionary. These visits he continued until 1823. In this year he was replaced by Father Sweeney, who did the missionary work in con-nection with the territory during the year. KINGSTON SCHOOLS.

KINGSTON SCHOOLS. We notice in last week's Kingston corres-pondence of the London CATHOLE RECORD an Item concerning Inspector O Brien's recent visit to our Separate schools. The article is in part as follows: "We must not forget to men-tion the very satisfactory condition of the de partments of the Cathedral school conducted by the Sisters of Charity." Now, as the Sis-ters of Charity conduct only three departments of St. Mary's school, and as the three highest are conducted by lay teachers whom the In-spector found doing excellent work, it is cer tainly unfair to particularize in this respect, and to imply that the best work in the school was done by the teachers of the lowest classes. Wheever the correspondent of the RECORD is he should be more careful in future to give credit everywhere it is due. He certainly can-not have seen its Inspector's report or he would not particularize as he did and try to leave a false impression. The fact is that the inspect-or found all departments of the bays' school in a very suisfactory condition — Canadian free-man.

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW.

I saw two figures striding past And o'er the glis'ning snow they ran; December doled a mournful blast O'er a bright youth and gray-haired man

The old man's step was weak and slow His face was wrinkled o'er with care : A tear upon his check did flow— 'Twas pale and not a smile slept there.

The youth, that followed through the gloon Was full of life and promise sweet, And on his check a rose did bloom, The snow looked up to kiss his feet.

And on they sped, o'erice and snow, In their mad race as night fied on : The old man's pulse was beating low His breath of life was almost gone.

And when the clock its twelve confessed I saw the old man's dying face— And Father Time bore him to rest And called the youth to fill his place. -J. William Fischer.
