of Ypres. Such was the force of the onslaught and the weight of the artillery suporting it that our line was temporarily driven back.
It was soon readjusted, however,
and by evening the situation in this quarter was the same as it had been twenty-four hours earlier.

"That night some shells were thrown into Ypres itself. Farther to the south the Germans had, during the previous night, retaken the village of Messines, and had also captured Wytschaete. By had also captured Wytschaete. By 11 a.m. our cavalry, working in co-operation with the French, drove them out of the latter place by a briliant bayonet charge, but we did not occupy it. A few of the prisoners taken at this place were only 17 years of age and said they had practically no training and little food. Some of them had never fited a rifle before.

"The fact that Messines still remained in hostile hands necessitated a slight adjustment of our front in the centre. But apart from this there was no change in this quarter, the bombardment continuing all day.

"During the action aroun these two villages the Germans moving across our front suffered very greatly from the massed fire, or our horse artillery at fire, or our horse artillery at short range, but though they fell literally in heaps they still came on with admirable determination. "South of the Lys some of the trenches which had been lost on the previous night were captured by us; otherwise the stituation remained as it had been. No attacks were delivered against us, and the enemy contented themselves with enemy contented themselves with bombarding our trenches. A heavy battery was knocked out by our artillery fire. "One of our prisoners, a Saxon professor, who was captured on the first day he entered the field, stated as his opinion that Ger-many realized that she had failed in her object and was only fighting in order to obtain good terms. What his opinion is worth remains to be seen.

"During the afternoon a Ger-man aeroplane was captured, quite uninjured. On the second of No-vember on our left, the pressure was still kept up towards Ypres, and at first our line was once more forced back, but it was restored towards evening by a vig-orous advanced carried out in co-operation with the French, rendered us very timely assistance.

"The maximum effort of the Germans on this day was more to the south of Ypres, as if to drive a wedge between that town on the north and Armentieres on the south, and the bombardment of our positions in this quarter of the field was especially heavy, though it was well replied to by a concentrated fire from our guns and those of the French.

"The French delivered a coun-Wytschaete, which remained disputed ground, fiercely blazing amidst a hail of shell from both

"More to the south the enemy advanced in force, but were checked. Still farther towards our right a hostile attack in the neighborhood of Armentieres met with the same fate. On our were repulsed, though at one or two points the Germans gained ground slightly, obtaining posses-sion of euve Chapelle. "The inundation around Nieu-port had by this day reached the enemy's trenches, and it is stated that two heavy guns and some field artillery had to be abandoned in the mud.

"The 3rd was, on the whole a

"The 3rd was, on the whole a comparatively uneventful day, which enabled our troops to get a much needed rest. In front of Ypres, the German infantry ceased to press, but to the south in the neighborhood of Wytschaete and Hollebecke, they made successful attempts to get forward, affective counter-attacks being effective counter-attacks being delivered by the French and British. In this quarter the fighting was of a severe nature.

"South of the river there were minor attacks."

The text of the communication

"On our left wing the fighting still continues with violence and has been conducted with alternate advances and retirements without importance. Speaking broadly the battle front has not varied greatly since the 10th of November. In the evening of yesterday it was extended along the line between Lomzaertzyde to Nieuport; the Nieuport canal to Ypres; the approaches of Ypres; in the region of Zennebecke and to the east of Armentieres.

"There has been no change in the positions held by the British army, which repulsed the attacks of the enemy and particularly an offensive movement undertaken by detachment of the Prussian guard. "From the canal of La Bassee as far as, and up to the River Oise there have been minor engagements. In the region of the River Oise, in the nieghborhood of Vailly we retained our positions against a counter attack and we strengthened cur positions in the territory previously conquer-

"In the region of Craonne and on the Heurtebise farm, our ar-tillery succeeded in reducing to silence the cannon of the enemy. Several of their pieces were even destroyed. We also made some progress in the vicinity of Berry-au-Bac.
