WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, AND FRIDAY

September 14, 15, 16, 1898

The directors of Central Canada's most popular agricultural society, in presenting their annual greeting and annuancement, take this opportunity of expressing their most sincere thanks for the liberal patronage received from exhibitors and visitors during the past, and beg to assure them that no effort will be spared to make the exhibition of 1898 well

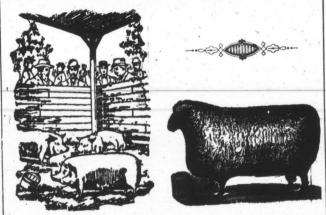

Notwithstanding the large amount expended in additions and re-pairs last season, the accommodation for the proper housing of and caring for the exhibits was taxed to its utmost limit, and the directors are expending large sums in still further adding to these accommands which are the following:

100 ft. Addition to Cattle Stalls

CUTSIONS

For the above round trip tickets will be sold and for the proper care of at least 250 head of cattle. The cattle stalls extend ever 400 feet in length, along the north-western side of the grounds, and are so arranged that every animal has a comfortable, separate stall, fitted up with manger and feed box and plenty of bedding. Every exhibitor is obliged to keep his space and animal clean, so that the best dressed lady or gentleman in the land can inspect the stock without fear of getting their clothing soiled.

25 Additional Pig Pens.

will be added to the already large number of comfortable pens on the grounds. The swine industry is fast becoming the leading one amongst the farmers of the country, and by getting all the best breeds together at our fair, pork raisers will be able to compare notes and learn much that will enable them to raise only such kinds as bring the most money.

The Sheep Pens

Harvest Excursions are the best adapted for showing sheep to advantage of any in Central Canada. Good, roomy pens, protected from rain or sun, make it a pleasure for farmers to exhibit their choice animals at our fair.

The Poultry Building.

is the best in Central Canada, having wire-front cages for 275 birds, arranged to show off to the best advantage. Our list of prizes is the largest to be found anywhere outside the city exhibitions.

The Carriage Building

is roomy and well lighted, and any exhibitor bringing fine carriages will find a place where they can keep their exhibits clean and protected from rain or dust.

The Main Exhibition Building

has been all sheeted up with clean, planed and matched lumber and new shelving and tables, so arranged as to enable exhibitors to place their goods to show off to the very best advantage. By the new arrangement of the halls, the exhibits will be so placed as to be protected from handling, while at the same time spread out so as to show to far better advantage. We trust our lady exhibitors will appreciate our efforts in their tage. We trust our lady exhibitors will appreciate our efforts in their behalf by bringing an immense quantity of their handiwork for exhibition. has been all sheeted up with clean, planed and matched lumber and new comprise nearly 20 acres in extent and are fitted up with every convenience possible for the entertaining of both exhibitors and visitors. The cattle stalls, sheep and swine pens and poultry building are all spread along in succession down the eastern, northern, and western sides of the grounds and all the exhibits in any of these departments can be inspected without inconvenience or crowding.

The Horse Ring

SPANISH POSTOFFICES

of Handling the Hadle.

A foreigner in Spain sees many irregularities, especially in the postoffices. At Potes, a village of 1,200 inhabitants is northern Spain, the postmarer was an old man, who was usually found saleep and resented being stirred up to deliver a letter. In the larger postoffices the height of contaston is reached, because letters are put into pigeonholes, alphabetically avanaged, according to the fancy of the postmaster.

put into pigeonholes, alphabetically asranged, according to the fancy of the postmaster.

"Mr. John Smith," says Dr. Gadow in his "Northern Spain," "will on inquiry
probably be told there is nothing for him, because the letter is safely lodged under J, the postmaster having mistaken Smith, for an additional surname. But John Smith, Eaq., will as likely be relegated to E, and unless the postmaster is amicably inclined, your letter has a good, chance of remaining there until the quarterly or annual clearance, when it may be returned through the dead letter office. I say may because such letters are considered wouldsome and have a knack of disappearing."

Dr. Gadow, having obtained as introduction to the postmaster of Potes and grchanged compliments with him, was invited to look through his shelves and salehis choice. He came across a letter addressed to a gentlemen in Cabeson, a town at some distance from Potes. On asking why it had not been sent on he received this startling answer: "That man is a foreigner, is he not? Well, numbers of strangers come to Potes, and he is as likeby to turn up here as at Cabeson!"

At San Sobastian Dr. Gedow called the postoffice twice for a registered litter containing a remittance from his bankgs
and was assured that nothing had arrived.
On procuring a note from the lingillat consul, the letter was fortheoming with the excuse that the post had just come in.
He pointed out that the local postmars

The Funeral Procession

The Funeral Procession.

"By looking into any carriage of a faneral procession," said Mr. Staybols, "lie is possible to tell at a glance its relation to the hearse. The one or two carriages in front of the hearse carry the pallbearers, who are sober of demeanor, hus not depressed. They are selected because of their station or rank, and a knowledge of this fact gives them dignity of bearing, but they are not cast down by it.

"After the hearse comes the carriage with the chief mourners, whose grief is sacred. There may be another carriage or perhaps more filled with those who mourn deeply, but after them the tings of sorrow grows rapidly lighter until it wholly disappears. There may be seen in one carriage a child looking out from a window. In some there will be seen friends and neighbors come to do honor to the dead and preserve silence and fixed attitudes.

"Then will come carriages containing those who look from the windows as they pass at objects unfamiliar, and then there are carriages containing people who do not hesitate to talk and smile and carriages containing those who sit back in the comfortable cushions and enjoy the gride."—New York Sun.

United States boundaries and a commodity

The profit was enormous—nobody ever bid against the partners at the forced sales, though there were a lively crying and a swift mounting of prices as the later vendings. Altogether the company realized a profit of some $65,000 within a couple of years. But the business involved such mummery and flummery of false names,
pretended disguises and pretended seizures
that the Bowies pretty soon tired of it.
They dissolved it, and at least see about

Rectice by Which He Heat the Law and Made Enormous Frests.

The United States had not long suppressed the slave trade. There were plenty still of lowland planters, with money in both pookets, ready to buy whatever of "black ivory" other men would fetch in. Laftet, the Louisians plrate, kept up the business of such fetching in. His haunts were ne great ways from the Bowle habitat. Moreover, young James was in the way of coming upon the pirate whenever the business of board rafting took him to New Orleans. He was too shrewdly American not to grudge such fair profits to a pack of foreigners. In company with his brother, Rerin Bowle, Jr., and two others of like adventurous minds he tindertock to get a fair sharing in it.

Money was needed to begin. Bowle solf his land to get it. Then the four entered into treaty with Lafitte. He sold them sound and likely blacks off his slaveships at the rate of $1 a pound. That made the average price something like $140 the head. In the open market the blacks would fetch from $500 to $1,000 each. But there was another and a better chance of gain, which the trading orew where quich to seize upon. Under the laws then standing all Africans brought in in violation of the statute were confiscated and sold out of hand, one half the price going to the authorities, the other to the informer. Bowle and his comrades made a practice of informing upon thomeslves; then when the slaves were seized and sold they bid them in, pocketed half the money shey paid and found themselves free to offer their purchases wheresoever they chose, for the blacks were now lawfully within United States boundaries and a commodity as apple and as marketable as cotton.
