A Love Song.

Sweetheart, there is no splendour in all that's splendid; Bright as the love-light tender That dwells in your dear eyes. Sweetheart, there is no bliss Like those thy lips distill; Of all the world's sweet kisses Thy kiss is sweetest still.

Tricky Boys.

What is the reason we hear so many boys saying "honour bright" to each other, when they are making trades or promises? It is because boys cannot trust one another, and are obliged to put in an extra proof that they mean to fulfill their obligations.

A few days since I heard one boy say to another, "You'd better look out for Fred Wilson, he is a tricky boy." Enquiring into the matter I found that "tricky" in Fred Wilson's case meant getting the best of the bargain in trades by representing things to be better than they really are; making certain promises that he never fulfilled, and did not expect to fulfill when he made them.

Legend of Clebach's Fountain. Clebach's fountain was a holy well in the southern slope of Cruchan, near Roscommon, Ireland. The legend is that St. Patrick saw here the two daughters of King Leoghaire, Feletha and Eitha, as they came from the royal palace of Roth Cruchan to bathe in the fountain.

The Widow. No, son, don't marry a widow. She is too calculating, and loving by arithmetic is not romantic. Real love should not have any more sense than a bottle of soda water suddenly tapped.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Minard's Liniment cures Distemper. A sponge bath—One taken on credit and never paid for.

Nine men out of ten love women; the tenth loves woman.

There's nothing like this daily grind for harpening a man's wit.

Minard's Liniment cures Garnet in Cows.

An expert says that the average carpet is about one-fifth dust.

When a man weighs his words you may be sure that he is well balanced.

Minard's Liniment the Lumberman's Friend.

The easiest way for a good wife to get along pleasantly is to practice what her husband preaches.

"When I how my stomach aches," Take Johnson's Anodyne Liniment in sweetened water.

Tom—A mis is as good as a mile. Jack—Yes, and a good deal better. You can't hug a mile.

In milking a cow always sit on the side furthest from the cow and near a soft spot in the pasture.

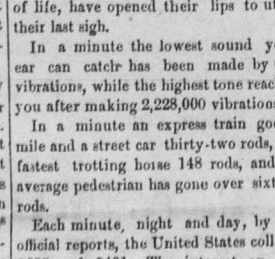

The man who drives a fast horse may find it an expensive luxury; but he seems to have no difficulty in "raising the crust."
