HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Saturday, April 30, 1853.

The Steamer Rose arrived at 2 o'clock yester-day, from Pictou, with the English and Colonial mails.

The papers say that it is impossible that either Eagland or France can consent to the demands made by Russia upon Turkey. This may lead to disturbance as England and France are bound to protect Turkey.

It is rumoured that the British Government are about to take in hand the Grand Trunk Line of Railway from Halifax to Canada. Further and more authentic information may be looked for by the next mail from Halifax. We clip a short paragraph from Willner's European Times on the subject, but they say nothing about the Government taking a hand in it.

The seal Fishery in Newfoundland had been on the whole successful. Four hundred vessels had been fitted out from the various ports. We notice that several vessels owned in this Island were prosperous. Mr. Sutherland's vessel had taken 3000 and Messrs. Gillis and Sanderson's were well fished. The finest vessels are reported to have had the smallest catch, from their having sailed away from the vicinity of the fish.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

Through the medium of the Telegraph, we are in possession of news from Constantinople to the 2nd of the present month. From the information thus received, we are informed that the Russian envoy, Prince Menschikoff, has at length broken the eminous silence he had long observed, and has submitted to the Porte the following demands on behalf of his master, the Russian Car:—

1st. Respecting the Holy Places, he requires the repeal of the concessions in favor of the Roman Catholic Church, made some time since to M. Lavalette, the representative of the French Government at Constantinople.

2d He demands the conclusion of an offensive and defensive treaty, acceding to Russia the right, at any time, to enter the Dardanelles for the defence of her ally.

3d. He demands the abandonment of certain tracts of territory in Georgia.

at any time, to enter the Dardanelles for the defence of her ally.

3d. He demands the abandonment of certain tracts of territory in Georgia.

4th. He demands for Russia the suzerainty of Montenegro, and that the independence of that perty state shall be recognized by the Porte.

5th. He demands independence of the Oriental Christians in all matters relating to their creed.

6th. He insists upon the eventual military occupation of the Danubian provinces, for the purpose of repressing the revolutionary spirit which is alleged to prevail in them.

This news is important, as showing that Russia does not longer deem it necessary to conceal her design of profiting by the weakness of her Turkish neighbour. We have been lately told that the mission of Prince Menschikoff to Constantinople was simply to maintain the interests and dignity of the Greek Church, as represented by the Czar, against those of the Roman Catholic Church, as represented by the Emperor of the French.

We now discover, however, that the claims and interests of the Greek Church are disposed of in a single paragraph of Prince Menschikoff's demands upon the Porte: and that although they figure first upon the list, they are, in fact, totally subordinate and infinitely inferior in point of interest and importance to the demands which follow. Amongst those demands are included the concession of a right to Russia to centry the Danubian provinces with her armies!

We are alwest tenanted the demands are included the concession of a right to Russia to centry the Danubian provinces with her armies!

We are alwest tenanted to believe that the Warsham, 12th.—A vessel from Vera may please; and, at the same time, a right to occupy the Danubian provinces with her armies!

We are almost tempted to believe, that the telegraph must have made some error in the transmission of this intelligence, and that the demands actually made by Russia are not so extravagant as they are here represented to be. At any rate, our own Ambassador is by this time at his post at Constantinople, and he will know how to do his duty.

It is impossible that either England or France can consent to such conditions as the Russian Eavoy demands.

FRANCE.

Among the bills lately sent before the Council of State for examination is one to accord as a national recompense two pensions of 6000% cach a-year to the heirs of Girard, the inventor, in France, of weaving a linen thread by machinery.—The Senate met yesterday for the purpose of settling the jointure of the Empress. Although no addition is to be made to the civil list, there will, it is said, be proposed a grant to the Emperor for covering the expenses which attended the installation of his Majesty with the subsequent expenses of the marriago. Ten millions will probably be the sum allowed. The annuity for her Majesty, in case she should survive her husband, will be fixed at a million, if not a million and a-half of francs.—A letter is at present being circulated amongst the deputies, written by M. de Verclas, one of their colleagues, in reply to that of M. de Montelambert, refusing to subscribe towards the expense of the ball given to the Emperor and Empress. This letter is rather sharp in its language, and points out the changes of opinion that have marked M. de Montelambert's career.

ENGLAND.

Mr. Gisborne, the agent of the telegraph Company, who arrived here by the packet, is about to enter without delay upon that grand undertaking which will make Direct Steam Communication between this country and the old and new world a matter inevitable necessified and new world a matter inevitable necessary for this reason, now seeks from our Legislature an extension of their stock from £100,000 to £300,000, intending to run the line from Cape Ray to Prince Edward's Island, and thence to New York; with a branch line to Canada. We are informed that the subterrence wire, with the carriages &c., necessary for laying it down, will be land the country during the coming season.

ENGLAND.

MINISTERIAL DEFEAT.—At all the Clubs,—in the City and on Change,—the defeat of Ministers last night, on the solidition of the advertisement duty, has been the talk of the day. Whatever the motives which gave the proposer of the measure the support of the opposition,—whether sudden conversion, for be it remembered that, whatever declarations Mr. Disraeli may have made on the abstract desirableness of repealing the duty, he had made no provision in his celebrated badget for relieving the advertising public from this tax,—or whether the result of a determination never to lose an opportunity of annoying or embarassing the Government,—certain it is, the support tendered last night by Mr. Disraeli, so far as it went, was accepted by the hon, member for Manchester and his friends, may blindly, however, but with the full knowledge that another motive, than that advanced by the leader, or leaders rather now, of the opposition, was the cause of their profiered aid. However, the result of the division, except perhaps to the Government and their supporters, is most satisfactory. This is the second defeat this week Ministers have sustained, and, in the present instance, Mr. Gladstone and his friends must feel it the more, from the strong opposition he and the supporters of Government offered to the measure, as well as to the other resolutions. It is generally believed here that, should Mr.

Gladstone persist in his determination, to make no distinction between precarious and fixed incomes, when he brings forward his budget on Monday, another defeat will be the portion of the Ministers on that evening.

Monday, another defeat will be the portion of the Ministers on that evening.

Lord John Russell mentioned that the third reading of the Canadian Clergy Reserves Bill would come up on Monday, 11th inst. the third reading of the Jewish Disabilities Bill being post-poned till the Friday following. His Lordship then proceeded to state the Government scheme of education for England and Wales. The main features of this scheme are the greating power to of education for England and Wales. The main features of this scheme are the granting power to the municipal councils of towns to vote a rate in aid of voluntary education, that schools so aided shall be placed under Government regulation, and that parents shall have the power of withdrawing their children from a form of religious instruction to which they object. To this is tacked a proposal to oversee the management of charitable trusts, and to compel the Universities to reform some of their more glaring abuses. After some discussion, leave was given to bring in the bill.

We request to action an extract from a letter.

We regret to notice an extract from a letter, written a few days since, by T. B. Macsalay, in which he says: "The state of my health is such that I shall probably be under the necessity of passing the next winter in a milder climate."

passing the next winter in a milder climate."

The steamer Great Britain came up the river Mersey at four o'clock on the after noon of Saturday, the 3d inst., and met the America off the port on her way to Halifax. The Great Britain brought 280 passengera, and gold dust to the value of £550,000, together with a large sum in the hands of passengers. Her highest rate of steaming on any one day during her home voyage was 248 miles, and lowest 100—average speed of 72 days, 204 miles per day. Her destination again is Australia.

Accouchement of the Queen.—Birth of a Prince.—On the 7th of April at a quarter past one o'clock the Queen was safely delivered of a Prince, There were present on the occasion in her Majesty's room, his Royal Highness Prince Albert, Dr. Lecock, Dr. Snow, and Mrs. Lilly, the monthly Nurse. In the adjoining apartments, besides the other medical attendants (Sir James Clark and Dr. Ferguson), were her Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent, the Lady in Waiting on the Queen, and some of the Officers of State and Lords of the Privy Council.

She has been the guest of John Cropper, Esq. of Dingle Park, Liverpool, and has been present at several parties given to do her honor. On Monday the children of the school, known by the name of Cropper's school, went to Mr. Cropper's residence, and were introduced to Mrs. Stowe. She left Liverpool on Wednesday for Glasgow, to attend a grand honorary source. She will also visit Greenock, where she will be a guest of John Scott, Esq., of Finnart House.

New Obleans, 12th.—A vessel from Vera Cruz reports that Santa Anna entered Vera Cruz on the afternoon of the 1st inst. His reception was not very cordial. He immediately left for his hacienda near Jalapa.

Mr. King, Vice-President of the U. S., died at his residence. Alahama the day of the U. S., at his residence, Alabama, the day after his arrival home.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

The arrangements for the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada are at length completed. The object is the amalgamation of all the companies whose railways intersect or join the main trunk with the Grand Trunk Railway Company, so as to form one Company. Accordingly a fusion of will be effected of the lines known as the Grand Trunk Railway, of Canads East, the Quebec and Richmond Railway, the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railway, the Grand Junction Railway, with the Grand Trunk Railway of Canads, forming altogether 964 miles of Railway, with a combined capital of £9,500,000. Of this amount £1,416/400 has been already raised, £837,6000 is reserved for the shareholders of other lines, and £7,246,000 remains to be raised, of which the contractors engage to take one half.—Wibners European Times.

Mn. Youngs Derevce.—We intend to publish a Report of Mr. Youngs Speech in definee of the charges brought against him, in the regular course of deliate.

The penare on the Salanes.—In looking over the Debates we notice, that Hon. Mr. Coles states that the late Queen's Printer was paid for some work for which the Proprietor of this paper was also paid in his contract for the Laws. This is a mistake. The Session Laws were not allowed to be delayed to unable the publisher of the revised statutes, to avail himself of the type's being set up once, to unswer for both purposes. We have plenty of evidence to substantiate this statement: and if the proprietors of papers in which this debate may be published are actuated by a spirit of fairness, they will also publish the above contradiction.

Sailed yesterday morning for the Bedeque and Shediac Station, the Packet H. INGRAM, Thomas Lunn, Master, with 40 passengers and a full freight, 10 additional passengers were inadvertently left behind. A process through which this favourite packet lately went, is something new in the maratime annals of this colony, viz: that of sheathing, to perform which she had to be drawn into a temporary dockyard by manual labour, and the workmen on her, subjected to the intrusions of floodtides which considerably impeded the progress of the work they had manual labour, and the workmen on her, subjected to the intrusions of floodtides which considerably impeded the progress of the work they had to perform on her; she has, however, been turned out of hand in a substantial and workmanlike manner, reflecting considerable credit on all parties concerned in and about her. We cannot let this opportunity pass without throwing out a hint to our Government of the very great necessity there exists for a nex nock in this harbour, with a small steam power to bring this harbour, with a small steam power to bring wessels into it, and there pump out the water, so that there required repairs might be progressed with, without interruption or annoyance, and we know of no better spot in the surrounding provinces for such an invaluable appendage to every shipping station, as the one on which the Ingram has been fitted out, and we hope the government will not lose sight of it, especially as there might be a chance of procuring a steam power for the purpose at our very door, and the seite of the dock being already government property.
