The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

To the Girl who is Planning to Teach School, Any School or College, North America.

That's what I'd put on the envelope if I were addressing to-day's letter.

And since I can't put it in an envelope, I'll just breathe a hope that it will fall into her hands.

When I meet young girls at college I usually ask them, "What are you going to do when you are graduated?"

And in—well, to put it conservatively—six out of ten cases, the substance of the answer is "Teach."

And in the last four cases out of the six, that answer is given in a form that shows the speaker's entire lack of enthusiasm.

Such as, "I don't know what else to do, so I suppose I'll teach," or "I guess I'll teach. Everybody does."

Dear girls everywhere, high school and college girls, who are saying things like this, who are planning to teach, not because you think you are especially qualified for the work or will particularly enjoy it, but just because it is the easiest and most conventional thing to do, just because "everybody does," I want you to change your minds.

What you are planning to do isn't fair to you and it isn't fair to the children you expect to have under your care.

It is bad enough to do anything just to earn a living and not for love of the work, but to teach in that spirit is even worse, because it will mean loss to many helpless children, as well as to you.

Mary Lyon, that wonderful woman and queen of teachers who founded

St. Holyoke, believed it was almost wicked to teach primarily for money. "Never teach the immortal mind for money," she advised her girls. "If money-making is your object, be dressmakers or milliners, but teaching is a sacred, not a mercenary, employment."

Anyone who thinks that sounds rather grandiloquent, may be interested to know how Miss Lyon lived up to her own advice. She founded St. Holyoke and was its president, position involving tremendous work and responsibility in these pioneer days of women's education, and yet she insisted on doing of the work for love, receiving as her highest salary $260 a year or about $0.70 a day.

Wouldn't she be grieved and saddened if she could see how hundreds of young women each year take up the profession of teaching just because they must do something to bring in a monthly pay envelope in the easiest and most conventional method?

Dear girls, for everyone of you I know there is something that you can do, really well and will really enjoy doing.

It may not be anything as conventional or as easy to get a start in as teaching.

But it is something that will give you infinitely more happiness than merely following the line of least resistance and being an indifferent or mediocre teacher.

Maybe you have no idea yet what this work may be.

But I believe that if you make up your mind that you will not follow that line of least resistance into an already overcrowded profession, but will find your own niche, and if you will keep ever alertly on the watch for any hint or suggestion within or without yourself that may guide you to that niche, that the way will surely be opened unto you.

Won't you try it?

them in the world. CASCARETS the biggest seller—why? Because it's the best medicine for the liver and bowels. It's what they will do for you—not what we say they will do—that makes CASCARETS famous. Millions use CASCARETS and it is all the medicine that they ever need to take.

CASCARETS 10c. a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

silk braids, while others are devoid of trimmings of any kind.

There are many three-piece suits, with coat and skirt of velvet, fine serge or broadcloth, and bodice, attached to the skirt, or self-tone chiffon or marquisette, combined with the material of the gown to unify the whole.

Little bags to be carried with suits and gowns are much in vogue. For afternoon there are beautiful shapes in tulle, moire and satin, combined with heavy-dyed laces. Brocades and bead-trimmed silks are used for evening.

The very newest thing in Dutch collars is one of net embroidered with colored silk and metal thread in an original design. The collar comes in two shapes—one of the regular Dutch model and another with an extension at each front end like an attached tab.

Dressy waists are made of the new flower laces and embroidered belts. Well-covered patterns are preferred, and are made up with just a few touches of silk or velvet on yoke, collar or cuffs, and the stock or Dutch neck showing a little white or cream lace or fine net, with buttons either silk-covered or jeweled.

Slippers for evening are of attractive design. Light-colored suede with jet buckles are the newest. Five straps, each ornamented with a tiny jeweled buckle, are shown in all fashions. Chantilly lace over white satin, Irish crochet over colored silks and satin elaborately embroidered with steel beads are in great demand.

For the street and travelling frock the shops are showing a limitless variety of new weaves and color combinations in English and Scotch weaves, serges, diagonals, chevrons, suitings and homespuns. Among the favorites are navy and Gobel blue, green—in all the soft dull shades—gray with a smoky tinge, mauve, beige and tobacco and coffee brown.

$14 For An Apple.
A single apple from a Herefordshire orchard was sold at Convent Garden recently for £14.

But it was not an ordinary apple by any means. It was the finest apple seen at the market this year, a Florida Mundi, weighing no less than 7oz., and measuring 1 1/2 inches round and five inches high.

It was put to auction in aid of the "Haring Cross Hospital." The bidding started at one guinea, and after a keen competition it was knocked down at £14 to Mr. Adams, of Bond Street.

The Coronation Satecellars.
Visitors to the Tower of London may possibly recall the beautiful gold satecellars, which constitute a feature of the regalia of the crown in the Jewel House. These have been used at the coronation banquets ever since the reign of Charles I.

During the late King's reign an interesting old print was discovered at Windsor Castle, showing the design of these coronations satecellars, and from this it was very evident that for the last 200 years the satecellars had been used in an inverted position. It seems that the authorities were deceived by the fact that each of the cellars in question had what were taken to be feet, but which, in reality, were nothing more than ears attached to the upper rim. Believing them to be feet, the officials had not only turned the satecellars upside down, but they had inserted a small silver bowl in each of the hollow ends.

King Edward, whose personal interest in all matters of detail was well known, was most interested in the discovery, and at once sent direction to the Tower commanding that the mistake of centuries should be rectified.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half a million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Sick Women Well

There are roses of dull silver or gold, with centres of brilliant colors, which are really works of art.

Short black kid gloves are attached with white silk and finished at the wrist with a band of thin white kid. The glove is fastened with one rather large white pearl button.

There is a vogue of lining coats and jackets with plain or ring dotted satins or soft silks in a contrasting shade. Flowered or brocaded silks are not in favor this season for linings.

Silk beaver hats for the smaller daughter of the family as well as for the older sisters and mothers, are a favourite this season. These hats are to be found in many and attractive shapes.

Many shawl collars of fur, satin or velvet—any material in fact—are out sailor fashion in the back, the square collar being preferred to the curved effect.

Velvet and velveteen are both much in evidence. The soft chiffon velvets drape ideally and women seem to appreciate how generally becoming is the gown of velvet combined with chiffon.

The new jackets are quite short, usually semi-fitting and double-breasted, and are generally cut square across at the bottom. Some of them are elaborately trimmed with wide and narrow fancy braids.

Quite a number of coat and skirt street frocks are of good quality velveteen—some bordered with a narrow band of fur—others trimmed with
