Battle With Anarchists IN EAST END OF LONDON.

Special Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Jan. 3.
The East End was thrown into excitement to-day by a battle between several hundred policemen and a band of men suspected to be murderers, and friends of the murderers, of the three policemen who were recently killed by anarchist burglars.
The suspects occupied a four storey brick-house on Sydney Street, a narrow thoroughfare. The police surrounded the place, and were met with a volley of shots from within. A rapid exchange of shots followed. During which two detectives were shot, one seriously. Hundreds of shots had been fired, when the house caught fire and the Fire Brigade was summoned.
Preparing for a raid on the place the police caused the tenants in the neighbouring houses to quietly remove from their homes during the night. Detective-Sergeant Leeson was examining the building from the rear when he was shot. A call for help was sent to headquarters, and two hundred responded. Seven hundred officers were on duty by noon.
A detachment of sixty men, with one officer and three non-commissioned officers of the Scots Guards, from the Tower, arrived later. They were served with ball cartridges, and fired a few rounds into the building. After a full five minutes, the besieged replied. It was impossible to estimate the number of the besieged, as they were armed with magazine rifles and fired with great rapidity.
In the meantime, loads of straw were hurled to the place for the purpose of starting a fire and smoking out the besieged men. Piles of this straw were ignited near the building, and the flames soon communicated to the house. Then the fire brigade was summoned.

Home Secretary Churchill appeared early in the afternoon, and surveyed the scene, crossing the fire zone at some risk. In the face of the terrific odds, the trapped men continued to desperate resistance, and every few minutes appeared at the windows, employing their guns at any one in sight.
As the afternoon progressed, the battle raged more fiercely. Another company of the Scots Guards were ordered out, and took up a position in front of the house. So furious was the battle and so determined the resistance of the criminals, that machine guns were called for. These were hurried off under orders to use them upon the East End of the fortress should other measures to dislodge the defenders fail.
The flames, unquenched, swept up through the building, driving the occupants to the top storey. Hard pressed, the terrorists kept up the fire. At 2 o'clock the whole building was in flames, and the desperadoes had been driven to the roof, from where they fired indiscriminately upon the police and soldiers below.
As the fire enveloped the house heavy explosions occurred. These apparently were from ammunition with which the men seemed well supplied. The roof of the house fell in places and the anarchists down amid the flames just before the supports gave way and the desperadoes attempted to dash from the building, shooting in every direction. He met a volley from the soldiers and staggered back into the house.
The zone of danger widened so rapidly that many persons were caught within its limit. Scores were so paralyzed with fear, and made helpless, that it was necessary to carry them bodily to places of safety.
Six of the anarchists have been found dead in the ruins.

Hayward-Puddington Nuptials at Windsor.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. O. W. Puddington Windsor, yesterday, when her young daughter, Kathryn Stewart, was united in marriage with Mr. Herbert Hayward, of A. J. Harvey & Co., St. John's, Newfoundland. The drawing rooms, where the ceremony was performed, was prettily decorated with palms, ferns and flowers. The bride party stood under a floral bell from which extended main ribbon. The bride was given away by her brother Arthur Puddington. She looked very sweet and girlish in her bridal robe of cloth of gold with over-dress of Brussels lace, heavily embroidered and carried bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Little Miss Frances McDonald and Dorothy Dill, nieces of the bride, attended as flower girls, each dressed in dainty white, carrying pink carnations and roses. The Rev. Neil Herman officiated. After the ceremony a reception followed, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hayward left on the express for a brief honeymoon. They will return to Windsor before leaving for their future home in St. John's, Newfoundland.
The bride travelled in a tailor-made suit of blue with white beaver hat with touches of gold. Many beautiful presents were received. Halifax Herald, Dec. 27, 1910.

Shannahan and Tucker ON THE DOCTORS' FEES.

"I wonder," says Tucker, "are the doctors getting mad to start in raising their fees in the middle of the winter, too. Why, says he, 'tis simply shocking, for you can hardly afford to pay the doctor's fee. It is much less to face the increased charges Mrs. Tucker kept me with her head as Tucker says it out of him, and seemed anxious for her chance to dine in."
"Well," says she, "God be with old times when we had the old fashioned doctors. They visit your family for a pound a year, and very often looked along their own medicine in the bargain. Of course, she says, we didn't any new fangled business like 'lectures, or chronic indigestion, in those days, and after taking a bowl or two of soup we were all right again for another six months or so."
"But," says Delaney, "you know 'tisn't old times now, and it costs the doctors a lot more to live in those days than in the time you speak of."
"Grafted," says Tucker, "we'll admit there is more expense, but the 'rise' is too much. They tell us that they have the same rate of charges now that they had fifty years ago, but if my memory serves me right, I think they put on an extra charge twelve or fifteen years ago."
"You're a hard ticket, Tucker," says Delaney, "you'd make a very impartial judge for an outport."
"Look here," says Tucker, "people in this town are living a-past their means, there's no rubbing out that fact. You can't run stylish automobiles, visit the eastern countries and take half yearly trips to the 'glorious side' without increasing your expenses; but the question to ask is can we, the poor workmen of this country, stand any further increase in our expenses. I say we can't, and I say further that the doctors can charge if they like, but getting it is another matter. Some people will turn around and tell you that the workingman is paid better than he was paid eight or ten years ago. He may get above money to hold on to Saturday night, but take a look in his purse on Monday night, and see how much is the remains of his week's wages. Why you'd want a double pair of microscopes to find it."

"But," says Delaney, "the poor man is not to be charged as much as the rich man. For instance, if a rich man lives in a big house and pays a big rent, he'll be charged a bigger fee by the doctors than if he lived in a small sized flat and paid a small rent."
"Oh," says Tucker, "I see you're to be charged by the doctors according to the rent you're paying; oh, that's fine, that's a lot easier on the poor man than I thought at the start. Sure all we have to do, us poor men, is to pay no rent and we can 'stab' the doctor and 'stab' the landlord at one and the same time. There's nothing like killing two birds with the one shot, 'tis fine."

Dissects 100 Cats. —All Tuberculosis.

One Physician Declares the Household Pets a Menace to Any Family.
Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 27.—That cats spread tuberculosis and are a menace to the family was declared to-day by Dr. W. L. Ensor, of Lakewood, who within the last six months has dissected more than a hundred of the animals.
Among Dr. Ensor's patients was the head of a family who was afflicted with tuberculosis. From the history of the case the doctor was convinced that the family cat had brought the disease to the house. As a result he made an investigation, and offered money for cats and a number of pairs were killed and examined.
"I found in all of them germs of tuberculosis," the doctor said, "of course not all the cats were in the last stages of the disease, although at least thirty per cent. were in."

serious condition. I venture to say that enough of the germs were present to make any of them a danger to a household. Cats prowl around in various places and thus carry the germs with them. The household pets are a menace."
