It is therefore of the first importance to prevent the Kaiser's diplomacy and gold dragging Greece on his side, and obtaining Greek aid and Greek bases for hostile submarines, to interrupt and embarrass sea communication with Saloniki and Gallipoli. The situation is one which needs strong and delicate handling.

Make cucumber pickles by first preparing a brine that will float an egg. Into this brine put the cucumbers as you gather them each day, place over them a china plate, and on top of the plate a stone sufficiently heavy to keep the cucumbers under the brine. As the water from the cucumbers will weaken the brine, add salt each time so that there is always a little undissolved all the time. Care should be taken not to break the skin of the cucumber, as this will cause them to soften. When they are thoroughly pickled and you want to use them, take out enough for several servings, soak them in water, boil them tender and put them into vinegar and they are ready to eat.
