Household Notes.

Odd bits of canned fruit can be minced, mixed with cream cheese, and very good sandwiches can be made.

Potatoes are more wholesome when peeled thick. There is an undigestible acid lying next to the skin.

Dried lima beans should be soaked over night, put on to boil in cold water and the water changed twice.

When peas are so old that they have a hard shell they should be boiled until tender and forced through a sieve.

Very good croquettes can be made from cold hominy grits by adding eggs, butter and a little flour and seasoning.

Put red peppers in vinegar and bottle—discarded olive bottles are good for the purpose—and use with very dry baked beans.

Drop a cream peppermint in a cup of hot water, and you have a sort of after-dinner cordial which isn't open to the objection of expense.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES
DIPHTHERIA.

Everyday Etiquette.

"When leaving a church and the Minister shakes hands with me and says he is glad to see me there, how shall I reply?" asked Jennie.

"Thank him cordially and tell him you enjoyed the services very much," answered her sister.

DIPHTHERIA.

In Trepassey.

Visitors to our outposts are very often agreeably surprised at the beauty of many of the churches. Nowhere, perhaps, is this fact so striking as in the parish church of Tre-passey, for a wooden structure its interior ranks first in Avalon for strict adherence to order and wealth of detail. After your surprised delight in viewing the beauty of the groin work above the aisles, the elaboration of the clearstory, the spacious and handsome niches in which are set the statues of Mary and Joseph, your attention is attracted to a stained glass window above the high altar, to the memory of the late Dean Borne. This grand old priest labored in this place for high 30 years; on being invested with the dignity of Dean he was transferred to Kilbride, St. John's West, but his love was ever in Trepassey, back to his Presbytery on the hill, from whose windows he could view the dwellings of a people, who had become in very truth, the children of his heart; and now his white parishioners, the fisher-folk, from "the Poles" to Cape Race, recount his acts of charity—his words of cheer—reverently, as the deeds of a saint who has dwelt amongst them.
Recently this church has undergone repairs under the direction of its young pastor, the Rev. W. O'Flaherty.
A substantial concrete foundation has been put in and the spire, which had been damaged by succeeding storms, entirely rebuilt. We hear that the interior is likely to be considerably improved in regard to its seating, etc.
Already the main altar which was placed there 15 years ago by the late Dean Borne (Callahan Glass, makers) has lately been strikingly improved by an addition to its height and repainting.

The nuns of this parish have now a new school and a chapel well and handsomely furnished with all that is requisite to make them shrines of study and devotion.
Leaving Trepassey by carriage it is a nine mile drive over the hills and across that strip of land so rich in greenery and sand at the head of picturesque Biscay Bay to Portugal Cove. Here the work of the youthful pastor is most conspicuous; on an eminence in full view of the entire village stands the Chapel of Our Lady of the Rosary, which is a source of pride to its people, and a generous and godly people they are. The site for this church (an acre and a half of land) is the gift of one of the old residents, a Mr. Kennedy. We had the pleasure of speaking to this man and know it was the proudest day of his life when he knelt within the walls of this tabernacle. It is a small place, Portugal Cove, but its inhabitants are big-hearted, all have contributed largely to bring this desired work to completion, and that is now well in sight. As yet it is incomplete both in painting and furniture, but two things stand out prominently a handsome Roman altar and communion rail, whose symmetry beautifies the sanctuary. The church was built from plans of W. Butler, architect, by E.
Doran, the altar is the work of Callahan Glass & Co.—Com.

New Giant Sub-Cruiser

London, November 16.—The lowest record of submarine destruction for any week since German ruthlessness began on the ocean brings forth an explanation likely to cause the utmost concern to the United States. It is said that the British measures of fighting the submarines in the narrow and shallow waters of the British Isles have been so perfected that Germany is preparing to adopt entirely new tactics.

Anticipating the recent situation, the Germans some time ago began constructing an unknown number of gigantic submarines of about 3,000 tons, capable of 25 knots on the surface, carrying several four and six-inch guns, and able to cruise thousands of miles and to remain at sea two or three months. It is intended to send these new U-boats on long distance cruises.

The new submarines will avoid British waters and necessitate entirely new methods of fighting them, because they will have ample sea room and will avoid the shallow waters of the British Isles. Such craft will be almost immune to the methods heretofore successful in combating the smaller U-boats.

On the other hand, the new and bigger submarines will be slower in submerging and maneuvering, and will offer a bigger target in encounter at sea. They also will have greater difficulty in gaining the open sea from the German bases.

It is positively declared that several of these new craft are nearing completion and a new style of submarine warfare is expected to be inaugurated shortly in a spectacular mid-ocean attack on shipping from America. Possibly efforts to operate on the western side of the Atlantic, following the example of the U-58 in the waters off Nantucket, will be made.

Gave Life for Ten Others.

A thrilling story of self-sacrifice is recorded in the London Gazette in announcement of the award of the Albert Medal of the First Class to Lance-Corp. Charles Henry Anderson, late of the 114 Battalion of the London Regiment, who lost his life in France in November last. The official narrative is as follows.

On Nov. 28, 1916, Lance-Corp.
Anderson was in a hut in France with eleven other men, when, accidentally, the safety pin was drawn from a bomb in the semi-darkness he shouted a warning to the men, rushed to the door, and endeavored to open it so as to throw the bomb into the field.

Failing to do this, when he judged that the five seconds during which the fuse was timed to burn had elapsed, he held the bomb as close to his body as possible with both hands in order to screen the other men in the hut.

Anderson himself and one other man were mortally wounded by the explosion, and five men were injured.

Anderson sacrificed his life to save his comrades.

They Paint the Town Red.

Carious Custom Still Obtains at Weddings in Bombay, India.

The rites and customs pertaining to the ceremony of marriage differ in various parts of the world. Everywhere the solemnization of the contract is attended with mirth and rejoicing, says the People's Home Journal. At a native wedding in Bombay, India, the wedding guests literally "paint the town red" by throwing on one another a kind of red powder until they are crimson from head to foot. The Disordered white draperies, the stains and splashes on their faces and hair and their unrestrained jollity give them the appearance of victims of a massacre.

In India, halls which may be secured for a small rental are provided for these ceremonies. But weddings are also celebrated in the Hindu temples, with priests in attendance. In a Hindu temple a bride of 12 years of age must seat herself on a stone and be drenched with water by her bridemaids. Behind her, her mother, and at a short distance, behind the bride's mother, the grandmother undergoes the same treatment, while in front of the dripping trio two priests sit beside a briskly burning wood fire mumbling the prescribed words for the ceremony. One casts a few grains of rice into the fire and the other, with a ladle, a few drops of oil. During these performances the bridegroom, seated in a carriage outside the temple, receives the congratulations of his friends. In the Far East the bridegroom would seem to be the member of the party most to be envious.

Moscow Cathedral.

Ivan the Terrible Lived Up to His Name in Building It.

One of the most extraordinary and fantastic Christian places of worship in the world is the Cathedral of Moscow, known as Vasil Blajenni, strange not only in outline and conception but even stranger in its history.

No one knows the architect's name, but the story goes that the czar ordered his eyes to be put out directly the church was completed, so that he should never be able to surpass his work.

The idea of the building was inspired by the wickedest and maddest monarch who ever sat on a throne—Ivan the Terrible, czar of Muscovy.
The architecture is in every respect extravagant and barbaric, and the coloring is garish in the extreme.

It has nine chapels, roofed by nine cupolas, each different and each stranger than the other. One resembles a pineapple, another a melon a third is said to ape a hedgehog in its appearance, and the rest are more or less grotesque. Some are gilt; others are painted in brilliant hues.
Indeed, the only description is that it is a nightmare of a church, the fitting legacy of a ruler who grilled his counselors in frying pans and clothed his subjects in bearskins in order that trained dogs might worry and tear them to pieces.—Strand Magazine.
