REMOVAL.

G. B. FRASER

Has removed directly opposite his old stand, where he has opened with a brand new stock at much lower prices than could be bought earlier in the season.

G. B. Fraser is too modest to advertise that he is selling much cheaper than those who make a great show. Still facts are stubborn things, and a discerning public pronounce Fraser's to be the cheap store to deal in.

G. B. Fraser gives his old friends a cordial invitation, and invites all who wish to save money to call and see his new stock.

The fact that one of the oldest and best known dog fanciers in New York, a Mr. Butler, who made a business of keeping and selling dogs, died recently of hydrophobia, gives a severe blow to the theory which many entertain that this frightful disease is purely imaginary. Mr. Butler, we are told, was an habitual scoffer at hydrophobia, and fond of asserting that men who died of that so-called disease were simply the victims of their own imagination. About a week since he was bitten by a rabid dog, and in spite of his strong belief in the harmlessness of the wound, and his nerve in resisting the attack, death ensued after a period of intense suffering.

The feeble health of Sir John A. Macdonald continues to be a source of uneasiness to his friends.
