

GAMEY SPRINGS SOME NEW ONES

Calls Premier Literary Pirate and Sneers at Church.

IS CALLED DOWN BY SPEAKER

During the Speech Was Repeatedly Warned for Indecent Remarks - Other Speakers.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, Feb. 3. - The major portion of this afternoon's session of the Legislature was taken up by Mr. R. R. Gamey's address. It was a characteristic one, replete with personalities and vulgarities, and it was the duty of the Speaker to be compelled to interfere four or five times. On finding that the speaker did not desire his case at length, and having no other material with which to take up the time of the House, the member from Manitowish submitted, after informing the House that he would move an amendment under which he could regale them with the story of the malodorous case of which he was the central figure.

The other speakers of the afternoon were W. J. McCart, of Stormont, who replied ably to some of Dr. Nesbitt's statements, and J. S. Duff, of South Simcoe, whose address was extended into the evening session.

THE MANITOUSH MAN. Mr. Gamey began his speech immediately after the reading of the prayers. He said that there were some things which he had included in the address regarding New Ontario. Continuing, he said when he appealed to his constituents he would not tell them where he thought the policy of the Government was wrong. The answer of the people was that three quarters of the Conservative leader were sent out of the heart of New Ontario. The people of New Ontario wanted a change in the mining laws of the Province; they wanted more customs duties; they did not want government by order in council. Mr. Gamey said that the Government was weak-kneed and destitute of backbone.

Mr. Gamey then turned his attention to the Globe, reading some of the terms applied to him by the "reverend editor." "If that is the kind of language you stuff a minister with, I will charge you out to convert the world with, I am not disappointed that I do not belong to the Presbyterian Church."

Mr. Gamey said the Premier ought to know what a pirate is. He was actually stole the poem that appears in the old school books under his name. Was not that the most miserable and contemptible act of a pirate? Speaker Charlton interposed: "Surely," he said, "the honorable member is not going to call the honorable Premier in this way?"

Mr. Gamey replied: "You are making a direct reference."

Mr. Whitney—You are right. The difference is this: The honorable member for Manitowish names the one to whom he refers, but the Premier did not, but everybody knows to whom the honorable member referred, and his first statement again aroused the Speaker. The Premier was actually a literary pirate as well as a literary pirate.

Mr. Gamey said the Premier ought to know what a pirate is. He was actually stole the poem that appears in the old school books under his name. Was not that the most miserable and contemptible act of a pirate? Speaker Charlton interposed: "Surely," he said, "the honorable member is not going to call the honorable Premier in this way?"

Referring to the law question, Mr. Combes said the failure of last year's act proved that the Parliament had neither time nor capacity to legislate satisfactorily for Ireland. The act must be amended forthwith, alike in the interests of tenants and landlords. Mr. Combes concluded with a few scathing remarks concerning "that ignorant and stupid body of prelates, the Cardinal Archbishop of Lyons, and Cardinal Archbishop of Rheims, and Cardinal Archbishop of Lyons, who are so ready to criticize the Government of Ireland as to be too rotten to be amended, and who must therefore be removed from the road to home rule."

SAYS HOME RULE WASN'T PROMISED

Mr. Wyndham Replies to John Redmond's Attack.

THE LAND ACT TO BE AMENDED

Thinks Half a Century Will Elope Before Ireland Is Fit to Rule Herself.

London, Feb. 3. - Mr. Wyndham, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in reply to Mr. Redmond's attack in the Commons yesterday, announced the Government's intention to introduce an act amending the Irish land act and clearing all the doubtful points. In regard to the Government had no intention of explaining at present. The question ought to be settled, but it was useless to attempt anything unless a more substantial agreement had been arrived at between all the parties in Ireland. With reference to Mr. Redmond's demand for home rule, Mr. Wyndham said Mr. Redmond's object seemed to be to prove that he was the real head of a third party in the House of Commons, and that it demanded a separate Parliament for Ireland. The Chief Secretary denied that he ever had proposed Irish legislation of Switzerland, and that it demanded a separate Parliament for Ireland, or as a concession for the purpose of changing the views of Nationalists. He also denied that he had any understanding with the Irish party for any purpose. He had been careful not to delude the Irish by any, ambiguous remarks, but he would insist that Ireland derive a fair share of the financial resources of the Empire. Mr. Wyndham did not believe that Ireland would be settled for at least fifty years. Even if Ireland had her own Parliament she could not in the present state of the money market find $750,000 for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the land act.

Accordingly both musicians are now preparing to move. This action by the acting overseer is declared by Zionites generally, will not meet with favor from Dowie, because of his personal interest in the two musicians. Miss Mason was one of Dowie's proteges, and he thought of her as a daughter. With Miss Ware, the soloist of the big white-robed choir, she sent her to England a few years ago, and paid all the expenses for her musical education.
