

The ADVERTISER'S PICTORIAL PAGE

Peggy Hoyt, off to show Paris American styles.

New York's slimmest house is now used as a dog hospital. It is at Melrose avenue and East 161st street.

The neighbors of a St. Paul, Minn., bootlegger resented the black eye he gave the neighborhood, so they showed him up as seen above.

Miss Ebon Strandin, one of Sweden's leading prima donnas.

Johnny Weismuller, who made many swimming records during 1922.

The bust of Gervase Elwes, the noted English singer, who was killed during a visit to this continent, placed in Queen's Hall, London.

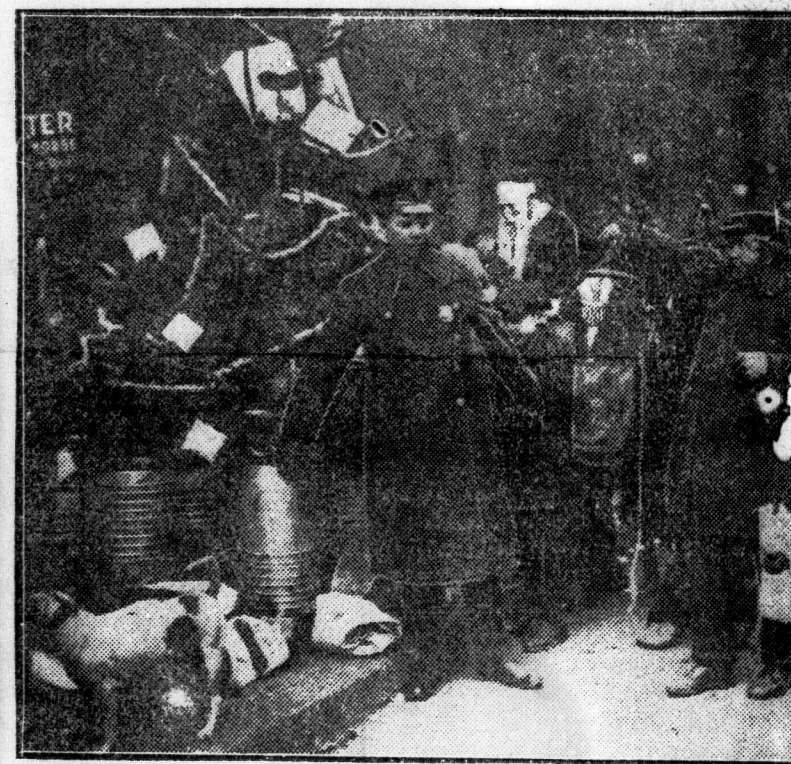

Los Angeles puts her speeders in jail. Here they are rushing for Christmas candies.

Joseph Hergesheimer, the famous novelist, holidaying at Havana, Cuba.

Robert Drane, of Great Yarmouth, England's champion life-saver. He has 110 rescues to his credit.

A unique Christmas tree was set up by the Humane Society in a New York street. It was loaded with feed bags, harness, dog collars, etc., and every dumb animal that applied was given food and other things.

Rumor says Miss Irene Fenwick is to be the new bride of Lionel Barrymore, recently divorced.

Crowd waiting outside the criminal court in London in the hope of gaining admission to the trial of Mrs. Edith Thompson and Frederick Bywaters, convicted of the murder of the woman's husband.

The Grand Duchess Xenia of Russia, a sister of the late Emperor, is being waged in California by her divorced parents.

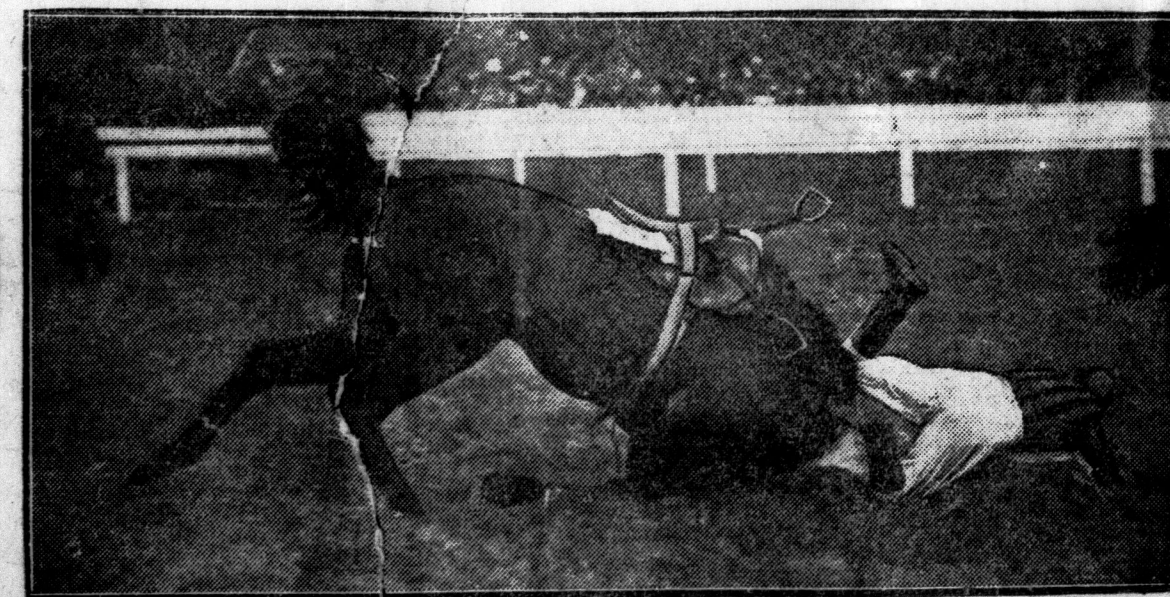

Ballinahown falling during the Courtland Chase at Gatwick, England.

Paul Rousseau, president of the French Boxing Federation, who has been trying to unravel the Carpenter-Siki tangle.

The Duke of Abercorn (on the right) leaving the court house Belfast, with Sir James Craig, after being sworn in as the first governor of Northern Ireland.

Ballinahown falling during the Courtland Chase at Gatwick, England.