As they passed her she heard one of them say, "now, d—you, dig for your life," but could not distinguish who it was. The officer attempted to arrest Wilson on a warrant and was shot. The warrant which he had for Wilson was on a charge of stealing a barrel of oil from a grocer. Report of the theft was made yesterday morning and the police had traced the oil by marks on the sidewalk, showing where it had been rolled into Wilson's shed. Wilson's wife was arrested and interrogated at length by the superintendent of police. She claimed to know nothing about the affair. Wilson's house was searched without finding the gun with which the nurder was committed.

The murderer is 23 years of age, has a black moustache and full face, wore a dark coat moustache and full face, wore a dark coat and velve collar and dark pants. A WITNESS FOR O'DONNELL.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 29.—Peter McKnight, a tavern keeper of this city, has sailed for London to give his testimony on behalf of O'Donnell. Mr. McKnight's evidence will, it is claimed, show that O'Donnell did not belong to any secret Irish orga. nization, and that when he arrived in Philadelphia from Montana, where he had accumulated about $800 by herding sheep, he had not heard of the Phœnix park assassination or of Carey, the informer, whom he subsequently shot on board the steamship Kinfauns Castle, near Cape Town, Africa. It is also asserted that Mr. McKnight can prove that O'Donnell, disheartened at his inability to induce his wife, Margaret, to live with him again, declared his intention of going to Africa, where, to use his own words, "she will never hear of or see me again." This intention he afterwards repeated to himself frequently, and, in a letter which Mr. McKnight received from him before he finally left Ireland, he announced his determination of "keeping his word true about going to Africa." After he shot Carey and was imprison at Cape Town his lawyers there sent a letter to Mr. McKnight detailing what they knew about the case, and enclosing a photograph of O'Donnell. It is stated that Mrs. O'Donnell has refused to go to England to attend her husband's trial. sination or of Carey, the informer, whom PUTTING THEM TOGETHER.
