

Losing And Keeping.

The children kept coming, one by one,
Till the boys were five and the girls were three;
And the big brown house was alive with fun
From the basement floor to the old roof-tree;
Like garden flowers the little ones grew,
Nurtured and trained with the tenderest care;
Warmed by love's sunshine bathed in its dew,
They bloomed into beauty, like roses rare.

One of the boys grew weary one day,
And leaning his head on his mother's breast,
He said I am tired and cannot play—
Let me sit awhile on your knee, and rest,
She cradled him close in her fond embrace,
She hushed him to sleep with her sweetest song;
And rapturous love still lighted his face,
When his spirit had joined the heaven throng.

Then the eldest girl, with her thoughtful eyes,
Who stood "where the brook and the river meet,"
Stole softly away into paradise,
Ere "the river" had reached her slender feet.
While the father's eyes on the grave are bent,
The mother looked upward beyond the skies:
"Our treasures," she whispered, "are only lent,
Our darlings were angels in earth's disguise."

The years flew by and the children began
With longing to think of the world outside;
And, as each in his turn became a man,
The boys proudly went from their father's side;
The girls were women, so gentle and fair,
That lovers were speedy to woo and win;
And, with orange byssoms in braided hair,
The old home was left new homes to begin.

So, one by one, the children have gone—
The boys were five and the girls were three—
And the big brown house is gloomy and lone,
With two old folks for its company.
They talk to each other about the past,
As they sit together at eventide,
And say, "All the children we keep at last
Are the boy and girl who in childhood died."

Essay - By a Husband.

I hate door-mats. Always stumbling over them.
Had a glorious rain last night; and when I came in the house this noon with the five dogs at my heels, Jane called out, "Wipe your feet, Joseph; Ann has just wiped the floor." What do you keep a girl for?
Does Jane think for an instant I would care to track up a dirty floor? Goodness! no. Give me the floor just mopped and I print my coat of arms from one end of it to the other, and let the dogs fill up the chinks, Bless dogs, anyway; with their playful little diggings and scratchings and frisky bow-wows. Such company for a man. Jane hates dogs.

Flies? Why, I often leave the dining-room door open on purpose to let the little creatures come in.
It is a fallacy that flies love heated better than pleasantly cool rooms. No such thing. When I open the door you should see them swarm in; cuddling among the folds of the portiere curtains, playing tag on the new ceiling, dancing on the sugar-bowl—happy little things. One lit on my nose at the dinner-table, and rather than disturb him I kept perfectly still, not daring to chew the beefsteak I held in my mouth. Tears fairly rolled down my cheeks. By and by he, supposing Jane and I were one, no doubt, lit on the other nose of us; and when I called my wife a goose for slapping at him, she said something real pert and left the table. Jane can't abide flies.

Next thing she was brushing up little heaps of cigar ashes and burnt matches I had carefully scattered over the carpet the evening before. Good for moths, you know. Jane says there are no moths in the house, and the ashes make the carpet grimy.
Poor Jane!

I took the cat up stairs yesterday and laid her on the spare bed. Dear little kit-cat. She did so enjoy Jane's satin quilt. Cats like neat, soft places where they can lie and sleep. It did my soul good to hear her purr, and see her claw at the quilt, just as though she was kneading bread. Jane drove her off. She don't even like cats.

Poor Jane! she is quite a bore at times.

Keep celery fresh by rolling it in brown paper sprinkled with water, and then in a damp cloth, and put it in a cool, dark place. Before preparing it for the table, submerge it in cold water and let it stand for an hour. It will be found very crisp.

Dainty Sailor Hats.

The sailor hats will be worn for outing purposes more than ever, and those provided for the wife and daughters of the Prince of Wales are simple enough to be copied by the sweet girls of our own country. They are made of light weight white serge, have a head band of oiled silk, and are simply trimmed with a serge ribbon and an enameled buckle of another pattern. An inch, or even a half inch, difference in the height of the crown or the width of the brim makes all the difference in the world as to the hat suiting your own especial face and will well repay the thought and care thus bestowed. While many persons contend that they are from their simple outlines becoming to nearly every one, the general verdict is that they are not for the woman with a big nose, with ugly ears or with a heavy lower face, and the woman with just these features—that is, the big nose and the heavy lower face—is very apt to be just the sort of woman who cares but little for the frivols of life, and who yearns for just that simple form of head wear. Too bad that she may not indulge her liking, but if she does it only makes her look absurd.—Chicago Journal.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR, BIRTH-MARKS, MOLES AND ALL facial blemishes permanently removed by Electrolysis. DR. FOSTER, Electrician, 133 Church Street, Toronto.

Silver, washed after each meal in very hot water, and sometimes a little ammonia in it, will be bright and shining for a long time without other cleaning. When a more thorough cleaning is necessary, use any good silver polish, being sure to rub lightly, as the bright lustre soon wears dull, and if it be plated, soon wears off.
