

only for the advantage we feel it will be to those Colonies, but because it is another step in the direction of unity.

Your Committee express their satisfaction at the extraordinary growth of the sentiment in favour of the principles of the League. It is not confined to any class or creed or political party, but wherever the flag flies,—wherever Her Majesty's sway is recognized,—the evidences of a broadening Imperial sentiment are constantly being displayed. As far as educating public opinion is concerned our work has been most successful, for deep in the hearts of the people the sentiment existed, and has been easily aroused. All that is required now is for our rulers to take a wide and far-seeing view of what should be done, and any action taken by any Government in England or the Colonies, for strengthening and consolidating the British Empire as a whole, will receive the hearty support of the people.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE T. DENISON,
President.

GEORGE E. EVANS,
Hon. Secretary.
