AN INVITATION
Now that the summer has passed and the first premonitions of winter are in the air, the matter of fall and winter clothing comes to the front. Each season brings its own necessities that have to be met sufficiently if not uniformly. For times and fashions change, and men must conform if they wish to remain in the fashion of the day.

That is the reason why the selection of stock cannot be surpassed, either in material or in style. Ranging in price from $15 to $25 each fall and winter suit or overcoat is of the best. They will stand the closest inspection, and that Ed. Mack desires.

To every man of Toronto, young or old, who desires distinction in dress, Ed. Mack, of 167 Yonge street, extending an invitation to visit and inspect his stock of fall and winter goods. To walk through his store entails no obligation to buy, for Ed. Mack has long ago realized that the willing customer is the best. He has confidence that his selection of stock cannot be surpassed, either in material or in style. Ranging in price from $15 to $25 each fall and winter suit or overcoat is of the best. Sole proprietor, H. Schofield, Schofield's Drug Store, Elm Street, Toronto.

Wednesday was a red letter day in the history of the Mimico Hospital for Insane. It was field day, the first held for the past five years. Officers, nurses, attendants and employees all entered with particular vim to make the day a success—and a success it certainly was. Out of the 640 patients in the institution, 550 were out in the field to witness the sports. The splendid grounds were elaborate with tents, band stand, marquees, etc.

The midway was a special attraction, and vastly interesting to the patients. Megaphones and loud voices called their attention to the various attractions, where they received prizes. The Swans Brans Band discoursed music the whole afternoon. About twenty-one athletic events were on the program, many of which proved very amusing and entertaining.

Refreshments were served on the grounds to every patient. The weather, too, threatening, proved very favorable, and one of the finest days in the history of the institution closed at 5 o'clock without an unpleasant incident occurring. This was followed by a ball in honor of Miss L. Harris, who severed her connection with the institution after 15 years' faithful service. On behalf of all the employees of the institution, Miss Harris was presented with an address of warm appreciation of the regard in which she was held with a beautiful nurse's outfit, and also a modern traveling case. The whole day was a splendid success, and everybody, from officers to patients, hugely enjoyed the holiday.
