Lady Beck to Judge In Spite of Attacks

New York World: Anonymous letters attacking Lady Beck, wife of Col. Sir Adam Beck, following her appointment by the officials of National Horse Show Association as a judge at the show to open in Madison Square Garden next Saturday night, will not deter the noted Canadian horsewoman from filling the position. She is the first woman ever named as a judge at the New York horse show.
The letters received by officials of the National Horse Show Association, which caused them to appeal to the United States authorities to trace the sender, asserted that Lady Beck knew nothing of horses, and that her acceptance of the appointment was presumptuous and would lead to great embarrassment.
Col. Beck was mentioned merely as one whose only knowledge of horses was drawn from his purchases "on commission" of mounts for Canadian troops billeted to Europe. Some rancorous German or Austrian is suspected of being the letter-writer.
A despatch from London, Ont., the home of the Becks, said that Beck, as chief of the Eastern Canada Remount Commission, made all the purchases, has not received a cent from his government, and has not, in fact, even turned in a bill to the government for his personal expenses.
"The Becks are experts about horses," said Robert A. Fairbairn of the Horse Show Association last night. "Sir Adam never purchases a horse without consulting his wife and getting her approval."
