

ROUSING RECEPTION GIVEN DELEGATES FROM OTHER SIDE

Stars and Stripes and Union Jack Waved Together at the Entertainment at Island.

The iron moulders will not soon forget their Toronto reception. It was a splendid affair, and the hospitality of the citizens was only equalled by the genial manner in which the thousands of visitors received the attention accorded them. The moulders and their friends swarmed over the city by the thousands, and spread out into the parks and the bay. There was nothing to mar the occasion, and every feature arranged for the entertainment of the moulders and their families was handled in a masterly manner. The parade started from Queen's avenue at 1:30 until the curtain was drawn on the day's festivities by the banquet to the International officers and the Executive Committee at the Island café fifteen thousand visitors took advantage of the opportunity afforded them to enjoy the day.

The weather was everything desired, and it was just cool enough at the Island, where the day's chief events were held, to afford comfort to all. The great throng was so good-natured that the parties handled them with little difficulty, and on all sides the best of feeling prevailed.

The Big Parade.
The official parade formed on Queen's avenue at 1:45 and proceeded south to King, west on King to the waterfront, and then north to the Island. It is estimated that three thousand moulders marched in the parade. The parade was headed by the Buffalo Band, followed by the Buffalo Band of Buffalo, which accompanied the delegates from that city. The parade was followed by the three unions of Buffalo. Most of the men were decorated with handsome badges of their order. The members of the band were splendidly caparisoned, and the whole delegation presented a very fine appearance. The numerous contingents from Buffalo on the streets cheered the delegation from that city as the procession passed. Following the Buffalo men were the five hundred international delegates. All of them were decorated with ribbons and small flags.

Delegates From Everywhere.
Delegations from Rochester, Cleveland, Detroit, London, Hamilton, Brantford, Dundas, North Buffalo, Guilford, Cobourg, Lancaster, Dunkirk, Estabrook, Silversburg, Medina, and Preston were in the line. Local Union No. 28 brought up the rear with the Governor-General's Body Guard Band. The local organization had over two hundred members in line and presented a very attractive appearance. Six men carried the handsome gold and silver banner of the union with numerous inscriptions in brass on the field of gold, significant of the various objects for which it stands. President William Worsley of No. 28 was officially in charge of the parade. He was chairman of the committee of the local union, composed of J. H. Barnett, Horatio Gooden, B. Geary, J. Greave and J. H. Baxter. These gentlemen formed the different sections of the parade in line and shape and everything moved like clockwork.

The procession travelled there was the greatest enthusiasm manifested. The families of many of the men in the parade were scattered along the streets and handkerchiefs and flags were much in evidence.

Then Over to the Island.
As the parade approached the Yonge street wharf ranks were broken and the delegates greeted their families and friends and prepared to take the boat for Hamilton's Point. Special ferry service was equal to the heavy demand and the crowd passed to the Island within an hour.

Course an Spectacle.
It was a gorgeous color scheme presented by the gay clothes of the ladies, banners and bunting, uniforms and badges, flags and gold braid. The spectacle was in every way worth seeing, and many Toronto people made a trip to the island and joined in the joyous throng. So great was the crowd that the committee early decided to abolish the speech-making feature of the program. The races, too, were run with the greatest difficulty, as no clear space could be found one hundred yards long. A course was finally marked out about ninety feet straightaway, the rest of the ground adjacent to the west side boat house, and here the events were disposed of amid great enthusiasm. The contest for wives of moulders was especially interesting and brought out a large crowd of onlookers. Several of the ladies entered their names on the strength of the fact that their husbands were moulders. They were permitted to enter the contest, however, and few restrictions were placed on them. The ladies insisted that they had several "ringers" to contend with, but they managed to "bust" their husbands and land Mrs. James Chadwick whose husband is of No. 28, the Toronto union.

Speeches had been arranged by President Fox, D. A. Carey, R. Glocking and others, but the committee decided it was impossible to handle the great crowd. As a compromise the officials of No. 28, Toronto, gave a delightful luncheon at 7 o'clock on the Island to the international officials, the delegates from the various unions, members of the civic administration. Covers were laid for fifty at the café. An interesting feature of the affair was the fact that the dining hall was prettily decorated with the flags of the Republic and Canada and the Buffalo musicians. President Fox occupied the seat of honor and Aid. Ward and Woods represented the city.

Some Special Features.
In the meantime the vast crowd wandered over the island and amused themselves in different ways. Every boat in service was on the water, and many of the little craft were dangerously crowded. All the public amusement were heavily patronized. An interesting feature of the affair was the fact that the Toronto's outing was the impromptu concert on the lawn by the Governor-General's Body Guard Band. The visitors played popular American airs and alternated with the Canadian band in rendering a really delightful program. The throng manifested appreciation by the most vociferous cheering.

Results of the Races.
The races were very keenly contested. As if diamond-studded medals and much gold were the prizes. The ladies were especially active around the scene of the races and took a vicarious interest in everything going on. They encouraged their friends with shouts and ran down the line to protest when the referee's decision was not satisfactory to them. The course was so short that a line of moulders had to be stationed at the starting line to catch the fast runners to prevent them breaking into the crowd. John Greave was referee, and W. S. Reid, the well-known athletic moulder, the starter. The judges were J. Revell and H. H. Hill.

ANARCHISTS DRIVEN TO KNIFE

Police Surveillance So Effective That Traitors Are Feared.

London, July 13.—The authorities of Scotland Yard have been heavily taxed through the period destined for the coronation festivities by their supervision of the anarchists and political refugees who flocked to London from abroad, and whom the presence of so many foreign quakers made it necessary to watch very carefully.

It is understood that more than one thousand anarchists and political refugees, some of the former being quite notorious, have been under the surveillance of the Scotland Yard police. This surveillance was so keen as to leave the objects thereof to suspect being betrayed by their comrades with the result that there have been several severe quarrels at the anarchist headquarters, in which many members were stabbed.

POSED AS FARMERS.

Two Young Men Victimise a Jeweller of Brampton.

Brampton, July 12.—This morning two young men dressed as farmers entered one of our local jeweller's stores and asked to be shown watches, which was done. A moment later a lady entered and engaged the clerk, and the two men departed, saying they would call again. Upon examining the stock three days later the jeweller discovered that the two men were impostors. The incident was reported to the constable. The thieves were soon located on the main street, arrested and taken before the magistrates at 2 o'clock. They pleaded guilty and were committed for trial. They claim to come from Niagara Falls. Two loaded revolvers were taken from them; a new watch, large size, which they said was purchased in Hamilton.

LONDON EPIGRAMS.

Sentences From Notable Speeches Made During the Past Week.

London, July 13.—Last week has been one of innumerable speeches on all topics in London. The speakers have not been greatly epigrammatic, but the following few have been culled from the speeches.
The Duke of Devonshire: "The question of Imperial defence is one that cannot wait."
Lord Methuen: "I do not intend to fight my battles over again."
Lord Robertson, Lord of Appeal: "If the profession of law and the practice of rhetoric could be freed from the peroration, a great public service would be performed."

At the Metropolitan Church on Sunday morning the ceremony of ordaining Miss Thelma Parsons of the Methodist Episcopal Church was performed by Rev. Wm. Sparling, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Parker.

He wore a neat, unornamented khaki uniform.

As he stepped out of the train at Paddington Station he towered above everybody else. There was no effusive, no display of emotion, but a general modesty of demeanor infinitely attractive.

His speech was rich, full and indeed melodious. His speech, brief, almost curt in form, still tinged with a certain reserve, was a masterpiece of brevity.

He has grown stouter than the gaunt shadow he was when he returned from the South, but he still retains a spare, soldierly figure and the precision of movement of a man whose every act is guided by system and aim.

Lord Roberts Drawn.

Lord Roberts had reached only about three hours after Lord Kitchener's arrival. He presented a striking contrast, as Lord Kitchener, with his right hand raised in salute, stepped into his formal salute, advanced to meet his chief, who had both hands outstretched in a friendly greeting.

As Lord Kitchener drove thru the observing throng to St. James' Palace, he drew around him amusedly as he bowed.

His attitude, throat, in the face of the demonstration of cheering and shouting, was suggestive of a man who was not a little to turn the head of a man, was suggestive of agreeable but subdued surprise.

Before he visited the King and the Queen, Lord Kitchener had changed his uniform and undergone a drastic process of fumigation, first he might carry a small box which appeared on the steamship which brought him from Cape Town to Southampton and the already admitted royal palace.

But he bore everything with cheerful resignation and spoke everywhere in the fewest words possible.

Under Allen Labor Law.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., July 12.—The Ogdensburg Marine Firemen's Union has information against the Thousand Islands and St. Lawrence River Steamboat Company, controlled by the combination of Kingston, and run in combination with the New York Central and also doing an excursion business in the St. Lawrence River. The charge is the employment of Canadians on the steamers crews in violation of the alien contract labor law. Union firemen are alleged to be replaced by three Canadians. Immigrant Inspector Estelle, after investigation, has taken steps to prosecute the company under the law, the penalty being $1000 for each offence.

London, July 12.—There never was a more unassuming hero than London when they opened their arms to Lord Kitchener.

He reciprocated the welcome with the great satisfaction characteristic of the man. He accepted the addresses and the compliments of royalties and the wild applause of the crowd with a suspicion of tolerance in his smile. He went about the hard day's work as if he were performing an act of duty and with great numbers of his staff and his personal attendants, he was a picture of business in steel building material which is offering, and comment on the London of British first to perches.

SPLENDID WEATHER GREAT ENTHUSIASM NARY SPECTATORS

Walk-Out of the Orange Order Culminated in Program of Games at Exhibition Park.

A good many processions have left from Queen's Park, but one of the largest and best was that of Saturday morning, when the Orangemen of Toronto and immediate surroundings formed in line to commemorate the Battle of the Boyne. From the numbers given by the authorities of the lodges as they passed a given point, it is estimated that the total number in the procession was a little under three thousand.

The weather for the occasion was everything that could be wanted, and members in their various regalia constituted a scene that was striking in every particular.

It was noticed in the procession that lodges which lost members by the recent disastrous fire showed their sympathy by wearing their badges inverted and some of them not wearing any regalia or badges whatever.

The visitors conspicuous in the procession were the members of No. 100, Grand Lodge, L.O.L., 357, of which John Clark is the worthy master. Two bright little sons of Mrs. Isabel Lee, Grand Mistress of the Lodge, walked in the front, attired in a picturesque costume, in which the stars and stripes were very noticeable. John Clark, worthy master, was in command of the visiting members. Altogether there were about fifty lady visitors and the scene was a most picturesque one.

Then some of the lodges with a more original way of doing things had their members dressed in a manner upon bicycles. This was a feature that was regarded as more than commendable.

Among other things adding to attractiveness of the grand display was the fact that the procession was led by a band of music, including as occupants a corte of the best-known members of the order.

Going into reminiscence it might be said that probably the oldest member in line was James Fleming, who marched into the city at the head of the Orange Order in 1849 and has walked on every anniversary of the Boyne since then.

The athletic events in the ring in front of the Grand stand attracted a tremendous crowd. There were events of all kinds, including basketball and baseball matches. The boys' race, under 8 years, 50 yards, J. Freely, 1, H. Smith, 2.
