QUEEN'S FINDS OUT.

Kinston, Jan. 1.—For some time there has been a difference of opinion as to what Queen's hockey players would be eligible for H. A. teams. To make sure they were not trading on dangerous ground the athletic committee wrote W.
A. Hewitt, secretary of the O. H. A. and senior inter-collegiate team, to play on for intermediate O. H. A. or if a senior inter-collegiate team is under the O. H. A. limit he can play Junior O. H. A.
In other words Queen's can play its senior

CHRISTIAN CHARITY THE ONLY REMEDY

Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec Proclaims Cure for World's Unrest.

TOLERANCE, JUSTICE

Quebec, Jan. 1.—On the occasion of the new year, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Lieutenant-governor of the Province of Quebec, has issued the following message:
"The war is over, as people commonly say, and nevertheless, peace is far from reigning. In many parts of Europe fighting still continues and thousands of soldiers are under arms.
Unfortunate victims, assassinations are being committed, the terrible spectre of hunger and pestilence is terrifying the peoples, and since the signing of the armistice we experience, even in our homes, a feeling of uneasiness which is ceaselessly increasing. No thoughtful person can contemplate the world and elsewhere demanding without consternation the total human society such as are described to us almost daily in the newspapers.
Selling Amid Tempest.
"We are sailing amidst storms; the disorders which are breaking out in the industrial world and elsewhere demand all the wisdom of statesmen, to whom all the world turns, hoping that they will be able to remedy the situation.
But on all hands there are signs of a dangerous impatience, which threatens to carry into a common turmoil employers and state leaders.
"Those who believe they are wronged do not wish to wait longer; they not only exact a hearing, but demand immediate concessions, in conformity with the claims which they themselves have formulated, without regard for the consequences which may result from the national point of view. Each group of the proletariat come in turn to menace society with exactions and punishments if their particular grievances are not considered forthwith.
But if we admit that the different classes of society really wish to reform social conditions on a basis of justice and justice, and such appears to be the case, and if, on the other hand, we admit that it requires time and patience to bring about these important changes which will have a considerable bearing on the life of our people, it is plainly manifest that the former have a particular duty to fulfill, by exercising an influence over their fellow citizens, that this duty consists of advising a certain degree of patience. One would not demand, not even in the case of a government, that a thousand things be done at once.
The changes which are taking place in social order, as they are the object of improvement, often mean the dislocation of other integral parts which are just as important. It is therefore necessary to be the labor unions, should remember that ties, the often invisible, unite them to other elements of society, who also deserve consideration and whose interests might be seriously compromised by class legislation. We must be patient upon the other, and even when we suffer from an injustice which seems easy to remedy, it often happens that our particular grievance cannot be solved without shifting the burden to other shoulders weaker than our own.
Need for
"At a period of general over-excitement, these truths are liable to be ignored. Rarely does the press, which is read by our working people, endeavor to inculcate the essential virtues of altruism and of devotion to one's neighbor, with which it would fear to shock its readers. Hence a greater obligation on the part of those who possess the confidence of the people, to be calm and guarded in their expressions and to proclaim the incompressible value of patience and of Christian charity as fundamental factors of all real and lasting progress.
This is one side of politics upon which the pulpit is certainly called to enlighten public opinion. For, as Leo XIII. formally said:
"The only remedy to the evils of society is to be found in returning to Christian life, and in attachment to Christian institutions." No program of social improvement or reconstruction will have efficacious results, if labor and capital do not take inspiration together from this enlightened counsel of the great Pope, who, in his ever-clerical encyclical, wrote the true character of the workman."
(Signed) "C. Fitzpatrick."

Will Prices Come Down When Packers Unscramble?

"The consumer doesn't care a snap of his fingers about the dissolution of a trust unless it means lower prices or better quality, or both," says the New York Globe, which sees "no reason to believe that the withdrawal of the packers from all lines except meat and dairy products will benefit the consumer an iota." On the other hand, Attorney-General Palmer telegraphs THE LITERARY DIGEST that "The practical benefits to the public will come from opening up the channels of trade in food lines to competing producers and distributors of food freed from the menace of the all-powerful packers organization." The packers themselves, however, are not so confident about the effect on prices. In answer to the "Digest's" interrogation on this point Mr. J. Ogden Armour telegraphs that "it is impossible to forecast the probable effect the dissolution will have upon the high cost of living." Messrs. Louis F. Swift, Thomas E. Wilson, E. A. Cudahy, and Edward Morris practically agree with him in that conclusion.

There is scarcely any other subject that so vitally concerns the public as that covered by the leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST for January 3rd. The "Digest" has secured statements from the highest sources representative of every angle of opinion upon the recent decision of the packers to withdraw from all lines except meat and dairy products.

Other articles of great interest in this number of the "Digest" are:—
