There was a fire in the Walker building on Canterbury street yesterday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock. That was of minor importance, however, to the troubles that developed during the process of subduing the flames.

The fire started among some papers in the basement, and a few hundred dollars damage was done in that portion. While other parts of the building were filled with smoke, it is not known how the blaze started but it is thought to have been carelessness on the part of some persons in that part of the building.

The funeral of Patrick Walsh took place this afternoon at 2.30 from his late residence, Brussels St., to the Cathedral, where Rev. Father Carleton read the burial service. Interment took place in the old Catholic cemetery.

The main troubles started shortly after the alarm was rung in. A number of citizens were congregated about the door of the building where the fire was and among the number a reporter. A member of the Salvage Corps appeared and ordered everyone to "get back."

Constable McLeod is not the only citizen to complain of a dangerous dog. A city letter carrier states that a number of the residents of Goodrich street, complain of a large dog owned by a resident of that street. The animal, it is said, has bitten several persons and no attempt has been made to destroy it.

Residents of the north end complain that a number of the cross streets in that section of the city are in a deplorable condition. This is particularly true of Bridge street. In the event of fire this would be awkward, as it would be impossible for the department to do efficient work.

The men seem to think that run-down should be procured for both the chemicals and steam engines. They refer to the fact that there are no appliances for mending a break in the hose and should have authority to procure needed supplies without having to go to the director of public safety, which causes a delay.

Schooner Walter Miller, which ran on the rocks at Backville about six weeks ago, will be ready for sea in about a fortnight. She is at Rankine's blocks, and the work of repairing is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. It has been found necessary to renew a portion of the keel, and general repairs were also needed.

Mrs. Wm. Gichard met with a rather serious accident on Tuesday last, while skating in the Queen's rink. She was standing at the end of the rink, and a young man in falling struck her, knocking her down. She was injured about the head and neck, and unconscious. Dr. Thos. Walker was summoned, and had her removed to her home. She has thoroughly recovered.

One official advocated the forming of a commission to superintend the work of the department, to consist of a representative of the firemen, one from the board of trade, and one from the council. They would consider all matters in connection with the department and submit them to the council. It is thought by some that this would be a satisfactory solution of the present difficulties.

This morning a city official was asked by the Times to what was the intention of the authorities regarding the substitution of runners for wheels on the chemical engines. The official replied that the matter was under consideration. The idea of supplying the drags has been suggested, but owing to the advance of the season, whether action will be taken or not will be a matter of deliberation.

The church of England Institute will hold its annual meeting at the Institute rooms tonight, when the secretary's report will be read, and a new council elected. The work of the institute during the past year has been carried on along general lines and very successful progress has been made. The anniversary service held in Trinity church on the 11th of November last was largely attended, the preacher on that occasion, being Rev. J. De Wolfe Cowie of Fredericton. Two lectures have been delivered under the auspices of the institute: one by Principal Hannah, of King's college, on Japan; the second by Rev. Lindsay Parker, of Brooklyn, London, both of which were much appreciated and very successful.

At the same time I would like it to be known that we are doing our best to get those people converted and made into good Christians, and I dare say that more people have come forward and professed conversion in Mill St. Barracks for the past year than in any other place in the city. Our statistical books show that 274 professed conversion in the past year and many today can testify to the good received through the meetings. Before they think of shutting the doors of Mill St. Salvation Army they had better think of shutting the doors of the places that are leading people to destruction, body and soul. Yours for the benefit of all. ENSIGN COLIN CAMPBELL.

SHY ON WATER. A Break in a Water Main Causes Considerable Inconvenience to Householders Today. A break occurred in No. 2 water main yesterday afternoon and many families about the city are unable to get water in their houses today. The break is near the one mile house at Traflet's farm and the water works officials are doing their best to overcome the difficulty. At noon an inquiry at the water works department elicited the fact that the break was 123 or about two feet above the floor of the office there. The shortage of water which is the result of the break has caused considerable inconvenience in various sections of the city especially where the houses are on an elevation.

ROADS ARE HEAVY. Hampstead Farmers Twelve Hours to Drive Thirty-five Miles. Up river farmers report that country roads are still blocked with snow and in some places practically impassable. John Dollar and George Peulin, who drove down from Hampstead recently, bringing with them a quantity of fresh eggs, left home at nine-thirty o'clock in the morning, and completed the journey--which covers a distance of about thirty-five miles--in twelve hours, arriving here at nine-thirty the same night. In the summer season, under ordinary conditions the distance can be covered in exactly half the time. The Hampstead farmers left for home yesterday morning, taking a very light load, as in this way they take less time to complete the journey.

WHAT'S YOUR GUESS? After all it is only guess work one indulges in when figuring out the probable winner in the much anticipated game tomorrow evening between the Mohawks and Neptunes. The latter won the first game but the Mohawks are putting a much stronger line up on the ice and have placed themselves in a position to play much better hockey than was possible on the previous occasion. The Neptunes are determined to regain their position as the premier local sportsmen and the outcome of the game will be watched with interest. The Bantlers and Int. Neptunes will play tomorrow evening.
