WEATHER PROVERBS AND OTHER PROVERBS.

1 THU	O, ye fire and heat, bless ye the Lord : praise him and magnify him forever.
2 FRI	O, ye winter and summer, bless ye the Lord : praise him and magnify him forever.
3 SAT	Third Sunday after Easter.
4 Sun	Shear your sheep in May and shear them all away.
5 MON	A swarm of bees in May is worth a load of hay ;
6 TUES	But a swarm in July is not worth a fly.
7 WED
8 THU	Fourth Sunday after Easter.
9 FRI	A yellow sunset indicates wet. The vapor of the air being condensed into clouds, presents more resistance to the rays of the light, and so the most refracted rays, the yellow, are bent to the eye. The vapors of the air are therefore in a fit condition to descend as rain, which must be soon expected.
10 SAT	Rogation Sunday.
11 Sun	Three successive mornings of hoar-frost in the autumn and spring are generally followed by continued rain. This is owing to the cooling when the air is saturated with moisture.
12 MON
13 TUES	Sunday after Ascension.
14 WED	A cold May and windy makes a barn full and a findy.
15 THU	A May flood never did good.
16 FRI	April and May are the key of all the year.
17 SAT
18 Sun
19 MON

"SUN'S DRAWING WATER."

When the sky is somewhat hazy, the shadows of clouds can be distinctly traced in the sky by dark lines proceeding from the sun. Such a haze most frequently prevails near the horizon, and hence these shadows are most noticeable in that quarter of the heavens which is below the sun. This effect is of common occurrence in summer, and is known as "the sun's drawing water." Occasionally we notice these shadows diverging in every direction from the sun, not only downward, but also laterally and even upward.
