Winnipeg Rails gained 1½ points at 48½ in broken lots, while Cuban Sugar preferred, which was also traded in in broken lots lost two points at 22. The rest of the list was quiet.

In The Times-Star of yesterday, one of Saint John's large dry goods houses used nearly a quarter page announcement, advertising a special sale of silks, but the most unusual part about the advertisement was the fact that the name and address of the advertiser was not given. The first glance at the advertisement caused a shiver to run down the back of some of the advertisement for Bridgetown; gas schr. NEW YORK, July 28. means an angry advertiser. However, a second look revealed the fact that the name and address were not intended to appear in this particular advertisement, the merchant believing that everybody knew where to go for silks, and his regular location in The Times-Star revealed the identity of his silks, and his regular location in the store.

This unique method of advertising recalls the story of a merchant who unintentionally advertised about everything but the goods he was selling. He referred to the length of time he had been in business the high quality of his service and delivery system, and the courtesy of his clerks, but he failed to state whether he was selling hardware, drygoods or furniture. The merchant received a letter from an out of town reader of the paper, which ran something like this, "Dear Mr. Jones—That was a fine advertisement you had in the paper yesterday. The layout was won by the yachtsmen, with the Mr. S. Capetown crew second and when the paper yesterday. The layout was won by the yachtsmen, with the Mr. S. St. Johns, Quebec Paves Its Streets For Modern Traffic

BOTH MARKETS TODAY

Few cities in picturesque Quebec are better known to vacation motorists than St. Johns, and its tourist traffic is becoming heavier every year.

St. Johns welcomes this traffic with a well-planned system of modern streets. These streets are paved with portland cement concrete, which grows stronger with age, and is unaffected alike by the extremes of winter's cold or summer's heat.

This is the same indestructible paving material you find on so many of North America's main highways—the heaviest traveled roads in the world.

More and more Canadian towns and cities are building concrete streets, and thereby putting an end to costly paving
