RING.

European Title.

Milan, Italy, May 20—Erminio Spalla, of Italy, won the European heavy weight boxing championship here this afternoon, defeating Vanderveer, the Hollander and titleholder, on points.

The fire department was called yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock to Riverview park in Douglas avenue to extinguish a grass fire to the rear of that park. The chemical responded to the call and found that the flames had spread to some small trees in that section and they were quickly extinguished.

OUR STORY BOOK WORLD OF TODAY

(Ottawa Journal.)

Backward, turn backward,
Oh time, in thy flight—
Make me a child again
Just for tonight.

The prayer is answered. The good fairy has come and put us to sleep and we are living again in the land of boyhood. How else can it be? This is not the real world of grown folks, the same serious, certain, dull old world we have been living in since we put on long pants. It's a story-book world, a wonderful story-book world of strange adventure. The very same world we lived in when we were little shavers and knew nothing about grocery bills and rent days and bank balances and the cost of children's shoes.
It's a world of Robin Hood and Dick Turpin, of D'Artagnan, of treasure caves and Jolly Rogers, of bandits and buccaners.

Sometimes the fairy awakens us long enough to let us receive notes from the Soviet or to send an ultimatum to Berlin about reparations and now and then a voice sounds faintly through the air telling of some wearisome thing called a World Court of Justice. But we are quickly asleep again and turning into the cave of the Egyptians.
We are holding our breath while Carter breaks the bands on those old cheats and we crowd each other to get a better view of the vases of gold and the most beautiful jewels that were ever seen. A little while ago we were gossiping across Russia with Joe Boyle on an errand for the most beautiful princess of all the Balkans. And yesterday, you remember, we finished that story about the fair-haired English girl who was stolen by the wild tribesmen of India and who might have been killed like her mother but for the brave nurse who rescued her and brought her back to the English settlement.

Of course as dutiful school boys we have to study our geography and learn about the West Indies and their sugar plantations and their politics and maybe write an essay on the wisdom of otherwise of a trade treaty with them.
But what is far more interesting about the West Indies is their proximity to the Spanish Main. We see fast ships slipping out of Jamaica, heading up the American coast, meeting other mysterious ships off Norfolk. Privateers they are and they defy the warships of the United States. When they have delivered their cases of contraband at New York and Boston they'll sail away again for the sunny Caribbean if they are not attacked by or able to beat off pirates.

Or maybe you are sick of sea stories.
Then here's one that will make you plug the cracks in your bedroom door so the light can't show through and burn the candle all night. It's about brigands. They have a lot of

FIVE-YEAR-OLD RUN DOWN
BY CAR; NOT A SCRATCH

New York, May 21. — As Henry Dabkenbrik, five years old, was crossing Forty-third street at Third avenue, Brooklyn, a large touring car ran him down and passed over him. Adam Spies, the driver, brought the machine to an abrupt stop and ran back to the little figure that lay in the road, already surrounded by a crowd.
Just as he arrived Henry rose to his feet, crying. Spies hurried the boy to his home at 319 Forty-third street, where it was found that he had not received even a scratch.
The only charge of drunkenness dis-
