RECENT WEDDINGS

Sancton-Everett.

The wedding of Miss Edna Vera, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Everett, 27 Brussels street, and W. Gordon Sancton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Sancton, took place yesterday afternoon at the Central Baptist church, Rev. F. H. Bone officiating. The bride's costume was of Belgian blue broadcloth embroidered with black, with waist and hat of sand-colored georgette. The church was prettily decorated with lilacs and apple blossoms and other seasonal flowers. The invited guests included only the family and relatives with a few friends of the bride and groom.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Sancton left by the C. P. R. on a honeymoon tour which will include Montreal, Niagara Falls and Toronto.

Among the many beautiful gifts which the bride and groom received were an electric coffee percolator, a silver salver and cut glass cream and sugar bowls from the Canadian Fairbanks-Morse Co. of which the groom is accountant, a silver dish from the officers and teachers of the Central Baptist Sunday school and a mahogany tray from the teachers and scholars of the primary department.

The ushers were Archibald Gillies and Frederick E. Culpman.

Belyea-Russell.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Russell, 164 St. James street, when their youngest daughter, Miss Alice Maud Mildred, was united in marriage to Frank Ernest Belyea of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Gideon Swain in the presence of immediate relatives. After the ceremony a dainty wedding supper was served. Many useful and beautiful gifts were received, including checks, furniture, cut glass and silver. Mr. and Mrs. Belyea left by car for Wood Cottage, Loch Lomond, where they will spend the summer and on their return will reside at 9 Harding street.

Slocum-Pattison.

The marriage of Miss Edna Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pattison, to Cecil Edward Slocum, both of this city, took place on Saturday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. P. McKim. Mr. and Mrs. Slocum left on the steamer Governor Dingley for Boston and on their return will reside at 241 Britain street.

NEW HIRED MAN

REVOLTS AT DOING THE FAMILY WASH

He washed his socks when in the army, but when it came to doing the family washing in Canada it was too much!

A veteran of the Sussex Regiment, who had lost an eye in France, turned his remaining optic with zeal toward Canada. His physical infirmity, however, denied him the approval of the emigration authorities until the recent visit of Hon. Manning Doherty to life the British cattle embargo. Either the minister of agriculture or Dr. Geo. C. Creelman, then agent-general for Ontario in London, was moved to sympathy. Discerning immigration inspectors overlooked the glass eye and in due course the ex-soldier reached St. John, N. B.

He was sent to a farm at Cavan, near Peterboro', Ont. The religious persuasion of the family is not mentioned, but the day began properly with Bible reading and family prayers. When the ceremony was over, the "hired man" was put in his place. The work allotted to him was such that it took pretty well ninety-five hours out of every week to get through. In the leisure that was left he was not permitted to mingle with the family, could not smoke in the house, and when in the house was obliged to remain in his bedroom. All this, he says, he could stand, but when Monday came and he was told to get busy at the wash-tub, rub clothes and go through the bluing process, he began to philosophize.

Ninety-five hours a week for $30 a month, and he a Chinaman? It was too much! So he quit, or, to put it in the vernacular, he "blew." He reports that he is now working in a mining camp for $4.25 a day, with smokes in the bunk-house and out and perhaps again washing his own socks.

A WOMEN WHO SHOED AWAY AFRICAN LIONS

Although I am by nature and instinct an anti-feminist, I must confess that the most courageous settler I met in British East Africa was a woman.

Marguerite Forbes came to the country about three years before I left. She was already past middle age, and in England had won considerable fame as a painter of animals. King Edward had been one of her patrons, and although I have never seen an original, from the reproduction of her Academy pictures I can quite understand how well she deserved the vogue she had. I could never explain to her to quit a successful livelihood in fashionable London for the more precarious existence of Africa.

Perhaps, like other artistic natures, she felt cramped by civilization and knew that if she was to possess her soul before she died it was absolutely necessary for her to get in touch with primitive essentials.

If such, indeed, had been her motive she had certainly selected a good place. The farm she bought lay this side of the great plains between the Milowa River and the Aberdear Mountains. It was quite by itself. None of the country for fifteen miles around had been taken up. I first heard rumors of her presence from the natives. A white woman, they said, was building a house for herself out there.

By the Evening Fire.

Several weeks passed, and then one day I happened to be riding near her homestead and went in to see how she was getting on. I was on my way to the Aberdear Mountains and had intended to sleep that night at the Milowa River. But she would not hear of it, and made up a bed for me in a small outhouse that she had. She was a strongly built woman, with a fine, wide forehead, and her eyes looked out at me with the tranquil, appealing look of a human being who is intelligent and lonely.

We had an excellent supper of onion soup, eggs and home-baked butter, and afterwards we sat before a kerosene canister with holes punched in its sides, filled with glowing logs.

Sitting there at that primitive fireplace we talked of Africa with its soulless savage beauty, and of the mysterious nature of human life, expressing itself so emphatically over the surface of the world. The door of the grass hut was open, I remember, and as we talked the moonlight shone in upon the mud floor and the rudely plastered walls.

Outside in that land of weird sorcery the jackals yapped at each other, the natives sang their jocular, meaningless songs, and now and again the howls of a wandering hyena rose from the darkened places where it was prowling.

It grew late, but still we sat, talking with that eagerness of interest that people show who for a long time have been living by themselves. Suddenly we noticed that the cattle in the boma were lowing. We paused to listen, wondering what could be disturbing them. They were making a great noise. Then all at once we knew what it was.

Two lawyers are trying to have the money transferred to another European country which has an international agreement. "I will never go back," she said.
