YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to house-keeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health. "If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief." Mrs. Bessie H. STANLEY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now. For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

Women Must Have help at times, if they would avoid headaches, backaches, lassitude, extreme nervousness. The really superior remedy for them—known the world over and tested through three generations—is

When the steamer Titanic foundered on an iceberg, her fire-escape operators at once sent out the distress call of the sea, S. O. S. (Save our souls). It is alleged that the captain of the Californian ignored the call, while the Carpathia steamed boldly to the rescue. Perhaps your shoes are foundering on the streets of Ingersoll, and the wireless message they are sending from your feet to your head is, S. O. S. (Save our souls). Will you ignore the call, like the Californian, or will you be a Carpathia and promptly send them to us for repairs? They will have a new lease of life, when they leave our shop.

PROPHETESS OF PARIS.

Woman Who Has Fascinated the Gay City by Prediction.

One of the most extraordinary persons in Paris today is Mme. de Thebes—prophetess. Alexander Dumas fils knew of her extraordinary powers of clairvoyance and saw many proofs of it. From then till now her fame, instead of decreasing and disappearing as is generally the case with the modern prophetess, has increased in a most remarkable manner.

The young Dumas was Mme. de Thebes' godfather, and when she was endeavoring to decide what profession to adopt, after bad health prevented her from going on the stage, she was drawn into a study of the magic and mysteries of the East, by a novel which Dumas fils was then engaged upon—"La Route de Thebes." The title of the book—never finished, by the way—suggested to the young lady an appropriate name for herself as prophetess.

She made a special study of the lines of the hand, benefiting by the instruction of the best "masters." She was very beautiful, and even to-day, when her hair is white, her face preserves its freshness, charm, and regularity of line. Soon all Paris was flocking to her rooms, so that she might lift for them a corner of the curtain which veils the future. Her success in prediction has been striking and uncanny. Before 1912 dawned, she said it would be "a black year." And Mme. de Thebes is a prophet of disaster. Many of the great and tragic happenings of recent times have been foretold by her, and she had warned two prominent persons who went down in the Titanic of the fate in store for them.

Mr. Stead was an old friend of hers. One day she "read his hand," and told him that "the water was his enemy." The famous journalist replied, says madame, that "sees esprit familiers" would avert any danger he ran of death by drowning.

A little while after his marriage Col. Astor consulted Mme. de Thebes. "Beware of the sea!" she said to him. "That is serious," Col. Astor replied, "for I am so often on it."

The terrible Paris Charity Bazaar fire in which 130 women and three men lost their lives, was predicted by madame. She told the Empress Elizabeth of Austria to guard herself against assassins, and she would have thought that that royal lady would have been one of the last to draw upon herself the anger of the anarchists.

"That," responded the Empress, "will be a beautiful death for a woman like me!"

Mme. de Thebes, is gloomy about the future. "The history of the world will grow darker," she says.

In her rooms she keeps 62 models of elephants—the best fetch, she says, ivory, she will tell you, like the opal, brings misfortune, because to obtain the most intelligent and sure can be animal must be killed. Whenever she is about to possess of anything in ivory, she buries it.

The hands she calls "The Book of Life." A record of our acts, malices, dangers, successes, failures, is written there.—Chronicle.

A Double Mystery

CHAPTER VIII.

Five Hundred a Year.

Mrs. Curzon had had time to storm to her heart's content and Millie to retreat to her own room with a flushed face and tearful eyes, before her former appeared at the rectory in obedience to the rector's bidding. It might have been as well, perhaps, if he had not told his wife what had happened that day, and got over the interview, which, truth to tell, he rather dreaded, before he admitted her to his confidence; but he had come to such a habit of going to her with everything, as all good husbands should go to their wives, that he would have felt a guilty, demoralized creature if he had attempted to keep anything from her, even for a few hours.

So he had gone straight to her when he went in, and Millie had run away all blushing and girlish tremor and hidden herself, and told her all about it, and the result was (temporarily, to say the least of it) Mrs. Curzon had a temper, and there were occasions when the fact was patent to all. There was no reason why Millie should not be married, no (as far as she knew) harm in any gentleman coming to ask her at her uncle's hands, and if the good lady herself had found it all out, and had been the first to understand the real state of affairs, it is probable she would have regarded it with complacency at least, and talked it over in a business-like fashion.
